Treasury Is Pouring Out More Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—A second helping of the taxpayers' cash which may be in excess of 15 million dollars is being dished out to persons in the Duluth area of Minnesota by the treasury department, it was learned today.

The treasury, however, is merely carrying out the mandate of congress which, as the result of some astute log rolling in the closing hours of the last session, voted a fat chunk of public money to Minnesota beneficiaries who already have received $12,700,000 which the courts deemed fair compensation for their alleged damage at the hands of the government.

Thus far the treasury has actually paid out less than $450,000 of the second helping of federal cash, but the law has opened the treasury to claims ranging in the aggregate anywhere from 15 to 20 million dollars.

Results from 1918 Fire.

A spark which a railroad locomotive belched out onto the Minnesota countryside on Oct. 12, 1918, started this drain on the public funds. A 100 mile gale whipped the tiny flame into a roaring fire, and, because the government was operating the railroads under wartime powers in 1918, the fire victims heaped their claims for damages on Uncle Sam.

The Minnesota fire of 1918 swept over four counties, St. Louis, Carleton, Pine, and Aitkin; 450 persons lost their lives and 2,000 were injured. The town of Cloquet, having a population of 8,000, was wiped out and its inhabitants were left homeless. Bills for all of this damage were thrust upon the government.

Actually, as subsequent investigation disclosed, there were hundreds of fires burning in the devastated area on Oct. 12 when the unusually high wind arose and swept destruction across 1,500 or 2,000 square miles. Some of these fires had been started to clean up the railroad right-of-way, but scores of others were of private origin.

15,000 Suits Are Brought.

Nevertheless the government found itself the defendant in 15,000 damage suits involving total claims amounting to 75 million dollars. A number of Minnesota lawyers took the cases on contingent fee arrangements which would have given them as much as 40 per cent of the damages collected.

The Supreme court of Minnesota first held three to two that the evidence failed to show that the railroad fires were even a concurring element in the devastation, then on a retrial one justice changed his mind and the government lost, three to two.

In 1921 the Minnesota legislature created a special court of five judges, each to sit independently and to pass upon the 15,000 cases. The government was at a disadvantage in that the judges were residents of the burned area and the juries were to be picked from the same area. After conferences participated in by President Harding, Senator Kellogg, and almost all of the lawyers for the claimants, the government agreed to settle all proved claims for less than $25,000 at 50 per cent and all claims for more at 40 per cent.

Claims Drop to 27 Million.

The claims sifted down from 75 million dollars to 27 millions on which the total federal payments were $12,700,000.

Now congress has voted that the rest of the 27 millions with interest is to be paid regardless of the fact that the previous payments had been approved by the Minnesota courts as final. To dodge the fact that the claims had been legally closed, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings rendered an opinion that the rest of the claims were a "moral" obligation of the government. Armed with this opinion, the Minnesota congressmen finally forced their bill through congress during the hectic minutes of the last session.

Young Woman Is Drowned in Basin of Shower Bath

East Orange, N. J., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Miss Ruth Driver, 26, who was active in welfare work, accidently drowned here today in the basin of a shower bath in her home. The medical examiner said she drowned after a fainting spell. Her body clogged a drain pipe causing the water to rise about four inches. She was found face downward in the water.

FRANCO-BRITISH PLOT TO WRECK LEAGUE CLAIMED

Geneva Split; Peace Plan Called Hoax.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 13.—Official publication of the Franco-British plan for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war tonight split the league of nations wide open. Diplomats of some of the smaller countries accused Great Britain of deliberate sabotage.

The fact that the British delegation makes no effort to conceal the opinion that the plan will be rejected by the league council next week, and even indicates that Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs, will not defend it, only increases the suspicion of the small fellows.

Called Deliberate Plot.

They say the British never expected the plan to be taken seriously and only put it forward to wreck the program of sanctions against Italy, and with it the league.

According to these critics, the goal of the policy pursued by Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary and co-author with Premier Laval of France of the peace terms, is to reduce the Italo-Ethiopian war to a purely colonial problem which concerns only the states directly interested.

Whether these charges are justified or not, the fat is definitly in the fire and two developments today added fuel to it.

Ethiopia Seeks to Air Plan.

One was an outspoken rebuke to the French and the British in the sanctions committee of 18 by the Swedish and Mexican delegates. They insisted that the league must go ahead with the proposed oil embargo against Italy as soon as the council has pronounced on the peace plan.

The other was a communication from Emperor Haile Selassie which amounted to rejection of the plan. He demanded convocation of the league assembly to insure a discussion "in full, free public debate conducted frankly in the face of the world, free from all pressure direct or indirect." The note concludes with the following slap at the French and British:

Terms of Plan Bared.

The peace plan, as made public today, differs little from the press reports early this week which revealed its general terms. Instead of all Tigre and Ogaden, only the largest part of these Ethiopian provinces, with a strip of Danakil, is ceded outright to Italy. But the zone of Italian colonization in the south extends west to the 35th degree longitude instead of only to the 36th degree, and embraces 186,000 square miles.

This zone would be under the administration of a league assistance plan nominally subject to the final authority of the Ethiopian emperor, but with the colonization area Italian officials would have a preponderant part in the administration, whereas they would not have in the rest of Ethiopia.

The question of police is left open, but since it would require at least three policemen to protect each Italian settler, the scheme is considered by experts to be impossible.

Main objections of the small powers to the plan are as follows:

FIRST—It goes far beyond the plan

Dr. Hockman, Missionary In Africa, Killed

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

JIJIGA, Ethiopia, Dec. 14 [Saturday].—Dr. Robert W. Hockman, American missionary of Wheaton, Ill., was killed Thursday while handling an unexploded Italian bomb at Daggah Bur on the southern front, it was learned today.

DR. ROBERT W. HOCKMAN. [Acme Photo.]

The young doctor leaves his widow and a month old child, now at an American mission in Egypt.

Dr. Hockman came to Addis Ababa early in December, en route to Egypt to see his child for the first time, but Red Cross authorities persuaded him that his services in Ogaden province were indispensable.

Studying Bombs a Hobby.

He made a hobby of studying bombs and had himself removed the detonator and supervised the digging out of a nine foot deep unexploded projectile at Daggah Bur recently.

His body was brought to Jijiga for burial.

Dr. Hockman was a United Presbyterian missionary to Ethiopia, originally stationed at Addis Ababa.

Even before the outbreak of hostilities between Italy and Ethiopia he started inoculation of several thousand native soldiers against typhoid, smallpox, and cholera.

He established an American nurses' training school in Ethiopia last summer.

Moves to Jijiga Nov. 15.

He returned to Addis Ababa in October, asserting much help was needed for wounded Ethiopian soldiers, and left once more for the southern front Oct. 30 to supervise the work of a base hospital. He moved his medical unit to Jijiga Nov. 15.

From there he went to Daggah Bur, 100 miles southeast of Jijiga, where he established the only American field hospital in Ethiopia at that southernmost output of the Ethiopian army.

Mrs. Robert W. Hockman, formerly of New Concord, O., also was a United Presbyterian missionary stationed at Addis Ababa.

WILD DUCK DECOY CATCHES A U. S. GAME LAW AGENT

Stephen B. Creech is a game management agent in Chicago for the biological survey bureau of the federal department of agriculture. Mr. Creech believes in signs, but is a poor judge of wild duck.

Yesterday he saw wild duck dinners advertised in a tavern at 168 West Washington street. He ordered one, sneaked a piece into his pocket, ate the rest, smacked his lips, and obtained a federal search warant for wild game being sold out of season.

Returning to the tavern with his warant, Mr. Creech became much embarrassed. Search of the tavern kitchen revealed that the "wild duck" had been carved from the carcass of a tame goose.

Leading Jews Jailed; Nazis Shut Big Store

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—Anti-Jewish riots in central Germany were climaxed today with the arrest of a number of Jewish leaders at Magdeburg and the closing of Barasch Brothers, a big Jewish store there.

The closing of the store was carried out dramatically. At the busiest shopping hour 45 policemen raided the building, ordering everybody out. The doors were ordered closed for an "indefinite period."

Three Executives Arrested.

Police announced the closing of the store was necessary to preserve public order as a result of indignation over happenings in the establishment. It was alleged that executives abused their authority by forcing girl employés into illicit relations. Three executives were arrested and three others fled.

The Barasch store, with two branches in other centers, is estimated to be worth $2,500,000. Recently Nazi business men have been negotiating to acquire the store. The owners had rejected the terms offered.

Der Mitteldeutsch, Nazi newspaper in Magdeburg, said "every comrade knows the closing of the store was solely due to the need to maintain public order."

Another prominent Jewish business man in Magdeburg, S. Wertheimer, whose family owned a business there for 80 years, was reported among the Jews arrested.

Rush to Sell Businesses.

Jewish business men throughout Germany are seeking to transfer their firms to Aryans. Some are selling out and others are simply closing. In recent weeks nine Jewish wholesale egg dealers in Berlin have offered their businesses for sale. All wholesale egg dealing businesses in Stuttgart are now owned by Aryans.

A conference of Polish Jews residing in Germany has been summoned to meet in Berlin at the end of this month. The conference will seek to clear up relations of Polish Jews with existing Jewish organizations in Germany and the question of coöperation with them.

Street Car Door Jams; Women Go Home in Cabs

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—When seven women passengers found themselves locked into the rear compartment of one of Los Angeles' narrow gauge "yellow" line trolleys today, the Los Angeles Street Railway company was compelled to reroute their car to the barn and send the women home in taxicabs. A crew of mechanics had to work on the recalcitrant rear end of the car for 20 minutes, taking a panel off so the women could get out.

2d Sentence Is Passed on Lindy Slayer

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted of the murder of the Lindbergh baby, was sentenced to death today for the second time. The execution was set for the week of Jan. 13.

Hauptmann's lawyers are expected to confer Monday on their next move. It is believed that they will apply to the Court of Pardons for clemency and that if this plea is unsuccessful they will apply to the Supreme court for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence.

Col. Mark. O. Kimberling, warden of the prison, said tonight that he would inform Hauptmann tomorrow of the new date set for his execution.

"Stuck My Chin Out."

Gov. Harold Hoffman, a member of the Court of Pardons, who visited the doomed man at the state prison here before the United States Supreme court had handed down its decision refusing to review the trial, said today that he realized he had "stuck my chin out," but that he was determined to see justice done "whether it is for or against Hauptmann."

Hauptmann, whose original sentence was stayed by appeals to the Court of Errors and then to the federal tribunal, was resentenced by Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard.

The prisoner was convicted Feb. 13. Today, Friday, the thirteenth, Justice Trenchard, who was observing his seventy-second birthday anniversary, sentenced him to die during a week beginning with the fateful number. As a rule, executions take place on the Tuesday night of the week indicated.

All Papers Returned.

It had been expected that the new sentence would be pronounced next week at Flemington, but this was held to be unnecessary, although all papers in the case were returned to the court there today by the clerk of the Court of Errors and Appeals, by whom they were received from Washington yesterday. Joseph Lanigan, assistant to Attorney General David T. Wilentz, took the new death warant to Justice Trenchard at his office and the jurist signed it immediately.

Gov. Hoffman said his personal investigation of the case was made necessary "to keep myself square with my conscience." Later in the day he conferred with legislative leaders and offered to call a special session if they thought an investigation of his conduct advisable. Such an inquiry had been demanded by Assemblyman Crawford Jamieson, a Mercer county Democrat, but the Republican leaders viewed it as a political move and rejected Mr. Hoffman's offer.

Many Doubt Solution.

"I have hardly spoken to a person who believes that the execution of Hauptmann will write the last chapter in this crime," Gov. Hoffman said in an interview. "In other words, they doubt that there has been a complete solution. The majority of them believe he is guilty, but they think there are riddles which remain unsolved."

The governor said his course was based on his desire to solve any riddles that may exist and because Ellis H. Parker, Burlington county detective chief, was convinced that Hauptman was innocent. He declared his willingness to jeopardize his political future. He added that friends had told him that this was what he was doing.

Tells Money Offers.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—John F. Condon declared today that though he has declined offers of from $10,000 to $250,000 to intercede with authorities for Richard Bruno Hauptmann, he still does not wish to see the German carpenter go to the electric chair.

"Jafsie" made it clear, however, that while he does not like to visualize the electrocution of Hauptmann, he believes Bruno guilty and does not favor commutation of the death sentence.

U. S. REFUSES TO TAKE CHARGE IN LIGGETT KILLING

Funeral Held; Widow Still Unguarded.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Despite the refusal today of the federal department of justice to take charge of the Liggett case, Gov. Floyd Olson tonight asserted he would renew his efforts to call government agents into the investigation of the murder last Monday of the crusading editor and publisher. The governor said he was "still very desirous of having the government take over the investigation."

The governor received a reply to his wire of last night, in which he asked Attorney General Homer Cummings to send operatives to the Twin Cities. The governor promised that no questions of jurisdiction would be raised, and promised the aid of every city and state department to solve the crime.

"Burden on Communities."

The answer, signed by the attorney general's first assistant, Joseph Keenan, stated:

"Manifestly the acts of the department of justice are limited by the jurisdiction conferred by the acts of congress. While the resources of our technical laboratories and identification records are available to all local authorities, we cannot assume an investigative jurisdiction which does not belong to us.

"The burden of enforcing state and local criminal laws rests upon the states and communities in which the infractions of such laws occur. If you have any evidence that a federal offense has been committed, it is suggested that you submit it to United States District Attorney George Sullivan in St. Paul for his consideration."

The governor immediately said he would confer with Attorney General Harry Peterson in an effort to search out some means through which government operatives could be summoned here. One such idea supposedly was supplied by the discovery that Walter Liggett was shot down by assassins who used a Thompson submachine gun.

Olson Doesn't Mention It.

Gov. Olson in his statement made no mention of an effort to bring this to the attention of the department of justice. Licensing for possession or sale of such weapons is under the jurisdiction of the bureau of internal revenue. No word was received by Minneapolis police on their message pointing out this fact to the revenue bureau officials.

A resolution urging the appointment of an interim committee of both houses of the legislature to conduct "a sweeping investigation of all charges that vice and corruption have taken hold of government and broken down the law" was introduced by State Representative Marius Waldhal of Plummer, Minn., in the house today.

Representative Waldhal cited the editorial storm which the murder of Liggett, following so closely upon that of Howard Guilford, editor of the Saturday Press, has raised. He said the confidence of the people had been shaken by these crimes and asked for an appropriation of $50,000 to defray costs of investigation by the joint committee. No action was taken on the resolution during the day.

Funeral Held for Victim.

Funeral ceremonies for the slain editor were conducted in an undertaker's chapel in St. Paul today. The room was thronged with 300 friends of the family who walked past the bier and then listened while two of Liggett's lifelong friends made simple talks. There was no religious touch to the service.

"Many of Walter's youthful and formative years were spent on the frontier," said Dr. E. S. Powell, St. Paul physician, "and he was always hoping to find an opportunity to apply his ideals.

Insisted on His Rights.

"He was courageous and fearless and insisted upon using his constitutional rights of free speech and free press in expounding what he believed to be the truth. And for these principles he gave his life.

"The challenge has been given to those of us who believe in these cardinal principles that he and other crusaders in this cause shall not have died in vain."

Joseph Granbeck, Minneapolis attorney who represented Liggett during the editor's trial on a statutory charge, of which he was acquitted, also spoke. Granbeck also stressed the challenge of Liggett's death to residents of Minneapolis. He said Liggett will go down in history "as a martyr to a great cause."

The body was cremated.

Widow Still Unguarded.

Mrs. Liggett, dry eyed and with a stony demeanor, attended the funeral and then immediately returned to her home. Despite efforts of citizens and civic groups here, no police guard had been posted outside the modest apartment house in which she and her husband lived. A number of persons have stated that Mrs. Liggett is in danger of sharing her husband's fate since she has announced that she will continue to publish his paper and seek for the severing of alliances between crime and politics.

City detectives, investigators for the county attorney, and for the attorney general of the state, announced today that they were "very busy" making a thorough investigation of all circumstances surrounding the murder of Liggett. They also stated that through an agreement of all parties none of their findings will be made public until after the case has been presented to the Hennepin county grand jury.

Adds to Fear of Inaction.

The belief of many citizens of these cities that no productive investigation of the crime can be made by local authorities was strengthened by the attitude of the law enforcing groups. County Attorney E. J. Goff said he did not know just how soon the grand jury would be given evidence collected through the joint efforts of the operatives, but probably not before next Wednesday.

Meanwhile Minneapolis has had the "lid" applied. The gambling clubs, dice games, and roulette wheels of the town have been ordered to close while the "heat" is on. The order has filtered through until taxicab drivers, asked to take visitors in the city to a likely spot, explain:

"Everything closed up Wednesday. The police put out the order and all the joints are dead. You can still get a drink at any time of the night, the midnight closing law never was taken seriously, but the rest of the places are quiet."

During the day the Minneapolis city council, after considerable debate, passed a resolution calling for payment of $2,500 reward for evidence leading to the arrest of Liggett's slayer. The Hennepin county board approved a motion to offer a $500 reward on the city's terms.

RUSH OF PARTIES FOR CHRISTMAS GETS UNDER WAY

Christmas parties for young and old Chicagoans have begun.

Twenty-five children of the Douglas Park Day and Night nursery, 1424 South Albany avenue, were guests of the Bismarck hotel yesterday afternoon at the hotel's second annual party for them, with a Christmas tree, toys, entertainment and refreshments.

Students of the Chicago Normal college held their Christmas festival in the college gymnasium yesterday. Employés of the Chrysler Motor Parts corporation will hold theirs tonight at 2431 South La Salle street.

Christmas carols will be sung by candlelight tonight at the fourth annual Girl Scout Christmas party in Henrici's Merchandise Mart restaurant. Nearly 400 leaders and assistant leaders of Chicago's 330 Girl Scout troops are expected to attend.

WOMAN FATALLY WOUNDED.

Shot early yesterday, Miss Arline Robinson, 22 years old, colored, 241 North Artesian avenue, died in the County hospital later in the day without explaining how she was wounded or by whom.

FEED MERCHANT KILLED AS TRAIN CRUSHES TRUCK

In Harvey Near Scene of 7 Deaths a Year Ago.

Frank Parzer, 48 years old, of 427 Logan street, Hammond, was killed yesterday when his truck was hit by the Maple Leaf limited of the Grand Trunk railroad at 152d street and Broadway in Harvey.

The grade crossing is one of several in the village that are protected only by flashing signals. It is less than half a mile from the one at 154th place and Halsted street where seven relief employés in an automobile were killed by a Grand Trunk train last Dec. 26.

Parzer, a partner in the Harvey Feed company, 195 East 52d street, Harvey, had just left the company's building when the engine of the speeding eastbound flyer struck his truck, catapulting Parzer's body 135 feet. Engineer William Jameson of Battle Creek, Mich., stopped his train 2½ blocks beyond the crash.

Locomotive Is Damaged.

The truck was demolished and the locomotive was so badly damaged that the train was delayed 45 minutes until another arrived.

A coroner's jury investigating the seven fatalities a year ago recommended that precautions be taken to guard against similar tragedies, but no action followed. The recommendations called for grade separation, the stationing of crossing watchmen, and enforcement of the train speed limit until the precautions were taken.

At 4 p. m. yesterday 959 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In the same period 745 were killed and 16,833 injured within the Chicago city limits. Other Cook county trafic deaths yesterday:

Fred O'Toole, 43 years old, 2243 Lincoln avenue, died in the Grant hospital of injuries incurred on Dec. 9 when he was struck by two automobiles at Grant place and Clark street. He was hit first by a taxicab driven by Frank Schrader, 35 years old, 927 Cornelia avenue, and hurled into the path of the car of John Platt, 44, of 3949 Sheridan road.

Anthony Ufa, 65 years old, 1511 Elston avenue. Died in North Avenue hospital after being struck before his home by the automobile of Ben Goltz, 3241 Warner avenue. Goltz said Ufa walked into the side of the car.

Unidentified man about 55 years old. Killed in front of 1314 Washington boulevard by a car driven by Eric Glasser, 33 years old, 317 North Lavergne avenue, business manager for the Independent Dairymen's council, 10 North Clark street.

Miss Mary Rukavina, 18 years old, 9140 Cranton avenue, South Chicago, died in St. Margaret's hospital in East Chicago yesterday of injuries incurred Thursday night when she and two companions were struck by the automobile of a hit and run driver in Indianapolis boulevard at Calumet avenue in Robertsdale, Ind., near Whiting.

Held in Hit and Run Case.

Walter E. Ledell, 47 years old, 704 Reba place, Evanston, a janitor, was arrested by the suburban police yesterday as the hit and run motorist who struck and seriously injured Chester Jaehne, 20 years old, 2340 Prospect avenue, Evanston, on Dec. 10. Jaehne had parked his car under a street light at Chicago and Kedzie avenues in the suburb and was changing a tire when he was struck.

Witnesses furnished the police with a description of the hit and run car, and it was traced to Ledell. The janitor said he recalled feeling a bump as he passed the spot, but was unaware his car had struck a man. He was released in $2,000 bonds on charges of reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident, and will be arraigned in the Evanston Municipal court next Wednesday.

Four New Trier High school girls were injured last night when their automobile crashed headon in Orrington avenue near Emerson street, Evanston, into a car driven by James G. Carr Jr., 2306 Ridge avenue, Evanston, son of a physician. The students were on their way to a basketball game. The driver, Miss Lucille Sredigke, 18 years old, Harms road, Glencoe, was seriously injured and is in an Evanston hospital. The others hurt are: Louise Triggs, 18, of 1100 Ashland avenue, Wilmette; Mary Jayne Donahue, 17, of 907 Elmwood avenue, Glencoe, and Marion Danner, 16, of 352 Jefferson street, Glencoe.

Moritz Mommsen, 45 years old, 710 South Lawndale avenue, narrowly escaped death yesterday when his automobile crashed half way through the rail of the Polk street viaduct over the railroad tracks at Wells street.

THE MASSACRE

CUT OF 408 CABS HERE ADVISED BY COUNCIL GROUP

A subcommittee of the city council recommended yesterday that the number of taxicabs now operating in the city be reduced from 4,108 to 3,700. The subcommittee, headed by Ald. Berthold A. Cronson [4th], will present its report to the taxicab committee of the council.

To reduce the number of cabs, it was decided that the Yellow Cab company should surrender 200 of its licenses; that the Checker Cab company should surrender 100, and that 108 other cabs will be taken from the streets gradually when the owners fail to renew licenses or the licenses are revoked.

AUTOIST GUILTY OF HIS FRIEND'S HIT-RUN DEATH

Vincent Smale, 42, Faces Possible 1 to 14 Years.

Vincent Smale, 42 years old, 829 East 87th street, who fled after his automobile struck and fatally injured a man at 112th place and State street on Oct. 7, was found guilty of manslaughter last night by a jury in the court of Judge John C. Lewe. The conviction carries a penalty of one to 14 years' imprisonment.

The victim was William Craig, 49 years old, 119 West 112th place, assistant secretary of the Pullman Trust and Savings bank and a Boy Scout executive. He died soon after he had been struck. The two men had been friends for many years.

Faint Clew—One in a Thousand.

After the accident Smale drove away rapidly. A spectator told the police a brief glimpse of a license plate on the car revealed that the three digits at the left were 331.

Policemen James Barnes and John Keilty of the Kensington station were instructed to investigate, if necessary, every one of the 1,000 cars in the 331 series in an effort to discover the identity of the man who struck Craig. Smale's car was the 151st examined and the policemen discovered that the headlights and bumper had been repaired after the accident.

Changes Story on Stand.

He was taken into custody and admitted that he had felt his car hit something, but denied that he knew he had struck a man. During the trial Smale repudiated this statement, asserting that he was not near the scene of the accident. He added that the statement was made only because the police threatened to beat him.

Several witnesses took the stand, however, and identified him as the driver of the death car. They also declared that he drove away at more than 50 miles an hour to elude the pursuit of other motorists.

A motion for a new trial was made and argument on this was set for Dec. 20.

Three Others Sent to Jail.

Three motorists were sentenced for trafic violations by Judge Eugene J. Holland in the South State street court yesterday. Felix Jesinstas, 53 years old, 6442 Stony Island avenue, was sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell on charges of driving while intoxicated and reckless driving, the two sentences to run concurrently.

Walter Bazia, 21 years old, 4949 South Paulina street, got 30 days in the Bridewell on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident and was fined $10 for not having a city vehicle license and the same amount for not having state license plates.

A ten day sentence for leaving the scene of an accident was imposed on Stanley Fillar, 22 years old, 4613 South Winchester avenue. He was also fined a total of $30 for not having city and state licenses and for driving past a stop sign.

Helen Richey Appointed U. S. Air Marking Pilot

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—Helen Richey, the only woman ever to hold a job as pilot on a regular air transport line, was named today as an air marking pilot for the bureau of air commerce. Miss Richey, whose home is at McKeesport, Pa., until recently, was a pilot for the Central Air Lines. Eugene L. Vidal, director of air commerce, said Miss Richey's duties would consist of aiding municipalities in arranging roof markings.

New Data Seen as Key to Race of Super Humans

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Data on a method of determining the quality of man's offspring, which scientists said might some day be used in developing supermen, was presented today by the Carnegie institute.

The method already has been used to develop a superhorse, Discovery of the Vanderbilt stables.

The "Manerkon" system of determining the probable quality of offspring differs from the centuries old Mendelian laws of heredity which deal with individual characteristics such as the color of eyes. The "Manerkon" formula expressed the total of the effect of a large number of genes on the chromosomes—bits of protoplasm in body cells in which heredity is carried from generation to generation.

Check Race Records.

Dr. H. H. Laughlin of the institution's department of genetics worked out the "probability resultants" of the method by using race horses as experimental subjects because their ancestry and performance records have been accurately kept for many years.

He added that it was conceivable that it might be used on human beings under certain conditions of racial experiment if it were possible to obtain complete and accurate records of the ancestry of at least 1,000 individuals and a measure of what constitutes a genius.

Three Graphs Plotted.

As applied to horses the method consists of plotting on three dimensional graphs the racing capacity of two horses to be mated and the racing capacity of their parents. These are accurately known from actual performances of the horses in weight carried and time required to cover the distance.

Then by superimposing these graphs Dr. Laughlin draws a composite curve which sums up all the evidence given. This shows the probable performance of an unborn horse, what it will do under a given set of conditions of weight and other factors "if the race is truly run."

Owners Learn Chances.

The genetics department has advised owners of the probable performance of a horse resulting from the mating of any two given animals.

Thus they scientifically bred to produce a fast, high winning horse for the Vanderbilt stables, called, appropriately, Discovery, since it was the first laboratory race horse. They also mapped out the breeding work of Man-o-War, Kentucky Derby winner, after his retirement from racing.

"SPORTMANSHIP" URGED AS WAY TO CUT TRAFIC TOLL

George Fleming, executive secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, pleaded for sportsmanship among drivers as a means of reducing the trafic toll, in an address last night in the Hotel Sherman. Mr. Fleming and Fred L. Bennis, director of highway safety for the Bendix corporation, addressed members of the Automotive Maintenance Association of Chicago.

Both speakers declared there are many cars unfit for operation on the streets. Mr. Bennis predicted that when the compulsory motor vehicle inspection ordinance goes into effect here on July 1, 1936, at least 240,000 automobiles will be rejected on the first inspection. Herman Koppelman, president of the association, announced that Mechanical Safety week will be observed in Chicago Jan. 20 to 25, 1936.

MORE LETTERS TELL ROMANCE OF RICH WIDOW

Mrs. Smith Says Manager Proposed Marriage.

More love letters to Mrs. Elizabeth Palmer Smith, 81 years old, niece of the late Potter Palmer, from her ardent admirer and business manager, Roy A. Wathier, 37 year old broker, came to light yesterday. At the same time Mrs. Smith, a widow, insisted she had no wish to prosecute Wathier, whose management of her $900,000 estate coincided with a shrinkage of $850,000 in its value.

The romantic association of Wathier and Mrs. Smith, which started in 1927 and ended when relatives brought legal action to conserve her estate, was revealed during hearings before Assistant Probate Judge Clarence P. Wagner to determine whether there had been any misuse of funds. The love letters were introduced at these hearings.

Willing to Marry Him.

In her home at the Hyde Park hotel, 1511 East 51st street, Mrs. Smith talked freely yesterday of her attachment for her financial adviser. She declared Wathier had begged her to marry him and she had been willing. She was surprised, she said, when he married another woman shortly after his divorce in 1934 from the daughter of the late B. A. Railton, wholesale grocer.

"But no matter how much money is missing," Mrs. Smith said, "I will not take any action, because he was my very dear friend."

Present Wife Is Indignant.

Wathier's present wife, who is young, slim, and blonde, thrust her head high when reporters approached her last night in her home on the west side.

"I haven't seen Mr. Wathier for six months," she said with some asperity, "and I don't know where he is."

"And don't think," she continued, "that there are any millions lying around here, because there aren't. I work every day of my life, and work hard."

She and Wathier have a baby son, she said. Mrs. Wathier and the child have been living with her parents since Wathier's departure.

More Letters to His "Pal."

The literary efforts of Wathier which were made public yesterday from the records of the Probate court included a letter to the elderly Mrs. Smith which said:

"My Dearest Pal, after we said goodbye my heart was heavy and if you had seen me standing there watching your machine out of sight, you would have known I cared. I would gladly have given up my summer vacation for just one hour with you more. I will prove the truth of what I say when we see one another in Biloxi for I will arrange that nothing disturb us and we can have not minutes but days to ourselves. When I come to Biloxi I'll take more of you and you take some of me."

Like "Race Horse at Barrier."

Wathier was solicitous in another:

"A chill goes through me when I think of you ever being sick. Please take real good care of yourself. I'm just as likely to leave here on a moment's notice and come right down to St. Pete's to see you. I'm like a race horse at the barrier. I want to go but I must wait for the bell. You will see much more of me and I will see much more of you when I come down to Biloxi. How are all the 'kitties' at the Albermarle? If poison ivy was for sale I should send them a bouquet. Did I see a little smile just then? And a twinkle in those eyes?"

In the same letter, Wathier assured Mrs. Smith he would do the worrying about business matters and reported that everything was "in tip top shape." "A good tip for your friends—buy Sinclair oil now," he tipped and added "We will too."

He closed with:

"I'm hungry for a word from just you and not Mrs. Smith. Mrs. Smith is no more. It is you now, just you. Let me hear more from you please as I'm just a great big lonesome boy."

Hopes Letters Aren't Cold.

Having dipped into French, Latin and Greek to express love in previous letters, the broker took another literary hitchhike in this:

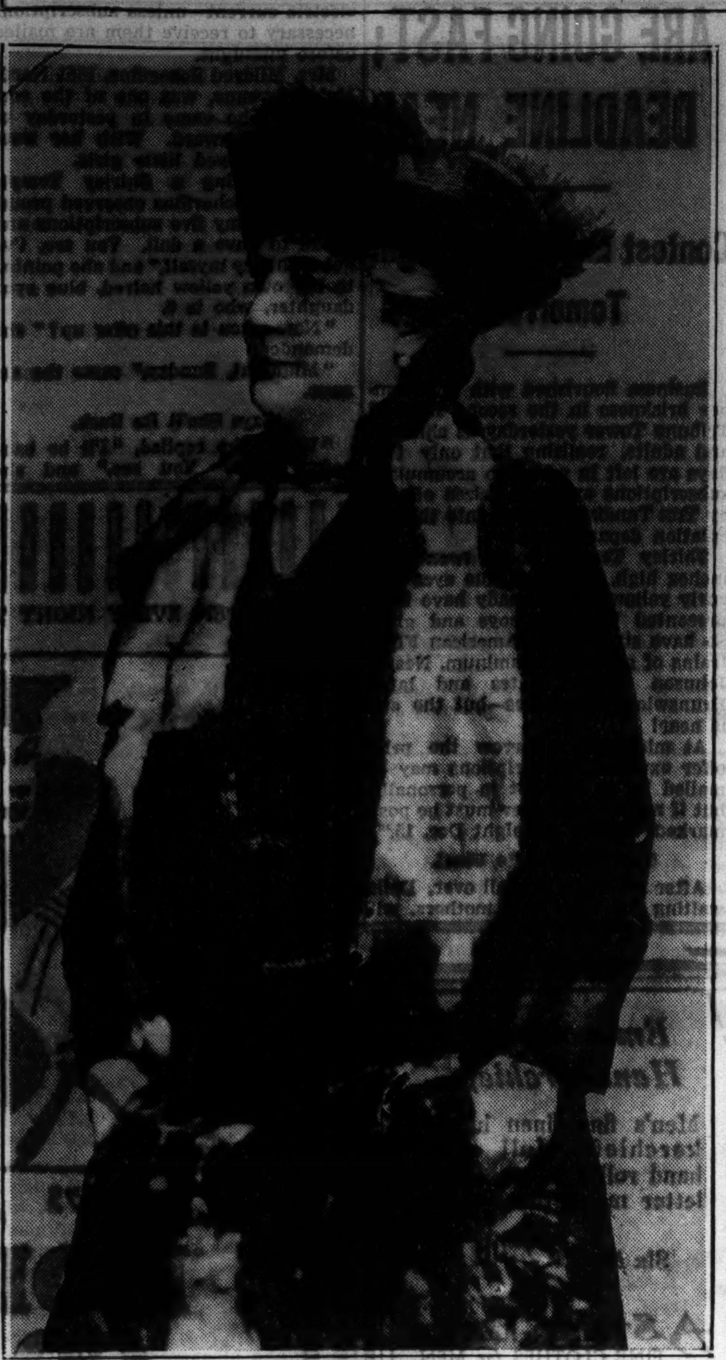
"Prosper Merimee was cold in his 'Letters to an Unknown.' My letters are to someone real and I hope they do not seem cold, for I try so hard in my own way to tell you as best I can that I do miss you. I imagine that my great virtue is modesty; I carry it to excess and I tremble lest it should harm me in your opinion."

And again:

"Nature is so bountiful in her gifts to man but how few reach out to accept. Oooh! A big surprise. A big, big surprise. A perfectly lovely box of cigars. Just the kind I smoke. Thank you so much. Always yours."

"Lonesomeness comes only to those who are bound together by a mutual feeling," said another letter.

HER ESTATE IN THE LIMELIGHT



Mrs. Elizabeth Palmer Smith, whose $900,000 fortune has dwindled to $50,000, as she appeared several years ago. The Probate court is investigating the management of the estate by Roy A. Wathier, broker, who wrote Mrs. Smith many letters of endearing nature.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

"Forget life for a moment with all its sadness and come with me for a little walk through 'Lonesome Valley.' Today is exquisite. The breath of spring is in the air. . . . Thoughts of you pass and repass through my brain.

Dreams and Mysteries.

"Time is and always will be. We change. Letters are powerless, it seems, to reveal to one another what they feel. We must be with each other, alone, to free our hearts and feel the warmth which is contained therein. Only our presence together can satisfy that longing to inquire into the mysteries of our hearts, to know each other's thoughts, where they go and what they hold. My dream is over. Think of me always as I will always think of you. Goodby for a while. I will dream again real soon."

A telegram sent to Mrs. Smith at Pasadena, Cal., was similar to others in its ending, "I do."

"Your ultimatum accepted will meet you Delmonte go there immediately I do," he wired .

Court to Rule Wednesday.

Assistant Probate Judge Wagner will rule next Wednesday on whether Wathier shall be held accountable for any sums missing from the estate. The court's ruling will be a dismissal or an order for reimbursement upon which a contempt finding could be based.

Mrs. Smith was adjudged incompetent last May and the Trust Company of Chicago was named conservator of the estate. Citations were filed by Attorneys Isadore Fried and Edward Horchler to discover assets or possible misuse of them and the hearing began.

CARNIVAL QUEEN 'CROWNED' BY MOB OF DISSENTERS

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BOGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 13.—Senorita Rubria Cucalon, who was elected queen of the carnival in Palmira in the state of Valle, was crowned with a brick today when followers of her nearest rival, headed by the chief of police, organized a protest demonstration.

A mob marched to the winner's home, where she was celebrating her victory. After a vain attempt to calm the demonstrators the mayor hurriedly left town when shooting began.

No one was shot but Queen Rubria was hit on the head with a brick before eighty policemen under orders from the governor dispersed the mob. The carnival may be canceled.

CROSS-EXAMINE CROWE THIRD DAY IN LAW FIRM SUIT

Ex-Prosecutor Ordered to Produce Records.

Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney, yesterday finished his third day of cross-examination on his testimony to the effect that his former partner, Joseph P. Savage, had taken the lion's share of the million dollar income of the former law firm of Crowe, Gorman & Savage.

As a witness before Master in Chancery Samuel B. Epstein in the suit brought by Crowe for an accounting from Savage, Crowe was questioned yesterday by Attorney Burrell Cramer, representing Savage, and by Attorney Frank S. Sims, representing the estate of the third partner, George E. Gorman, who was also a master in chancery. Gorman died last January.

The day's proceedings began with Attorney Cramer handing Crowe a subpena duces tecum which calls for certain records to be produced in court by Crowe. Cramer handed him the usual witness fee, $1.10.

Crowe Repeats Accusation.

"I'm glad to get some of my money back," said Crowe, pocketing the $1.10.

Crowe was a wary witness. To most of Cramer's questions he answered that Savage had been the business manager of the law firm and knew all about the income and the expenditures. He made one of his often repeated assertions that Savage profited by a secret arrangement with Attorney Francis L. Boutell, a former county commissioner.

"Don't you know that Boutell's firm sent you as much law business as you sent them?" asked Cramer, and Crowe's reply was a denial. Cramer read a list of cases, asking if Crowe did not know that Boutell's firm's recommendation was responsible for all the cases going to the firm of Crowe, Gorman & Savage.

Crowe said Savage told him at one time he had arranged a reciprocal agreement with Boutell's firm through which they were to send business to each other. But, he repeated, he was told that Savage received $142,000 in cash for the business he sent Boutell's firm and Savage did not share the $142,000 with his two partners.

Savage Breaks In.

Crowe denied that the influence of Boutell's firm had caused the selection of Master Gorman to hear many chancery cases. He credited the courts with assigning cases to Gorman which brought fees as high as $84,000 in one year. Savage broke into the proceedings by waving aside his lawyer for the moment and asserting that Crowe had failed to back up any of his charges.

Under questioning by Attorney Sims, Crowe explained that when the partnership was formed in 1929 Savage was attorney for the county forest preserve board and Gorman was attorney for the south park board as well as being a master in chancery. It was agreed, Crowe said, that all fees for legal services were to be thrown into the firm treasury and each partner was to get one-third.

Taxes on Master's Fees.

Master's fees were tax exempt, he explained, but not when shared with others, so he decided to pay income tax on his share of Gorman's fees, and he said he warned Savage to do the same. At the start of 1935, Crowe said, there was an agreement that henceforth Gorman was to keep all his fees, including $105,000 earned but not collected prior to Jan. 1, 1935.

A few questions are still to be put to Crowe by his own attorney, Walter Eckert, on redirect examination next Tuesday. Then, it was tentatively decided yesterday, Savage will have his opportunity to tell his side.

FREE JACK GUZIK, CAPONE AID, FROM PRISON TONIGHT

Jack Guzik, former business manager of the Capone vice and booze syndicate, will be released from the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., at midnight.

Guzik was sentenced on Dec. 30, 1930, to five years and a day and fined $17,951 for evasion of $230,000 in income taxes for 1927, 1928, and 1929. He entered prison on April 7, 1932, and on May 31 of that year his fine was paid in cash. He earned 480 days off his sentence for good behavior. He has served slightly more than three years and eight months in prison.

William Waugh, attorney for the former gangster, said that Guzik has not made arrangements for the future. Guzik still faces a civil suit by the government to recover $378,533 in unpaid income taxes, the claim having been reduced last March from $832,752.

PIN GAME OWNER DENIED WRIT TO TIE CITY'S HANDS

Klarkowski Rules It Is a Gambling Device.

Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski denied yesterday the motion of Sportland, Inc., for an injunction to restrain the city from interfering with pin games. In a written opinion the judge ruled that the pin game is a gambling device, dependent upon chance rather than skill.

The petition for the writ was brought against Mayor Kelly, Police Commissioner Allman, and State's Attorney Courtney by the owners of Sportland, which has offices at 114 South Clark street. The action was viewed as a test case by other operators of games whose devices have been suppressed in the recent campaign against gambling.

The case involved the ordinary type of pin game consisting of a glass inclosed playing board elevated at an angle. Marbles are shot up the incline by pulling a spring plunger and the balls roll onto a field containing holes and studded with pins. Each hole bears a number which indicates the points won if a ball drops into it.

Argue Skill Against Chance.

During hearings before Judge Klarkowski, Attorney Edward C. Higgins, counsel for the operators, argued that the game is one of skill and brought in witnesses to back up his contention. One witness, a justice of the peace, told with a Scotch burr of plunking out merchandise certificates unfailingly three times a week. Nevertheless, the Scot and other pin game specialists developed tournament nerves and refused an offer by Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman to display their skill on a pin game outfit in the courtroom.

Defense witnesses, including several policemen, declared that years of playing the marble games had failed to give them any predictable skill. One policeman, who said he was "probably the third best rifle shot in the department," asserted he had played 4,000 games without learning control.

Basis of Owners' Suit.

After the injunction was denied yesterday, Attorney Higgins announced he would appeal the case to the State Supreme court. He contends that the city ordinance authorizing the police commissioner to determine whether a machine is a gambling device "is an arbitrary unconstitutional grant of power and therefore void."

Judge Klarkowski said: "The winner of the game, according to the evidence, is paid in merchandise certificates. It is very apparent that this is done only to circumvent the law."

"There is no evidence in the record," the opinion said, "to show . . . any abuse of authority."

Arturo de Peralta-Ramos, member of a wealthy and prominent Argentinian family, who was divorced Thursday in Reno by Millicent Rogers, daughter of the late Henry Huddleston Rogers, Standard Oil magnate, paused in Chicago yesterday. He arrived on a United Air Lines plane from Reno, and refused to be interviewed. He left for the east a short time later.

STRIKE GROWS IN NO. CHICAGO PLANT; 450 OUT

Less than a hundred employés of the Oakes Products company in North Chicago went to work on the late shift last night, the other 450 being on strike and picketing the plant. Four of the workers in an automobile broke through the picket line, and several of the strikers narrowly escaped injury. The strike began Thursday when 80 polishers and buffers walked out, protesting recent action of the company in installing automatic polishing machinery and replacing several polishers with unskilled labor. The original 80 were joined by 370 others yesterday.

SEEK FULL STORY OF GEM ROBBERY FRAMEUP TODAY

State Rushes Hearing on $35,000 Theft Hoax.

A public exposé of the facts in the fake $35,000 jewel robbery promoted last Sunday by Meyer Bogue, an ex-convict from Indiana, will be made today at a hearing before Judge Matthew D. Hartigan of the Felony court.

Usually this court is not open on Saturdays, but State's Attorney Courtney, professing to be anxious to have all sides of the complicated mystery aired, requested the special session for the purpose of arraigning Bogue and his four henchmen who are under arrest. All are to be charged with the robbery of Milton Jackson, a New York jewelry salesman.

Array of Witnesses.

Among those who are expected to testify at the hearing are Bogue and —possibly—his companions; Supervising Captain John Stege and other policemen who worked on the case; William Schlossman, head of the Jewelers' association, and Postal Inspector J. R. McWhorter. All these had important parts in the little drama arranged by Bogue.

One of the salient facts in the robbery is that Bogue, long a paid stool pigeon for the Indiana state authorities and later an underworld assistant to federal agents and Chicago policemen seeking John Dillinger after his escape from the Crown Point jail, had a job with Schlossman's organization. He was a special investigator with a salary of $50 a week.

How to Solve a Holdup.

Because he hadn't solved any robberies after some months he was about to be fired. So, according to his own confession, buttressed by a mass of evidence from other sources, Bogue planned a robbery so he could solve it and make a showing.

He persuaded James [Lefty] Brezak, paroled Indiana convict; Harry Malin, 1208 South 57th court, Cicero, and Patrick Sullivan, bartender in a saloon at 4210 Emerald avenue, to hold up Jackson. The part of the fifth man in the plot, Frank Pishaw, 4300 Ellis avenue, a clerk in a loop jewelry house, was to point out Jackson, the victim. Pishaw knew that Jackson and his porter, Joseph Raymond, carried valuable jewelry and that they made their rounds at regular times.

The Net Widens.

The robbery was accomplished successfully at Monroe street and Wabash avenue early Sunday morning. Pishaw pointed out Jackson to Bogue and Bogue pointed him out to the actual robbers.

Sunday night there was a gathering of Bogue, Schlossman, Capt. Stege and Inspector McWhorter in McWhorter's office. Bogue had the gems, and suggested that he trap a couple of jewelry fences with them. A plan was agreed on and the jewels were left in Inspector McWhorter's safe that night.

Bogue attempted to deal with fences on Monday without success. He tried again on Tuesday, and Meyer Gordon and Irving Hornstein, former jewelers, were arrested with him in a room at the Windermere hotel. They have since been released on writs of habeas corpus, unopposed by the state's attorney's office.

For Bogue: No Pass.

But Bogue was taken into custody. He had expected a "pass" to freedom. Not getting it, he began to talk. He named his henchmen and they were arrested. The state's attorney's police let it be known Wednesday night that they [not mentioning Capt. Stege] had smashed the robbery ring.

There was a change in attitude on Thursday and it was announced that State's Attorney Courtney was displeased with the stories told and with the police work in the case. It was brought out that Capt. Stege had not notified the detective bureau of what he knew until Monday and had not reported to the state's attorney's police until Tuesday.

Call Stege Unfair.

The captain, Mr. Courtney said yesterday, had not been "fair" in the matter. The state's attorney was also inclined to criticize the coöperation of Bogue with the police and the failure to catch any receivers. These factors had some importance, it was indicated, in the decision to hold the public hearing today.

Bogue, according to Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, declared that Schlossman and Capt. Stege knew that there was to be a robbery even before Jackson was held up. Capt. Stege and Schlossman indignantly denied this, asserting that the first they knew of the matter was when they were summoned to McWhorter's office late Sunday night.

They were told at that time, they said, that Bogue had persuaded the robbers to turn over the gems to him by assuring them he could get more for them than anybody else. Bogue did not then disclose the identity of his helpers in the holdup, and they were not arrested until after the seizure of the ex-convict and the ex-jewelers in the hotel.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for Mr. Courtney, early yesterday had his prisoners and the victims, Jackson and Raymond, reënact the holdup in Wabash avenue.

TRIBUNE PRIZES ARE GOING FAST; DEADLINE NEAR

Contest Ends at Midnight Tomorrow.

Business flourished with a December briskness in the second floor of Tribune Tower yesterday as children and adults, realizing that only two days are left in which to accumulate subscriptions and win prizes offered by THE TRIBUNE, hurried into the circulation department.

Shirley Temple dolls, twenty-two inches high, with big blue eyes and curly yellow hair, already have been presented to many boys and girls. So have streamlined American Flyer trains of gleaming aluminum, Nestor Johnson racing skates and large Brunswick pool tables—but the end is near!

At midnight tomorrow the prize offer expires. Subscriptions may be mailed in, or brought in personally, but if mailed the letter must be postmarked "before midnight Dec. 15."

The Deadline Is Final.

After midnight it is all over. Dolls, waiting for their first mothers, will go back on the stock shelves. Pool tables will remain boxed. Shining skates will miss the winter ice, and polished trains will never throb with electric current—unless subscriptions necessary to receive them are mailed before midnight.

Mrs. Mildred Scherffins, 1651 North Mobile avenue, was one of the contestants who came in yesterday to receive her award. With her were two round eyed little girls.

"I'm getting a Shirley Temple doll," Mrs. Scherffins observed proudly. "I got my five subscriptions and I had to have a doll. You see, I've got a Shirley myself," and she pointed to her own yellow haired, blue eyed daughter, who is 6.

"Now when is this offer up?" she demanded.

"Midnight, Sunday," came the answer.

Says She'll Be Back.

"Well," she replied, "I'll be back before then. You see," and she pointed to her other daughter, whose round brown eyes were staring out from a frame of dark curls. "There's Mary, and she's a Shirley fan, too. Yes, I have to have another doll. I'll be back all right."

Five subscriptions to THE DAILY TRIBUNE bring a Shirley Temple doll. Three bring a pair of ice skates. Eight bring a $15 Zephyr American Flyer electric train, and fifteen are required for a $36.25 completely equipped pool table.

The contest originally was planned to close on Dec. 1, but so many demands came in from boys, girls, men, and women that the time limit was extended until midnight, Dec. 15. But this time it really is going to stop!

One chubby 10 year old expressed his feeling concisely as, hugging the box containing an electric train, he exclaimed: "Gee! Why can't you have a contest every day?"

EX-CHIEF CLERK HUNTED IN QUIZ ON TAX FUND THEFTS

Implicated by Confession of County Employe.

State's attorney's police were searching last night for Edward J. Bamrick, 40 years old, former chief clerk of the tax redemption department in the county clerk's office, to question him concerning the confession of Harry Daugirda, a county employe, who has admitted taking $5,900 from the redemption fund.

Daugirda, who confessed that the $5,900 was lost betting on horse races, declared that he had loaned $800 of that amount to Bamrick, according to Assistant State's Attorney James A. Brown. Bamrick's last known address was 9616 Indiana avenue, but he moved from there several months ago.

County Clerk Michael J. Flynn said that Bamrick was discharged two months ago after complaints had been received that he was profiting personally by charging tax buyers and small municipalities for investigating and auditing their claims against the redemption fund.

Ran His Own Business.

The clerk's office is permitted to charge a nominal fee for this work, Flynn said, but Bamrick had been doing the work on his own time, after working hours, and had been pocketing whatever fee he received. Bamrick, who was an aviator during the war, had been employed in the clerk's office for 18 years.

Prosecutor Brown said that he would present evidence before the grand jury Monday and ask the indictment of Daugirda. Daugirda, who is held at the detective bureau lockup, was questioned again yesterday. He had been an employé of the county treasurer's office for five years, but had been assigned to the clerk's office.

The tax redemption fund has been prominent in investigations of the books of the clerk's office since the discovery of an alleged shortage of $414,129 in the accounts of Robert M. Sweitzer during the 24 years he was county clerk. About $341,504—the bulk of the alleged shortage—was traced to this fund—and the remainder was in interest accruing on the principal of the fund.

Clean-Up Instituted, Flynn Says.

Sweitzer was ousted as county treasurer when he failed to make good the alleged shortage. He was recently acquitted of a criminal charge of withholding the funds from Flynn, his successor as clerk. During the Sweitzer investigation representatives of small municipalities, to which the bulk of the redemption fund is due, asserted that they continually encountered difficulties when they attempted to claim their shares.

Clerk Flynn said last night that he has instituted a "clean-up" in the office since he took the position a year ago.

"We are working out a new system whereby we will make monthly allocations on the redemption fund," Flynn declared. "We can get away from the practice of charging a nominal fee for investigation of claims against the fund by having the local governments send in their own clerks. We will teach these clerks how to do the auditing."

TEACHERS GET FIRST HALF OF DECEMBER PAY

Friday the 13th was by no means an unlucky day for the 14,000 school teachers and administrative employés of the Chicago board of education. Nor for the 306 municipal employés of Oak Park.

The board of education met its mid-month pay roll of about $2,000,000, which was raised by the sale of 1936 tax anticipation warrants to the Continental Illinois National bank. Adding to the good news, James B. McCahey, president of the board, said that salaries for the last half of the month probably would be paid before Christmas.

Oak Park's workers were also paid for a half month. The pay day was unexpected. The village controler, T. R. Leth, said that money might be found for a second pay day before the holidays.

BIRDS ON DISPLAY AT SHOW

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

But Prize Songsters Are All Males.

Flutelike trilling with shrill crescendo, rich bass, and mellow bell rolls opened the fourth annual bird show sponsored by the Greater Chicago Cage Bird club yesterday in the Hotel Sherman. The arias were led by male roller canaries, and the harmony in the chorus was injected by their less specialized brothers, the "type" birds.

Seventy varieties of canaries, as well as 750 birds of other kinds, including wild birds, linnets, nightingales, parrots, parakeets, and macaws are on display, according to Art Fink, president of the club.

"There are 150,000,000 caged canaries in America today," Mr. Fink said. "Up to now, we've gone in for hybrid types developed from the "sports" or throwbacks of unusual marking to develop a strain of color and rarity. This year, though, more Americans have started training rollers, which is a much harder job."

"Rollers have to be trained with violins and flutes to sing their flawless notes. A trainer has to have four birds whose tones harmonize, and arrange them as a quartet with a tenor, bass, contralto, and soprano equivalent. Their cages are stacked on top of another, and the judges score their notes. To a good bird judge, fourteen notes, 'tours,' we call them, are distinguishable."

Birds from Germany and England have been entered in the competition. All colors but black will be arrayed to contrast with the dingy "original" canary female.

Selective breeding is supplanting color feeding, explained H. J. Morley, secretary-treasurer of the club. Color feeding is the practice of mixing tasteless red pepper with bird food, which richens the hue of their feathers—temporarily. Birds color-fed may lose one feather, and be disqualified when it grows back in its pale tint.

KARATZ DENIES BAIATA STORY OF INSURANCE PLOT

CRIMINAL COURT.

William Lorch and Clarence Kosich, robbery, both sentenced to life imprisonment under the habitual criminal act by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

John Jacesson, robbery, sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary under the habitual criminal act; Arthur Pederson, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; Raymond Paris, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Denis J. Normoyle.

Abraham Karatz, former St. Paul lawyer, took the witness stand in Judge Joseph Burke's Criminal court yesterday to deny previous testimony by Joseph Baiata that Karatz and others had conspired to gain control of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield in order to loot it of its assets. Karatz is on trial with Gustaf Lindquist, former insurance commissioner of Minnesota.

Baiata, ex-convict and former banker, is serving a prison term for conspiracy to embezzle $54,473 from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank with which to get control of the insurance company. David [Long Count] Barry, prize fight referee, is under a year's jail sentence for conspiracy to defraud the bank.

Karatz was the first defense witness. The state closed its case earlier in the day. It is expected that Lindquist will also testify in his own defense, and that the case will reach the jury next week.

BRITISH CABINET SHAKEN; PLEDGES TO EXPLAIN ACTS

Public Indignation Over Peace Plan Grows.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Assailed by the extreme right conservatives as well as by the Laborites and Liberals for its acceptance of the Laval-Hoare peace plan, Prime Minister Baldwin's government tonight sent out appeals to the public to suspend its judgment until the prime minister could offer more enlightenment in next week's parliamentary debate.

At that time the cabinet has agreed to offer explanations as to why such large concessions were offered Italy, the state branded as an aggressor by the league of nations.

Baldwin has said that if his lips were not sealed, he could make out such a case for himself that the opposition criticism would cease.

Claim Britain Feared Attack.

It was indicated that the explanation will be that the government became convinced that Italy was bent on treating the oil embargo as a military sanction and that it was found on further inquiry that other members of the league [meaning France] were not prepared to coöperate, leaving the brunt therefore to fall upon Britain.

The British, in other words, were convinved that Mussolini would go "mad dog" and attack their fleet in the Mediterranean if he was deprived of oil, and that the French would not help Britain.

But the publication of the peace terms has left the general public indignation here unabated. Sir Austen Chamberlain, former cabinet minister, Lord Cecil, and Prof. Gilbert Murray headed a delegation of the league of nations union which called on Baldwin today and protested against "selling out" Ethiopia. They urged the government to continue the policy of sanctions against Italy.

Demand For Sanctions Grows.

This demand that sanctions be applied until Il Duce is brought to book was also the keynote of protests in the opposition press and in the lobby of the house of commons, where there has been a split among Baldwin's own supporters over the cabinet's endorsement of the terms.

The Labor party will propose a vote of censure of the government and will meet Tuesday to decide on the terms of this motion. It will be presented at Thursday's commons debate, when Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, will be under fire.

With a broken nose said to have been incurred in an accident at his vacation site in Switzerland, but reported still able to skate, Hoare tonight was reported to be planning to return to London for the debate, though he had been ordered to take a month's rest by doctors.

Ready to "Face the Music."

Hoare, it was said tonight, is fully prepared to meet the storm of criticism. According to the Daily Telegraph, "he may think it fit to take the house into his confidence and tell them of the extent of the naval, military and air forces the league can be counted on to contribute for the protection of its covenant."

This seems to give a clear hint of how the Baldwin cabinet will wriggle out of its pinch.

Emperor Haile Selassie's wily reply putting the Hoare-Laval proposals up to the league assembly to decide whether they are worth acceptance caused a mild upset here, but it was said that the league council and not the full league assembly would be competent to deal with any representations the emperor wishes to make.

French Deputies Assail Laval.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Attacks upon Premier Laval for offering "a prize to aggressor" Italy broke out on the floor of the chamber of deputies today.

Pierre Cot, former minister of air and a member of Edouard Merriot's radical Socialist party, jumped up while the chamber was debating the budget to condemn the concessions to Premier Mussolini. It would be a dangerous precedent, he said, if France some day becomes Germany's "Ethiopia."

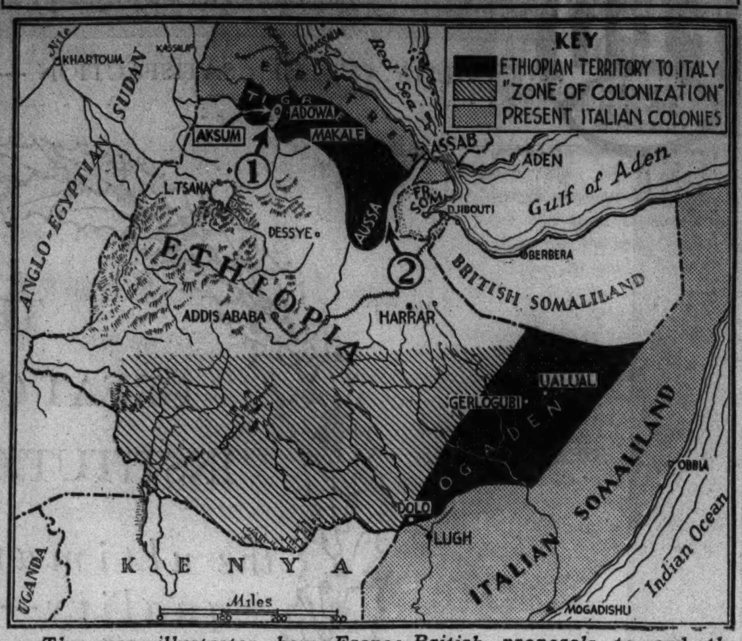
"France must stand firm with the league for collective security," said Cot, who asserted he was speaking in the name of his party. "We are confronted with a war of aggression which is not a colonial war, but a real crime against international law."

A communist attack followed Cot's. Gabriel Peri, Red deputy, shouted that Laval "has sabotaged the league." Noise was so great because of interruptions that the chair repeatedly demanded order.

RETURN OPEN MURDER VERDICT.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder by persons unknown yesterday in the inquest into the death of John Puccini, 52 years old, 2145 South Western avenue, who was found fatally injured in an areaway at 2340 West 22d street, Dec. 8.

How Powers Planned to Carve Up Ethiopia



The map illustrates how Franco-British proposals to end the Italian-Ethiopian war would operate. Under the scheme Mussolini would be given Tigre, Danakil, and Aussa provinces in the north and Ogaden province in the south, shown on the map in black. Ethiopia would be permitted to retain (1) the holy city of Aksum and a corridor leading to it, and (2) a corridor leading to the Italian seaport of Assab. In addition to the outright grant of territory, Mussolini would be given a "zone of colonization" (shaded area) where Italians would be given special rights.

Plan Gives Italy Huge Area and Ethiopia Outlet to Sea

TERRITORIAL EXCHANGES.

Cession to Italy of Eastern Tigre province, limited on the south by the River Gera, on the north by a line between Aksum and Adowa, giving Aksum to Ethiopia and Adawa to Italy.

Rectification of the frontier between Danakil province and Eritrea, leaving Aussa to the south and extending the Eritrean territory to give Ethiopia access to the sea.

Rectification of the frontier between Ogaden province and Italian Somaliland, starting with the point of intersection of the Ethiopian frontier with Kenya colony and with Italian Somaliland. A general line to the northwest from the Webbe Shibeli which would join the frontier of British Somaliland and the 45th meridian. The rights of the tribes of British Somaliland to the use of the wells will be preserved.

Ethiopia will reserve in absolute sovereignty an outlet to the sea. This outlet would appear best to be provided by cession, which Italy might consider as the port of Assab and a stretch of territory along the northern frontier of French Somaliland.

The governments of the United Kingdom and France will undertake to obtain from the Ethiopian government guarantees for the territory acquired by it and promises concerning the question of slavery and trafic in arms.

THE ZONE OF EXPANSION.

The governments of Great Britain and France will exert their influence at Addis Ababa and Geneva to cause the emperor to accept and to have the league of nations recognize the constitution in southern Ethiopia of a zone of expansion and colonization reserved to Italy.

The limits of this zone to the east would be rectified frontier between Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland to the north 8th parallel, to the west 35th meridian, and to the south frontiers between Ethiopia and Kenya.

Within this zone, which will form an integral part of Ethiopia, Italy would enjoy exclusive rights which might be administered by a privileged company or by some other analagous entity to which would be reserved under the provisions for the acquired rights of natives or foreigners, property rights over unoccupied lands and monopolies for the development of mines, forests, etc.

This entity would have the obligation of contributing to the economic development of the district and to devote part of its income to the expense of social welfare of the native population.

Provides for Aid by League.

The Ethiopians' administrative control in the zone would be exercised under the sovereignty of the emperor by agencies set up under a program of assistance established by the league of nations.

Italy, in these agencies, which would depend on one of the principal advisers established in connection with the central government, would play a preponderant but not an exclusive part.

The above named principal adviser, who could be of Italian nationality, should be for such affairs the substitute of the chief adviser delegated by the league of nations to the emperor. This person should not be a subject of one of the powers bordering on Ethiopia.

The agencies set up the program of assistants, both in the capital as well as in the zone, would consider as one of their essential duties the guarantee of security of Italian subjects and the free development of their enterprises.

The governments of the United Kingdom and France willingly undertake in this organization, the details of which should be elaborated by the league of nations, to safeguard fully the Italian interests in this region.

PARIS TERRORIZED AGAIN BY BOMBS IN MAIL; 3 HURT

PARIS, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The mysterious "three judges of hell," whose campaign of bomb terrorism alarmed Paris last year, revived their attack today with the dispatch of explosive packages in the mail.

Three postoffice employés were slightly injured when packages they were stamping exploded. Police found twelve similar packages, containing slips signed "Minos, Eaque, and Rhadamante, the three judges of hell."

The campaign of terrorism last year resulted in elaborate precautions being taken to guard the president and premier, as well as many business houses, including American firms. After extensive investigation, authorities said they were unable to find a single clew to the identity of the person or persons mailing the bombs. Many persons were injured by the bombs last year.

FACES EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE.

Arrested Thursday as he was trying to sell a truck load of potatoes, Charles Strothers, 36 years old, of St. Joseph, Mich., was turned over to the authorities of Berrien county, Michigan, yesterday for prosecution on a charge of embezzlement.

FRANCO-BRITISH PLOT TO WRECK LEAGUE CHARGED

of the committee of five, which the league decided provided fair terms for settlement. It is, therefore, a repudiation of the league's stand, or at least a climb down from it.

SECOND—It violates the principles of the league by halting, whether deliberately or not, punitive measures intended to bring aggression to an end.

The plan of the committee of five, which itself was pretty generous, was put forward before the act of aggression had taken place. Now any concession given beyond that, it is alleged, would represent a bonus to the aggressor for having defied the league.

Britain Is Called Culprit.

In general, the small powers consider that Britain is the real culprit. They did not expect anything else from Laval, but feel they have a personal grievance against England. If it had not been for assurances from Britain, most of them would never have embarked on sanctions. Now the British have got them out on a limb and they are stranded there.

This view is held by a majority of the small countries. It is not based upon casual impressions, but upon a canvas of the small countries taken for his government by a delegate of one of them.

As to the future course of events, two theories are current today. One is that sanctions are finished and that the league in its present form will shortly disappear, a quadrumvirate of the big powers taking its place. What becomes of Ethiopia is entirely up to the Italian army.

Suspect British-French Pact.

The basis for this theory is the belief that Hoare and Laval last month agreed that the league is a nuisance and collective security a superstition, and that Mussolini must be saved from ruin and European peace put on a realistic basis of big guns and secret diplomacy.

This philosophy could not be expounded publicly at the time owing to the British elections, but now that the Conservatives are firmly in the saddle, the time has come to act. According to this view, Hoare represents a majority of the British cabinet and Eden, supposing he is sincere, is a weak young man who allows himself to be used as a smoke screen and has proved very useful in that rôle.

As far as Hoare and Laval are concerned, THE TRIBUNE correspondent is able to state authoritatively that the foregoing analysis of their policy is substantially sound.

Second Theory Outlined.

But according to an opposite camp in Geneva, the theory breaks down at this point. This camp believes that Hoare is really trying to sabotage sanctions, but has overreached himself. In consequence British public opinion has rebelled and the cabinet, scared out of its wits, has hastily fallen back on Eden's league policy.

To avoid public disavowal in his speech to the council next week, Eden will allow the peace plan to be disavowed by the league, and then will step out in front again to push the oil embargo and stiffen the policy toward Italy generally.

Which view is correct will be apparent next week. If the council instead of rejecting the peace plan outright appoints a committee to study it, the sactions are finished and the league, too, in the opinion of most observers. If the plan is turned down flatly, Eden's apologists will have gained a point.

They will not be able to say they have won the day, however, until the council adopts a resolution laying down principles upon which a settlement can be considered, stipulating that sanctions must continue until the violation of the covenant has been brought to an end, regardless of any negotiations.

Whether the Ethiopian emperor will be successful in his attempt to shift the responsibility for killing the peace plan from his own shoulders to those of the league assembly is uncertain. Eduard Benes, Czech president of the assembly, tonight wired Haile Selassie that he considered it inadvisable to convoke the assembly until after the council had discussed the question.

In some quarters tonight there was a rather curious inclination to consider the Ethiopian note as a formal rejection of the plan instead of a maneuver to bring it before the assembly.

GERMANY ALSO NEEDS COLONIES, MUSSOLINI WARNS THE WORLD

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, warned the world today that Germany, like Italy and Japan, was another "unsatisfied people" needing expansion.

An editorial, which Il Duce either wrote or approved, recalled that Italy tried to include the third reich in European "collaboration" through a four power pact.

Since the league of nations has lost control over Germany and Japan, the editorial said, the Geneva body cannot solve the problem of "unsatisfied peoples"—a problem "that cannot be overcome without Italy."

IL DUCE STUDIES PLAN; MAY ASK AIDS FOR ADVICE

Italian Experts See Joker in Part of Scheme.

[Special to London Daily Telegraph and the Chicago Tribune.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 13.—Premier Mussolini, a spokesman for the Italian government said, is studying with the greatest care the Franco-British peace proposals, which were made public today.

It is believed in some well-informed quarters that Il Duce may wait until the Fascist grand council meets Wednesday before announcing his attitude. This will afford him an opportunity of hearing the views of the most important men in the Fascist hierarchy. They include Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to Great Britain; Italo Balbo, governor of Libya; Senator Federzoni, president of the senate and leading light of the nationalist wing of the party, and others.

Another well-informed source thinks Il Duce will not state his views until he has seen the reaction of the league of nations to the proposals. If that body pronounces against them, it would be useless for Italy to proceed further for the time being.

Demand "Fight to Finish."

The controled press shows a stubborn front. Various Fascist organizations are still passing resolutions to "hold out to the bitter end."

In the newspaper Giornale d'Italia, Sig. Gayda says that to be acceptable as a basis for discussion the proposals must be in line with the fundamental principles which guided Italian policy in East Africa. The plan must be thoroughly examined and certain elucidations will be required, he added, perhaps to be followed by negotiations. Meanwhile, it is impossible to say the situation has changed one way or another. Gayda reminds the nation that sanctions still are in force and that Italy will continue to defend herself as before.

Professional and business people express the opinion that a plan which guarantees security and expansion for this country ought to be acceptable. There is a general desire to return to normal business relations with the rest of Europe.

Schools Get Heat.

Mothers and families looking for happy signs found one today in the fact that elementary school rooms were heated for the first time this winter.

"Coal is not being hoarded any more; peace is near," they remarked joyfully.

Large dumps of scrap iron are lying in almost every yard. The Fascist party no longer collects these "anti-sanctionist contributions." This, too, is interpreted as a sign that war and sanctions are things of the past.

Bulletins from the war zone have grown laconic and uninteresting. There are no longer descriptions of battles in which the Askaris win great triumphs. One dispatch from an Italian correspondent described a scene in which he saw soldiers eating dead mules. Food supplies had not reached that particular outpost.

This detail made a deep impression. It brought home to the man in the street the difficulties with which the Italian armies must cope before they can advance far into Haile Selassie's territory, and the man in the street feels he has had enough war atmosphere already.

Question One Feature of Plan.

ROME, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Some Italian observers tonight looked dubiously at that part of the Franco-British peace plan which provided for a "zone of colonization" for Italy in Ethiopia.

The oil concession obtained from Emperor Haile Selassie by Francis J. Rickett, British promoter, appeared to cut the props from what on the face of it seemed to be the biggest prize in the plan. In this zone, running across Ethiopia south of Addis baba, Italy would be accorded all economic rights, "except" what already have been granted to others. Rickett's franchise, some commented, would seem to cover much of the prospective zone of influence.

Although the Rickett oil concession was relinquished by American oil interests [St[illegible]dard Oil] at the urging of the American state department, Emperor Haile Selassie recently said he was confident the original concessionnaires eventually would fulfill all its terms.

Urges Germany to Brand Cloistered Nuns as Traitors

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—The magazine Deutsche Aktion in its current issue demands a special government law branding the entry of monasteries by monks or nuns as "treachery to the German race." "Celibates must first prove their ability to bear children or defend their country before they can retire into monasteries," the magazine said.

RUSSIAN SCIENTISTS SLICE UP THE BRAIN OF LENIN FOR STUDY

MOSCOW, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Twenty-five thousand microscopic slices were made today of the brain of Nikolai Lenin, father of communism, for study by the Soviet Brain institute.

The institute, founded in 1927, has 180 adult, 300 child, and 470 animal brains under study. Results will be used for making a "brain atlas" to serve educational and scientific purposes as well as to throw more light on the behavior of unusual persons and types.

Lenin died in January, 1924. His embalmed body is still preserved in a mausoleum in Red square, where it is on view. The brain has been in the keeping of the institute since its founding.

It is customary for any leader or thinker to will his brain to the institute. The brain of Sergei Kiroff, secretary of the central executive committee of the Communist party who was assassinated a year ago, was given to the institue for study.

EGYPT DEMANDS BRITISH SIGN PACT OF INDEPENDENCE

Opens Drive for More Concessions.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 13.—The restoration by Great Britain of Egypt's 1923 constitution, which restores home rule to this country, is only the first step toward complete Egyptian independence. This was announced today by all parties united in the national front. It confirms British fears that the Egyptians, granted an inch, would immediately demand a mile.

The Egyptian claims, made in the form of a manifesto signed by leaders of all parties, were presented to Sir Miles Lampson, British high commissioner, by Nahas Pasha, leader of the Wafd [Nationalist] party.

Demand Britain Sign Treaty.

The most important demand is that Great Britain sign the Henderson treaty of 1930. This treaty was originally left unsigned because of Egyptian intransigence. It was negotiated by Nahas and the late Arthur Henderson, then British foreign secretary.

But if the Egyptians are now satisfied with that treaty, the British say the military clauses of it are "outdated" and will insist on their revision. The treaty provided for immediate cessation of British policing of the Suez canal zone and withdrawal of all troops in 20 years.

The second Egyptian demand is for abolition of capitulations [extraterritorial privileges]. The British say they are willing to grant concessions on this point, but capitulations enjoyed by ten other nations, including the United States, and Britain cannot coerce them.

Demand Egyptian Army.

The manifesto also claims the right of Egypt to maintain a standing army of any strength judged necessary. Abolition of British control over the department of public security is also demanded.

The last demand is the right for Egypt to enter the league of nations, from which it has been barred because of British opposition.

Yesterday's surprise coup by Premier Nessim Pasha in withdrawing his resignation at the last moment, was considered today as clever poker on the premier's part. He is conceded to have outwitted King Fuad, who had wanted to be rid of him. It is regarded as certain, however, that King Fuad is biding his time and that he will find a way to drop Nessim.

Demonstrations of noisy joy took place again today in Cairo. Further rioting is not expected until the Egyptians again become exasperated with British procrastination.

British Physician Ordered to Trial for Double Slaying

LANCASTER, England, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Dr. Buck Ruxton, 36, after a police court hearing lasting nearly three weeks, was committed to trial today on a charge of murdering his wife and their nursemaid. He pleaded not guilty. The dismembered bodies of Mrs. Ruxton, mother of three children, and the maid were found in a Scottish ravine known as "The Devil's Beeftub."

Ellsworth Rescue Vessel Prepares for Polar Voyage

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The Royal Research society ship, Discovery II., arrived today in preparation for a search for Lincoln Ellsworth, missing since Nov. 23 on an Antarctic flight with Herbert Hollick-Kenyon. The Discovery started outfitting for the voyage, on which it is to be dispatched next week. The ship will carry two airplanes, two pilots, and four mechanics.

JAPAN DECIDES TO MOVE LARGE ARMY INTO CHINA

Plans to Station Troops in Northern Area.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, China, Dec. 14 [Saturday].—Col. Seiichi Kita, chief of the China section of the Japanese war office, and Akira Muto of the war office's military affairs bureau last night declared that the Japanese army in North China should be strengthened and made second only to the Kwantung army garrisoned in Manchukuo.

These declarations marked the opening of the important military conference of Japanese staf officers here. They were followed by reports that Japanese troops from Manchukuo have entered Kalgan, capital of the province of Chahar. It is believed the Japanese will add Chahar to the demilitarized zone now ruled by the puppet régime headed by Yin Ju-keng.

Leaders Arrive from Tokio.

The conference of Japanese leaders began in Tientsin immediately upon the arrival of Col. Kita, Muto, and a number of assistants from Tokio. They were joined by Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the garrison here, and other staf officers.

Though the size of the foreign forces garrisoning North China railways is limited by the terms of the Boxer protocol, Muto said that Japan's position is defferent from that of American and European powers and, therefore, it is legitimate for Japan to station a larger force there.

Defending the Japanese air demonstrations above cities of North China Muto said these were justified by the terms of the Boxer protocol despite the absence of planes when the pact was signed in 1900.

Brings Secret Instructions.

Kita, who brought secret instructions from Tokio, said the new Hopei-Chahar autonomous council "would clear the atmosphere in North China so that Japan could establish economic coöperation."

"Therefore," he said, "Japan does not want North China involved in complications of the internal politics of the rest of the country, since they would handicap coördination activities between China, Japan, and Manchukuo."

During the conference hundreds of Chinese student delegates representing 14 universities, colleges, and middle schools eluded guards at Peiping and held a secret conference at which they perfected an organization to prepare for sustained resistance against Japan. They plan ultimate warfare between the two countries unless the Japanese withdraw their support autonomy movement in North China.

The students adopted three sets of resolutions. The first was directed at school authorities, and demanded permission to continue patriotic activities. The second was addressed to officials. It demanded the release of imprisoned Chinese, payment for cost of treating injuries and punishment of officials responsible for such acts. The third was addressed to the nation and urged students to unite and oppose the Hopei-Chahar autonomy council and any other form of autonomy "which is merely a screen behind which foreign imperialism quietly will take over the economic and political sovereignty of the nation."

Seek to Wipe Out Press Gag.

The students also appealed to the press to join the movement for the permanent eradication of censorship and the initiation of a determined struggle to "awaken the Chinese government to the urgent necessity of a national revolutionary war against Japanese imperialism."

Despite restrictions, delegates from student bodies elsewhere in the country are beginning to move to Peiping. The student council at Peiping has been deluged with telegrams from students pledging the support of the most active groups in Hankow and Canton.

Five thousand students in Canton yesterday demonstrated in the streets adjoining the foreign concessions and consulates on Shameen Island. They shouted "Down with Japanese imperialism; down with North China autonomists; resist invasion; save the country!" The Cantonese students also denounced Dictator Chian Kai-shek's failure to oppose the Japanese.

GERMANY SENTENCES DRAFT DODGER TO CELL FOR 4 MONTHS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—The first case of attempted evasion of military service under the new conscription law came before the Potsdam court today. Walter Schee, 20 years old, was sentenced to prison for four months. He was accused af falsifying his birth certificate to make himself two years older, with the hope of escaping military training.

The next enrolment of volunteers in the army will take place in October, 1936, the war office has announced. Men from 19 to 25 years old will be accepted. Young men born in the years from 1915 to 1918 will be accepted only if exceptionally qualified and prepared to serve longer than one year—up to twelve years.

The basis for the regulation of relationships between soldiers and their superiors was laid down by the supreme military court. It stresses the need for "unconditional respect and honor also when not on duty." The court further emphasizes that the honor of the soldier is one of the most precious possessions which he must defend and that this must be taken into consideration when he is compelled to act in self-defense.

ETHIOPIA CLAIMS 7 ITALIANS SLAIN ON NORTH FRONT

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Dec. 13.—(AP)—An official communique today reported the defeat of an Italian post near Deabu, north of Makale, by a strong Ethiopian patrol. Seven Italian soldiers were reported killed and an undetermined number wounded. The Italians fled, burning villages behind them, the communique said.

All Quiet, Italy Reports.

ROME, Dec. 13. — (AP) — Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander in chief of the Fascist forces in East Africa, today dispatched the shortest of the 70 communiques issued thus far in Italy's war with Ethiopia.

"The situation is unchanged on the entire fronts," he reported.

BRITISH STUN U.S. NAVY ENVOYS BY 'CHAT' WITH JAPS

London Starts Separate 2 Nation Talks.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—British officials, in what some observers said was a significant and unexpected recharting of Britain's course as host to the international naval conference, inaugurated separate two nation discussions among the powers tonight, conferring with the Japanese delegation.

The surprise conference was held in the foreign office while members of the American delegation were in the country for a rest, and the French were week-ending in Paris. Authoritative sources said the Americans were not informed of the development beforehand, and it was stated they were "unpleasantly surprised" when the news became known.

After the discussion between the British and Japanese officials, Japanese sources said the talk was "very frank, cordial and useful."

Maintains Equality Demand.

The British-Japanese talks came after Japan, despite challenges from ten delegations, maintained her demand for fleet equality, defending her thesis that only in this manner will security for all nations be guaranteed.

Vice Admiral Sir Ernle Chatfield, chief of naval staf, it was reported by reliable sources after the two power conference, said Japanese equality would mean British naval inferiority in the far east, where Britain has extremely important interests. This, he assertedly said, would be "an unacceptable situation."

At the general session the delegation from Tokio extended the scope of its demands and admitted the right of all nations to have equal navies—including its rival in the orient, soviet Russia.

This maneuver was accepted by delegates as a bid for the support of France and Italy.

The British and Americans, however, stood solidly in challenging the Japanese position. Both contended it was wholly inconsistent with what they called Japan's lesser degree of responsibilities in the world.

The Japanese met every argument with the contention that elimination of what they called offensive navies would make every nation free from the menace of aggression, regardless of responsibilities, commitments, larger coast lines, or vulnerability.

Davis Engages in Debate.

Norman H. Davis, head of the American delegation, engaged in friendly but active debate with Admiral Osami Nagano on the naval requirements of nations.

Challenging Davis' assertion that the United States, fronting on two great oceans had greater defense requirements, Admiral Nagano contended that it required only two days to move the American fleet through the Panama canal and six days to transfer it from one ocean to the other. He maintained that a drastic curtailment of what he termed offensive armament would eliminate all danger of an invasion.

STAVISKY JURORS WHO THREATENED STRIKE GET 400% PAY BOOST

PARIS, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Jurors trying the long drawn out Stavisky scandal case who threatened yesterday to strike for more pay got it today—a 400 per cent raise.

A decree by the minister of justice granted the weary jurors 50 francs [about $3.30] a day, instead of the 12½ francs, or 82½ cents they had been receiving.

The trial, in which there are 20 defendants, has been under way a month.

ROOSEVELT WILL ASK RENEWAL OF NEUTRALITY LAWS

Probably Will Request Broader Powers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today revealed he will ask for new neutrality legislation early in the next session of congress. He declined to discuss what form of legislation he will seek to replace the existing act, which expires Feb. 28, saying that he will whip a program into shape in the next two weeks.

Mr. Roosevelt said at his press conference he was not certain whether he would advance his request in his annual message to congress or in a special message. He said he was trying to find something to take the place of the expiring act and hoped to make a selection from several proposals advanced within two weeks.

Present Act a Compromise.

The present act, passed in the final minutes of the last session of congress, was a compromise measure. The state department had asked for the vesting of full discretionary power on embargoes against warring nations in the President. Conservative leaders held out against such a grant of authority with the result that the act limiting power was passed for a six months' period.

Under the act the President has placed an embargo on war materials to Italy and Ethiopia and sought by moral persuasion to discourage trade with the belligerent countries in raw materials which can be turned into implements of war. He also warned against travel on ships of the embattled countries, a warning operative only against Italy because Ethiopia has no seacoast, and therefore no merchant marine.

Seek More Powers.

The state department is dissatisfied with the inability of the government to exert tighter grip on trade. The department is proposing to broaden the power of the President and to permit him to envoke embargoes at his discretion rather than on both belligerents as provided under the present act.

Other proposals include a plan for establishing quota restrictions on shipments to belligerents, prohibition of loans, and the fixing of prices on war materials to prevent profiting on war. Mr. Roosevelt declined to say whether his proposal would include any provision on war profits.

Race Bets and 'Good Time' Blamed by Young Robber

Leo Narak, 18 years old, 6220 Woodlawn avenue, who has been identified in 34 chain store robberies, told Capt. James J. Fleming of Gresham police yesterday that he committed the robberies so he could bet on horse races and have a good time. His mania for betting started last June, he said, when he won $150. When his luck changed he started holding up stores and spent the money on betting and on girls, he said.

Propaganda of Drake Estate Promoters Is Told in Trial

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

President Roosevelt and the New Deal were vaguely mentioned in the Sir Francis Drake estate propaganda sent out by the promoters of the fraud in the fall of 1934 it was shown in evidence introduced yesterday in the trial of 41 defendants in the mail fraud case before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

About the only evidence, it appears, that the Drake estate people had to tie the President into their scheme was the fact that his first two initials, F. D., might be read as Francis Drake.

Keep Up Spirit of Investors.

This evidence began with the testimony of Hilmer Bloomquist, a farmer of Palm Grove, Ia., who identified letters which he had received from Delmar C. Short, so-called auditor of the Drake estate headquarters at 19 East Bellevue place, Chicago. These letters showed a consistent effort to keep up the spirit of the "donators" to the estate during the period when Oscar M. Hartzell, its chief promoter, was being tried and convicted at Sioux City, Ia.

A sample of Short's genius is given in the following letter to Frank and Carrie Daum, Colorado Springs, Colo., on Nov. 7, 1934:

"You have a right to know where your money is coming from. Your money was used to pay expenses; not one cent was invested in anything but the cost of collecting the trust fund. This trust fund was held by five trustees appointed by the English government and Mr. Hartzell got the assignment from the direct heir and this assignment was approved by the highest court in England Feb. 4, 1926.

World's Gold "Tied Up."

"Since then it has been in process of collection from 66 nations of the earth, which tied up 85 per cent of the world's gold. This is what caused the depression and nothing else, and said depression will not get better till this deal is finished and the gold released, no matter what they try and what you see in the papers to the contrary.

"You will not have the money by Christmas. We do, however, hope to finish this deal this year; then it will take three months to get the money to the donators.

"P. S.—I am enclosing a copy of a radio speech which I received from the Chicago secret service before it was broadcast on Nov. 7."

Bloomquist testified that he had heard from neighbors that such a speech had been broadcast. It was supposed to have been given by a mysterious "Mr. Barkedge."

Denies Speech on Radio.

Elvon Park, trafic manager for radio station WLW in Cincinnati, testified that no speech had been broadcast by a Mr. Barkedge.

The supposed radio broadcast was introduced by the government as an inclosure to letters sent out by Short, and a portion of it follows:

"Good afternoon, radio listeners:

"The New Deal is not what the majority of Americans think it is. It has to do far greater things than to put people back to work. Let me say that the AAA and the CCC are only surface varnish to cover up the meaning of the New Deal. The New Deal is sometimes spoken of as F. D., or Franklin's Deal. What I mean, this new sect of people who probably call themselves F. D. or F. D. E., are indeed the lucky people of the earth. Let me be the first to congratulate you listeners who are New Dealers in this old sense."

150,000 RESERVE FOR NAVY IS AIM OF ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—The administration is considering plans to raise the strength of the naval reserve forces to about 150,000, compared with the present total of 20,000 to 25,000, President Roosevelt made known today.

No definite steps toward such an increase have been taken and it is not considered likely that they will materialize in the near future, because of the disinclination of the administration to add new expenditures to the budget for the next fiscal year, but Mr. Roosevelt emphasized a desire to make the naval reserve a really effective force instead of a "paper" force, as it is at this time.

Not only would the enlisted personnel be increased by including in it virtually all persons with naval experience, he indicated, but inducements in the way of honors comparable to those bestowed by the army would be offered to highly skilled professional and technical men.

Lithuania Second Nation to Default on War Debt

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Lithuania today became the second nation to default on its Dec. 15 war debt payment to the United States.

TWO COUPLES DIVORCED; NEW WEDDING NEAR

From two divorces granted yesterday by Superior Judge Joseph Sabath there bloomed a new romance. First came Mrs. Mona Baldwin, 25 years old, 7007 South Green street, who testified under questioning of her attorney, Victor Frohlich, that her husband, Charles, 28 years old, had struck her on several occasions. She was awarded a decree. Then Rocco Cherullo, 28 years old, 2042 South Grove street, Blue Island, also represented by Attorney Frohlich, took the stand and told the court that his wife, Margaret, had deserted him in 1931. Mrs. Baldwin was a corroborating witness for Cherullo. Cherullo, too, was granted a divorce. After court Attorney Frohlich said that Cherullo and Mrs. Baldwin would be married within a few days.

PRESIDENT TAKES HAND IN QUIZ OF WASHINGTON FIRE

Half Million Damage in New Building.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today took a hand in the investigation into the fire in the new 11 million dollar postoffice building early this morning. Forty firemen were overcome by smoke in a three hour fight against the blaze.

At his press conference the President expressed astonishment that the District of Columbia fire department has no authority to inspect federal buildings and at the statement of Fire Chief Charles E. Schrom describing conditions in Postmaster General Farley's building as constituting the worst possible fire hazards. Mr. Roosevelt recommended regular inspections of government structures by the fire department.

Blame Heat from Lamp.

The fire was believed to have been started by the igniting of papers in an open file from the heat of a 100 watt electric lamp. Chief Schrom said that when the building was erected he told contractors and federal officials that it was dangerous to have open files in a room without windows or ventilation. He added that had the building been required to meet district inspection laws there would have been no fire.

Schrom said that other federal buildings are filled with similar fire hazards. He pointed out that the doors of the postoffice building as well as those of many other federal buildings open inward instead of outward as required by the district code.

One hundred firemen pulled hose through the building to play water on the files. Almost half of the force was overcome by smoke because the file room was without ventilation. These men were hurried to hospitals as new calls were sounded.

Half Million Damage.

The fire chief estimated the damage at about $75,000. Postoffice officials said the damage wrought by the water might bring its total cost to $500,000.

Postmaster General Farley's office escaped uninjured, but his spacious reception room—said to be the most magnificent in America, was flooded. The mahogany paneled ceiling and walls were soaked. A marble stairway leading to the office was so drenched that officials said they believed it to be unsafe.

New York Sued for $22,000 Invested for Boy and Lost

New York, Dec. 13.—[Special.]—The $22,000 which New York City invested and lost for Nello Nepola, crippled minor, may turn into a $22,000,000 liability and a new menace to the city's finances, it developed today.

This possibility came out during arguments before the appellate division of the State Supreme court on a suit for recovery of the Nepola boy's money filed by Charles Winkelman, attorney.

By agreement with the corporation counsel on stipulation of facts the test case was taken directly to the higher court without any lower court decision.

Act Almost Forgotten.

Mr. Winkelman sued to recover from the city under an almost forgotten law passed in 1908, which reads: "The City of New York . . . shall be responsible for all funds or moneys deposited with the chamberlain by virtue of a judgment, decree, or order of any court of record . . . and an action to recover any loss . . . may be brought against the city by any party aggrieved. . . ."

Robert C. Rand, assistant corporation counsel, told the five justices sitting in the case that if the Nepola boy were allowed to recover under the 1908 act, the way would be opened for more than 34,000 similar suits involving $22,000,000.

Mr. Rand pleaded that the city already had a $5,000,000 deficit, and asked what would happen if another $22,000,000 burden were added.

He pointed out that both he and the justices themselves were city employés, paid out of city funds, and suggested that if the 1908 act were upheld salaries might not be forthcoming. He said there would be no way for the city to pay out $22,000,000 in damages without entirely new forms of taxation.

The boy lost his right leg after being run over by an automobile. His family sued the driver and four years after the accident won $37,000 damages. Of that sum $15,000 went to attorneys in fees, and because the boy was still under 21, the remaining $22,000 was turned over to the city to be invested for him until he reached legal age.

Unable to Get Money.

Charles A. Buckley, then city chamberlain, invested the $22,000 in a 5½ per cent guaranteed first mortgage certificate issued by the State Title and Mortgage company. The boy came of age, needed money for his education, and applied to the city for his money, but he learned that the State Title and Mortgage company, along with many others in which similar funds of minors and incompetents had been invested, was in process of "rehabilitation."

Said Father Knickerbocker to the boy, in effect: "That mortgage I bought for you did not turn out so well. I'm sorry to tell you this. Eventually it may pay 100 cents on the dollar, but at present the money you entrusted to me is tied up indefinitly. My hands are practically tied."

Young Nepola's mother went to the city hall April 5 and said some heated things to Mayor La Guardia and to the present city chamberlain, A. A. Berle Jr. With that Father Knickerbocker dug down in his pockets and found $500 for the boy.

That's the way things stood until Mr. Winkelman got busy. He said today that he had taken the case without fee, regardless of the outcome.

COURT PONDERS DODGE SUIT ON 6 MILLION TRUST

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice McCook reserved decision today on a motion by the Detroit Trust company and others to dismiss a suit brought by Mrs. Muriel Sisman Dodge and her two children for a declaratory judgment defining their rights in a 6 million dollar trust fund.

HERE ARE THINGS THAT HAPPEN ON FRIDAY THE 13TH

One Man Stays Home—by Experience.

CLIFTON, N. J.—(AP)—Harry Swan, upholsterer, wouldn't leave the house today because it was Friday the 13th. Not that he is superstitious. But these things have happened to him on the 13th of the month in other years:

Two years old, fell against a hot stove. Retains scars.

Eight years, toes crushed by a trolley car.

Nineteen, knocked down by a railroad train.

Twenty-five, two motorcycle accidents.

Three years ago a son, Benjamin, 14, was killed on the 13th.

He is 39. Divide his age by 3, he says, and you get 13.

HOMER CITY, Pa.—(AP)—Some 1,200 residents lined up at a cashier's window and received $55,000—15 per cent of their deposits—tied up for months in the closed National Bank of Homer City.

WHEELING, W. Va.—(AP)—The clock tolled midnight, and 13 mirrors crashed to the floor in the homes of 13 Wheeling men. It is the ritual of the Anti-Superstition society.

President Edward McKee said:

"On my orders every true member shattered a mirror at midnight."

McKee said his luck is getting better every day.

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—A strange story of superstition ended today with the burial of Mrs. Louise Boyce. She married Thomas Boyce June 13, 1924, in cell 13 of the old British convict ship Success. They defied all the bogies. Mirrors were broken. The bride carried a black cat. Thirteen favors were given the 13 guests. Subsequently Boyce was jailed thrice—once for beating his wife. She was arrested twice. The union ended in a divorce.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill.—[Special.]—Helen Just was 13 today. The 13 pupils of her class at St. Mary's parochial school held a surprise party for her, played 13 games and gave her 13 presents.

ROCKFORD, Ill.—[Special.]—Thirteen guests helped Helen and Harriet Peterson, twins, celebrate their 13th birthday today. There are 13 letters in the one twin's name and 13 in her mother's name. An older sister was born on Friday the 13th.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.—[Special.]—Orville Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thomas of Normal, who has 13 letters in his name, observed his 13th birthday anniversary today.

EUGENE, Ore.—(AP)—Dorman Alford celebrated his 13th birthday on this Friday the 13th. He has one sister whose birthday also falls on the 13th. A grandfather, A. A. Alford, of Harrisburg, is a thirteenth child.

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—A son was born today to Mr. and Mrs. William Martinson of Madison. Their first son, Donald William Martinson, was born on Friday, July 13, 1934.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—(AP)—Helen Mack, motion picture actress, considers the 13th of any month a lucky day. She was born Nov. 13, 1913, and married Feb. 13, 1935. This morning she reported finding her wedding ring, lost 13 weeks ago, in the toe of a seldom worn slipper.

NORTH EAST, Md.—(AP)—Twin boys were born on this Friday the 13th to Mrs. George T. Culley, 36, and brought to 13 the number of children to which she has given birth.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y.—(AP)—John Collins, married to Anna Downey in jail last Wednesday, was sentenced to the electric chair for murder.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Lily Pons—she was born on April 13—entertained 13 friends at a "black cat" reception.

JOLIET TO FREE 70 ON CHRISTMAS PAROLES TODAY

Fifty-five inmates of the state penitentiaries at Stateville and Joliet, paroled in advance of the Christmas holidays, will leave Joliet in a bus at 8 a. m. today for Chicago. Fifteen or twenty others will be released on parole to other places.

Warden Joseph E. Ragen said that it was customary to parole about this number annually. Each parolee is given $10, a suit of clothes, an overcoat, and a pair of shoes.

Those who come to Chicago will be delivered first at the office of George Scully, state parole agent, in the Transportation building, where their arrangements for sponsorship will be approved.

Fireman No. 1313 Receives Bad News on Friday, 13th

Friday, the thirteenth, yesterday, was an unfortunate day for Clyde Payne, 35 years old, colored, 3606 South State street, a city fireman whose badge is numbered 1313. He was held to the grand jury on a charge of murder by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Leona Henry, 30 years old, colored, 4835 Langley avenue, who was found fatally wounded Thursday night in the rear of 3635 South Dearborn street.

GET LICENSE ON FRIDAY THE 13TH

Announcer Quin Ryan of W-G-N (left) interviewing Gunnar Hedlund and Miss Doris E. Seablom at the county building yesterday when they secured marriage license on Friday, the thirteenth. The girl was born on Friday, Sept. 13, 1912. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Thirteen is a lucky number for Miss Doris E. Seablom, 23 years old, 1525 Carmen avenue, and it was by her planning that she and her fiance, Gunnar Hedlung, 5845 Magnolia avenue, got their marriage license yesterday—Friday the 13th—in the bureau at the county building. They received the thirteenth license issued during the day.

Interviewed by Quin Ryan on W-G-N's weekly broadcast from the license bureau, Miss Seablom said that her parents were married Dec. 13, 1911—exactly 24 years ago—and that she was born on Friday, Sept. 13, 1912. She was baptized Dec. 13, 1912, her parents' first wedding anniversary.

Her first insurance policy was written Oct. 13, 1913, Miss Seablom said, and her engagement was announced at her birthday party, Sept. 13, 1934, in the presence of 13 guests. She has lived thirteen years at her present address. There are thirteen letters in her name, including her middle initial. Her fiance has 13 letters in his name. And if that isn't enough to banish superstition, Miss Seablom said there will be 13 letters in the names of the best man and the flower girl when she is married next Feb. 1.

KELLOGG FLAYS EMBARGOES ON WAR MATERIALS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, co-author of the Kellogg-Briand pact, and winner of the Nobel peace prize, today slashed at proposals to broaden the American neutrality policy to include embargoes on war materials, such as oil, iron, and steel.

Speaking a short time after President Roosevelt had said new neutrality legislation would be sought in the approaching congress, Kellogg said:

"I don't see any necessity for any further legislation on the neutrality question at all.

"The United States can maintain peace so far as its influence is concerned without any additional legislation. I don't believe in interfering with our legitimate commerce any more than is necessary. Such action is likely to increase the causes of war rather than to decrease them."

AUTO MIGRATION TO SOUTH BEGINS; SEE RECORD YEAR

Motorists on Way Earlier than Last Year.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—The annual migration of motorists southward is under way. THE TRIBUNE roadster in a drive here from Evansville, Ind., today passed no less than a dozen Chicagoland cars, all packed with baggage except two that were pulling tourist trailers.

The toll collector on the Evansville-Henderson bridge said that southern travel started earlier this year than last. Howard E. Baughman, president of the Nashville Hotel Men's association, reported that the early winter tourist business is even greater than in the boom era. The peak of the movement southward will be reached right after the midwinter holidays and, from all indications, it will be a record breaker.

Temperature Near Freezing.

It was cold when Dixie was entered this morning. The sun, a ball of red on the eastern horizon as the Ohio river was crossed, sparkled above a frosted countryside. The thermometer was at about freezing, and so were colored and white farmers with caps over ears and sacks over feet huddled on wagons loaded with tobacco and pulled by furry mules.

These mules, flapping their ears with each deliberate step, are a motoring hazard to which Chicagoans are not accustomed. They may be encountered just over the crown of a hill or around a bend. When overtaken at the top of a grade, the farmers have not been educated to signal whether the right of way is clear for the car to pass.

Highways Vastly Improved.

U. S. 41 and 41E through Kentucky has been vastly improved in the last few years. Most of the bumpy bituminous macadam has been replaced by high speed concrete. U. S. 41 markers can be picked up in Chicago's Grant park.

In Tennessee there were traces of winter on a countryside distinctly southern. There are monuments to confederate veterans in town squares. Board or log cabins of tenant farmers lack paint. There are large rural mansions with two or more fireplace chimneys, some well kept homes of today's gentry and some dilapitated relics of pre-civil war grandeur.

Near Springfield, Tenn., which advertises that it paid $3,280,000 to tobacco growers last season, there were patches of snow in the wooded hills. The woods include cedar Christmas trees. A filling station attendant said it snowed "right smart" there yesterday.

Many Pause at Nashville.

Nashville, romantic old capital on the Cumberland river, is 465 miles from Chicago and an even 1,000 miles from Miami, Fla. Although most tourists are in too big a hurry to reach Florida's sunshine, some pause here to visit the Hermitage, the home of Andrew Jackson, preserved as it was when he died in 1845, and the Parthenon, which is said to be the only authentic reproduction of the Grecian architectural masterpiece. The TRIBUNE roadster is hurrying to Florida.

MORGAN NIECE, AUTHOR RETURN FROM RHODESIA

New York, Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mabel Saterlee Ingalls, niece of J. P. Morgan, and Mrs. Margaret Carson Hubbard, author, returned aboard the liner Europa this evening, hopeful that they would obtain a good price for a love drama motion picture which they produced during a ten weeks' stay in northern Rhodesia.

Since their departure last June from New York they have traveled about 15,000 miles by ships, motor lorries, walking, wading, riding, and airplane. Mrs. Hubbard "pooh-poohed" the rumor that they had difficulty traveling in native canoes in crocodile infested rivers. The nearest a hippopotamus came to their craft was about three feet, she said.

"Women are more than safe going through that territory—too safe," Mrs. Ingalls said.

Suggests "Whipping Post" if Speeders Can't Pay

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 13.—(AP)—City Judge R. I. Moore today suggested a "whipping post" for speeders unable to pay fines.

New Bids Are Necessary; "Rushing" Blamed.

Charges of "red tape" and "too much rushing" were voiced by building contractors in Elgin yesterday as Public Works administration officials here notified State Architect C. Herrick Hammond to re-advertise for bids on the construction of six buildings at the Elgin State hospital. Re-advertising was made necessary because fewer than the required three bids on each proposal—in some cases none at all—were submitted by contractors.

Only two Elgin contractors submitted bids. O. F. Juby of Juby Brothers company, one of the half dozen Elgin contractors who did not seek the PWA contracts, was asked to explain this indifference toward possible business.

"There's so much red tape involved that we don't care to bid," he said.

"To Much Rushing" Blamed.

Harry A. Leach, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Hydraulic Stone and Construction company, said there had been "too much rushing," with the result that his firm was unable to get its bid in on time.

"Plans dated Nov. 9 were received by us Nov. 23, and it was necessary for our bids to be on file in Springfield by Dec. 4," Mr. Leach said. "We should have had three times as long to do the work necessary on preparation of bids—getting estimates from subcontractors, supply firms, and all that.

"We tried anyway, and somehow succeeded in getting our bids in the mail Dec. 3, but they weren't received in Springfield until Dec. 5—too late to be considered."

State Director Carl H. Bauer of the PWA admitted that it was often necessary to re-advertise for bids because too few were received to allow an award to be made.

"Back Yard Methods."

"Many contractors won't go to the trouble of providing insurance and a performance bond," Mr. Bauer said. "A lot of them are 'back yard' contractors who aren't used to doing work for governmental agencies."

Mr. Bauer issued a report yesterday showing that PWA has made grants totaling $16,716,954 and loans totaling $3,230,400 for 214 Illinois projects. With the 55 per cent of the cost supplied by project sponsors [local governmental agencies] this means a total of $38,000,000 in non-federal public works.

On Dec. 7 PWA projects were providing direct employment for 6,908 men, of whom 4,361 were working in Cook county. All but 583 of these were employed on sanitary district projects.

More than 30,000 men will be at work on PWA projects next spring, Director Bauer said.

GIRL WHO FLED INDIANA PARENTS GETS NEW HOME

Eva Montville, 19 years old, who hitch-hiked to Chicago from her home in Hobart, Ind., because, she said, her mother had abused her, found a new home yesterday. The girl was arraigned during the day before Judge Thomas A. Green in the South Chicago court after she had been found Wednesday sleeping in a doorway on the south side. Joseph Friedman, 57 years old, 1561 Elmwood street, Des Plaines, and his wife, Gussie, appeared at the hearing and said they were interested in the girl and wished to give her a home and an education. Eva eagerly accepted the offer and the disorderly conduct charge against her was dismissed. Her father, Peter Montville, has assured Judge Green in a long distance telephone conversation Thursday that he would approve any action the court took for the girl's welfare.

WPA to Open Boarding School to Train Girls for Leadership

The first girls' boarding school to be established here by the government will be opened within a few weeks at 5123 South Park way under the Works Progress administration, it was learned yesterday. About 130 girls between the ages of 16 and 25 will be selected from relief and WPA families throughout the state to take three months residence courses in "community leadership."

It will not be a strictly cloistered existence for the girls, according to Harry Fultz, head of WPA educational projects. The students will make "educational tours" of the city, sometimes free from any supervision. More than a score of teachers will reside at the school, however. Miss Katharine Knight will be director of the project, which will be quartered in the Chicago Orphanage building, now under lease to the relief commission.

Various Subjects to Be Studied.

To fit themselves as "community leaders" the girls will study such subjects as health education, home economics, handicrafts, and group dramatics. In addition they will be given practice work in leading group activities.

Under the heading of "health and physical education" there will be group games, folk dancing, interpretive dancing, and personal and community hygiene. The home economics course will include care of the home, care of children, first aid, and "simple aids to beautification of the home."

On the cultural side there will be music, comprising choral singing, study of American folk songs, and song leading. There will be study of formal and creative dramatics, with emphasis upon the production of pageants.

Wood Carving on Program.

Basketry, pottery making, weaving, and soap and wood carving will be taken up in the handicrafts classes.

Applicants for the course must have two years of high school background, must pass a physical examination, and "show earnest desire to profit from the training."

"The training will make available to communities girls and young women trained to direct recreational activities for children and adults," Mr. Fultz declared. "Many communities, especially in rural areas, now have no such leaders available."

POLICE STATION'S NEW SITE GIVES FLOOD A SURPRISE

Arthur Flood, 36 years old, 4340 Kenmore avenue, who has a police record dating back twenty years, tries to keep as far away from police stations as possible. Imagine his surprise last night when he was arrested right in front of a police station at 5250 Broadway. Sergt. Daniel Bennett, who recalled arresting Flood ten years ago for stealing ten automobiles, made the arrest.

Taken inside, Flood wanted to know what police station it was. He didn't know of any precinct station thereabouts. Police explained the Summerdale station's temporary quarters were there until the old building at 1940 Foster avenue was torn away and a new one constructed. Flood is held as a suspect.

Student Stabbed When He Finds Prowler in Flat

Edward Dwyer, 19 years old, a senior in the De La Salle institute, was stabbed twice directly below the heart last night by a Negro whom he discovered in a vacant flat in the building at 5632 South La Salle street, where he resides. The colored man escaped. Dwyer was taken to St. Bernard's hospital.

Catholic Vicar Sentenced to Prison as Foe of Nazi Rule

SEIGEN, Germany, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Vicar Rupieper of the Roman Catholic church was sentenced to four years' imprisonment today on a charge of subversive activities against the Nazi government.

DEMOCRATS' RULE IS DENOUNCED AS RULE OF DESPOTS

Chauncey McCormick was the principal speaker at the Gen. Pulaski Republican round table meeting in the Gold room of the Brevoort hotel yesterday.

He denounced the national Democratic organization as an agency of oppression and despotism. "American citizens of Polish origin have a high regard for the principles of Democratic government, but the New Deal policies are not Democratic and are not American," he declared.

Attorney Lawrence F. Zygmunt also was a speaker at the luncheon, which was presided over by Frank Peska, Thirty-fifth ward committeeman.

RAILWAY COACH ROLLED 13 MILES TO BE A CHURCH

An unused passenger coach donated by the Rock Island railroad arrived yesterday on the Lincoln estate, a subdivision a mile east of Frankfort, in Will county, where it will serve as a Roman Catholic church. The coach was accepted by members of St. John's Catholic parish in Joliet and was transported on rollers thirteen miles to the Lincoln estate. The fifteen Catholic families on the estate have never had a church and have held services in a private home. The coach is 60 feet long and can accommodate seventy-two persons. It will be remodeled for services within three weeks.

MOTION FOR NEW PERJURY TRIAL FILED BY NORRIS

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 13.—(AP)—"Grocer" George A. Norris of Alva, Okla., today filed a motion for a new trial on the perjury indictment on which a federal District court jury convicted him last night.

GEORGE A. NORRIS.

W. E. Shuman of North Platte, Neb., chief defense counsel, said the motion which charges 20 errors, "is the initial step in taking an appeal which will be perfected and the case carried to the United States Supreme court, if arrangements can be made to fit the costs and expenses."

The 36 year old former Broken Bow, Neb., grocer was found guilty last night of perjuring himself before a senate committee.

PRIZE OFFER MADE IN POTATO PROTEST PLANTING CONTEST

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—The potato protest planters, whose far flung membership is pledged to raise potatoes in their back or front yards as a protest against the AAA and the potato control law, are offering a prize for the largest potato grown in a P. P. P. patch.

Mrs. Walter M. Newkirk of Radnor, a suburb, prominent socially, organized the P. P. P. last week by sending letters to persons all over the country. She announced today the judges in the potato contest would be the school of horticulture at Ambler, near here.

An apartment house dweller wrote he would do what he can "on the fire escape," but would prefer membership through abstaining from eating potatoes.

HELD TO JURY AS CHURCH THIEF.

NEEDY RUN OWN 'SOCIAL WORK' IN CHURCH VENTURE

No Experts to "Guide" Them; All Take Part.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

A social service center without professional social workers, without "clients," without any one to tell the "worthy poor" how to run their lives—such is the picture presented by the community activities of St. Luke's Episcopal church, at 741 South Western avenue.

On a budget which barely permits payment of a pastor's salary and the maintenance of the building, the church has a dozen organizations, both religious and nonsectarian in nature, the latter in the majority. The neighborhood is one which has been doubly hit—by the depression and by the population movement away from the center of the city which has left the so-called blighted areas in its wake.

Most of the members of the church are white collar workers, whose income has been severely cut in the last six years, or building tradesmen, who have suffered even worse. Many of the families have had a hard struggle to keep off relief, and some have had to give in.

Pastor Knows Their Woes.

The Rev. Albert E. Selcer, their pastor, can tell of the struggles some of them have had—of the jobless building mechanics who gave their time to repair the church when there wasn't enough in the larder at home to furnish them a noonday lunch, and of the girl who wore her Girl Scout uniform to Easter communion because it was the best dress she had.

The church's whole community program, which is nonsectarian and separate from religious activities, has been planned to help the people who use the community center maintain their sense of American independence in strenuous economic times, the pastor explained. Thus there are no paid social workers, not only because there is no money to pay them, it was made clear, but because they are neither needed nor wanted. The people furnish their own leadership. And there being no doler-out of charity to please, they take part in the social activities because they have a good time.

Here's a Typical Scene.

Last evening presented a typical week night scene at the church. In the meeting hall members of the men's club were busy putting up decorations for the Christmas party they are going to give for seventy children. They took time off for a pinochle game.

In the church proper a rehersal was going on for the mystery play which is to be presented on Christmas eve. That is a field in which the Rev. Mr. Selcer is an authority. He was director of drama groups for Insull employés during the palmy days of the utility empire. The play which he has dug out of university archives and other sources is, he says, one of the earliest of the mystery plays.

Junior Group Gives Play.

The Rev. Mr. Selcer took time off from his rehersal to describe some of the other community activities which the people of St. Luke's carry on. The Guild Hall players are his particular hobby. They have a junior group, which opened their season recently with a clown play.

There is a Fortnightly club, which carries on social affairs for young people. The counselors, the Rev. Mr. Selcer said, are the two youngest married couples in the church, adding that he had been careful to have no damper put on the younger spirits by sweet but determined ladies of 50.

The center also has one of the most active Girl Scout troops in the city, a Boy Scout troop, more recently organized, its men's club, and a social club for women.

TAVERN PATRON HITS BARTENDER; SHOT TO DEATH

Valentine Pipp, 35 years old, 748 North Dearborn street, was shot and killed last night in view of twenty patrons, both men and women, in the Coy inn, a tavern at 536 North Clark street. He was shot by Joseph [Patty] Lispie, 35 years old, 15 West Erie street, a bartender.

Witnesses told Assistant State's Attorney Richard De Vine that Pipp had been drinking all evening. After a quarrel with his wife in front of the tavern he went inside and was said to have tried to pick a quarrel with Lispie. Finally he left and returned with a two foot length of iron pipe with which he slugged the bartender. Lispie then shot him in the heart, killing him instantly. East Chicago avenue police held Lispie.

Gov. Horner Opposes Tapping of General Fund for Relief

Gov. Horner indicated last night that he does not favor a suggestion that the state turn to its $17,000,000 general fund to make up the monthly deficiency of $3,000,000 for relief during the first quarter of 1936. The suggestion was made by Robert J. Dunham, state head of the federal Works Progress administration and a member of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

"We figure our budget is balanced, just the way it is, until next July 1," the governor said in regard to Mr. Dunham's proposal. "I don't propose to have that broken up."

Special Session Needed.

A second special session of the legislature, continuing the present special session, would be needed to divert between $9,000,000 and $12,000,000 from the general fund for relief use, since all money in the fund has been earmarked for other purposes. But this course was not among the "several possibilities" Gov. Horner mentioned when he was asked how he proposed to meet the situation.

"Well, there are several possibilities," he said. "There is Washington, and then there are the counties."

Throughout the day and evening the governer vainly sought to get a telephone call through to Washington to Harry Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator and national WPA chief.

Faint Hope of U. S. Aid.

Opinion here was that the desired conversation would avail him nothing, since officially the federal relief organization is being liquidated, and WPA contends it is now carrying out all its promises.

By "the counties" the governor indicated that these local governmental units might be asked to carry a substantial part of the relief burden after Jan. 1, when 130,000 families must be supported in Illinois without the aid of federal funds. Last spring, during a crisis in relief finances, townships and counties gave fragmentary assistance to tide relief families over.

Gap of $3,000,000 to Fill.

Chairman John C. Martin of the IERC said he could add nothing to the governor's remarks. He repeated that some way must be found to close the gap between $2,000,000 in available state relief funds and $5,000,000 in monthly requirements.

2 ARMY FLYERS KILLED; ONE HITS A FREIGHT TRAIN

Selfridge Field, Mich., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Flying Cadet Maxwell H. Crowell, 22, was killed this afternoon when his airplane, emerging from a fog bank, struck a Grand Trunk freight train near here.

Major Falls to Death.

Parris Island, S. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—An army flyer identified as Maj. Arthur K. Ladd of Langley Field, Va., was killed in the wreck of his single seater fighting plane, near Dale, a tiny hamlet, today.

Maj. Ladd was flying to Miami where many army and civilian planes are participating in an air racing and exhibition event.

No witnesses were found who saw the actual crash, but residents of the Dale vicinity said the flyer was apparently having engine trouble. The plane fell into a swamp.

Maj. Webb, N. U. Reserve Instructor, Is Promoted

Maj. James M. Webb of the United States Marines, assigned to the naval reserve training corps at Northwestern university, received notice yesterday of his promotion to lieutenant colonel. SIX IN HOSPITAL WITH POISONING BLAMED ON SOUP

A family of five and a roomer in their home at 2003 West 17th street were in the County hospital last night seriously ill of poisoning believed to have resulted from soup they had at dinner Thursday night. An investigation of the meat and peas used in the soup was being made by city board of health authorities.

The victims are Andrew Zook, 38 years old, a WPA worker; his wife, Josephine, 35; their three children, Jerome, 11; Dolores, 4, and Genevieve, 2, and the roomer, Vincent Musienski, 42 years old.

Marquette police, summoned by neighbors, hurried them to the hospital when they became ill yesterday morning.

TWO EX-CONVICTS HELD TO U. S. JURY FOR MAIL THEFT

John Orme, 62 years old, and John Miller, 45 years old, both ex-convicts, were held to the federal grand jury under bonds of $10,000 each yesterday by United States Commissioner Walker on charges of stealing mail.

The two men were seized at 22d and Dearborn streets on the night of Dec. 6 when police found nine sacks of mail in their auto. One sack was filled with first class mail and the others contained parcel post. They confessed they had broken into the Michigan Central railroad station at Hammond and taken the sacks.

Miller was paroled from Joliet prison five years ago after he served eight years of a fourteen year sentence for the murder of Police Lieutenant Terrance Lyons and Patrolman Thomas Clark. Orme has a criminal record dating back to 1893.

MRS. M. P. HUTTON AND J. E. DAVIES, LAWYER, TO WED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Washington Post says today Joseph E. Davies, nationally known lawyer, and Mrs. Marjorie Post Hutton, socially prominent, will be married in New York Sunday.

The ceremony will be performed, the Post says, in the luxurious triplex apartment of the bride-elect at 2 East 92d street.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton was dissolved by a divorce in Reno last September. The Huttons had been married for 20 years. Davies, 59, was western manager for Woodrow Wilson in the 1912 presidential campaign.

The Post said that after the wedding, which will be attended by a group of friends invited to come from Washington, the couple will take a yacht cruise to the West Indies.

CHICAGOANS GO TO SEEK G. O. P. '36 CONVENTION

Will Present $150,000 Bid in Washington.

Albert D. Lasker and Robert F. Carr, co-chairmen of the citizens committee which is working to bring both of the 1936 national political conventions to Chicago, departed yesterday on the Capitol limited of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, to appear on Monday before the Republican national committee in Washington.

They were fortified with a $150,000 subscription toward the expenses of the Republican convention and the arguments of central location and superior accommodations which have made Chicago the site of more presidential conventions than any other city. Mr. Lasker refused to disclose how many of the Republican committeemen and committeewomen are pledged to vote for Chicago, but did say:

"So far every member of the committee to whom we have talked has told us that he or she wanted to meet in Chicago."

Mayor to Join Delegation.

George W. Young, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce; William J. Hennessey, head of the association's convention bureau, and Frank L. Smith, Republican committeeman from Illinois, accompanied Mr. Lasker and Mr. Carr. They will be joined in their appearance before the committee Monday by Mayor Kelly, who is to meet them in Washington; by Mrs. Bertha Baur, national committeewoman from Illinois, and by George F. Getz, Republican national treasurer.

In addition to the vote of Mr. Smith, the delegation carried at least two more for Chicago as the Republican convention site. These were the votes of Ralph Williams, committeeman from Oregon, a vice chairman of the national committee, who accompanied the delegation, and of Oregon's committeewoman, whose proxy is in Mr. Williams' hands.

"I'm for Chicago because of its location as a transportation center, which will permit delegates to gather here at less expense than in any other city, and its hotel accommodations, which are such that the convention crowd won't more than make a dent in them," said Mr. Williams.

Explains His Viewpoint.

"I don't take any stock in reports that some of the candidates may be opposed to this city because it might affect voting on the nomination. The location of the convention never has had any influence on the nomination."

Mr. Williams was asked about his own stand on the party's nomination for President. He replied:

"I'm for an Oregon man first. Then I'd look in Idaho, then in Kansas, then in Illinois, and then in Michigan. After that I start west again."

He expressed the conviction that either of Oregon's two Republican senators, Charles L. McNary or Frederick Stiewer, would be a strong candidate if nominated, but added that neither has expressed any presidential ambitions. Senator McNary comes up for reëlection to the senate next year.

REGULAR GAMES ARE ADAPTED TO CRIPPLED PUPILS

Pupils of the Spalding school for crippled children, Ashland and Washington boulevards, will have an opportunity to engage in athletics and play games just like normal children, Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools, announced yesterday.

Miss Elizabeth McCann, director of a newly organized physical education department of the school, expects to include in the athletic curriculum ordinary games especially adapted to the physical limitations of the children.

Up to now, under the supervision of physiotherapists, games have been part of the program for corrective exercises only. Swimming, hocky, baseball, handball all have been found popular among the crippled pupils.

Farm Belt States Vote 3 to 2 Against New Deal in Poll

New York, Dec. 13.—[Special.]—With the farm belt states voting three to two against the New Deal, the Roosevelt popularity shows another sharp decline in the fourth week of the Literary Digest poll, made public today. The votes tallied to date number 642,711 from 26 states.

The eastern industrial states, rated as heavily against the Roosevelt policies, are still missing. The vote of the west and south in the total balloting so far is divided 274,830, or 42.76 per cent, for the New Deal, and 367,881, or 57.24 per cent, against it. In the first poll the vote stood 53.28 per cent against the New Deal; went to 55.89 the second week, and then to 55.60 last week. That this percentage is reached without the big eastern states is a striking feature of the balloting.

Scales Are Reversed.

Seven states in the south show majorities of three to two for the New Deal and the 19 other states so far recorded overcome that lead and reverse the scales against the Roosevelt policies. The vote is on the question, "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?" The administration leaders insist that is not a fair test of the Roosevelt personal popularity.

The balloting in the grain belt states, rated a Roosevelt stronghold, continues to be a surprising feature. Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, and Missouri; the northwestern states, including Minnesota, and the midwest, taking in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, are all lined up with much the same voice of disapproval of the New Deal.

Bay State Tops List.

Connecticut shows 72.21 per cent of the votes in this poll are dissatisfied with the Roosevelt schemes, and Massachusetts still tops the list at 78.17 per cent recorded in the negative.

Florida maintains an even percentage in comparison with earlier balloting, standing 50.73 per cent against the New Deal. Kentucky stays in line with the vote cast in the last election, which is cited as evidence of the accuracy of the poll, while Maryland votes 66.14 per cent against the New Deal. Illinois takes about the same rating at 66.07, and the Democrats have said that that state is "in the bag" for President Roosevelt by a big plurality. West Virginia is another new state heard from this week, and makes its initial ballot 58.01 per cent against Mr. Roosevelt's policies.

Tabulation by States.

The tabulation to date follows:

State.	Vote to date.	For Roosevelt's policies.	Against Roosevelt's policies.
Alabama	9,692	6,516	3,176

2 WIVES? CERTAINLY, BUT 'TIS A TRIFLE; HE HAS 1,500 SWEETIES

Gardiner Allison Stewart, 30 years old, 6213 University avenue, a cleaner and dyer, charged with bigamy, was questioned in the state's attorney's office yesterday by Assistant Prosecutor Francis McCurrie.

"Sure, I've got two wives," Stewart boasted. "And that isn't all. I've also got 1,500 sweethearts. I used to keep a list of them, but it got so bulky that I gave it up."

Stewart's first wife, Marie, 26 years old, a diminutive blonde, whom he married in 1926, told Mr. McCurrie that she became suspicious of her husband's absence every Thursday night. Investigating, she said, she found that he spent his "off nights" with his second wife, Clarice, 18 years old, tall, but also blonde.

Stewart will be arraigned on the bigamy charge in the Felony court Monday.

REV. R. A. WHITE IN G. O. P. RACE FOR CONGRESS

Frank M. Fulton, indorsed for the Republican nomination for congress in the Third district by the committeemen of nine wards and two country town areas, learned yesterday he has a primary fight on his hands. His opponent is the Rev. R. A. White, pastor of the People's Liberal church of Englewood, who is supported by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle. The committeemen had slated the Rev. Mr. White tentatively as a candidate for the general assembly.

Fulton, who resides at 317 West Marquette road and is the owner of a wholesale gasoline storage plant, was the Republican nominee two years ago. He is the son of Henry D. Fulton, former state representative.

Two of the eleven committeemen originally were supporters of the Rev. Mr. White, but later joined in a unanimous vote of endorsement for Fulton.

DIES AFTER BEING HURT IN FALL.

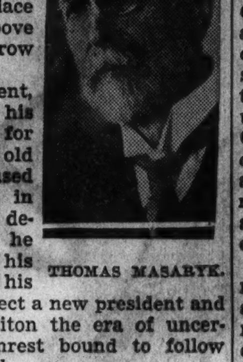
MASARYK QUITS TODAY; FOUNDED CZECH REPUBLIC

President Backs Benes as Successor.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 13.—Thomas Masaryk, 85 year old president and chief founder of the new Czechoslovakia, will abdicate in a solemn ceremony in the historical palace on the hill above Prague tomorrow afternoon.



THOMAS MASARYK.

The president, who devoted his life to work for the rebirth of old Bohemia, refused to continue in power. He declared that he considers it his duty to help his countrymen elect a new president and spare the natiton the era of uncertainty and unrest bound to follow upon his death.

Favors Benes as Successor.

The scholarly president would like to seat Eduward Benes, 51 years old, foreign minister, who campaigned with him in the United States, France, Britain, Italy, and Russia for the independence of Czechoslovakia, as his successor, but the majority of political groups have not yet agreed to accept him as president.

Masaryk will place his resignation in the hands of the speakers of the chamber and upper house and Premier Hodza at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He is expected to urge the Czechs to unite behind Benes and avoid the complications which are expected to follow unless a strong statesman is placed at the helm of the government. The next chief executive must control the Nazis in the German minority districts, the Fascists among the Slovaks, the Hungarian irridentists among the Hungarian minority and the communists who are agitating in all the industrial centers of the country.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon Premier Hodza will announce Masaryk's abdication over the radio and call a national assembly for next Wednesday to elect his successor.

Masaryk, whose health caused serious anxiety last year, has made a remarkable recovery.

Points to Nazi Dictatorship.

He told visitors that developments in Germany had confirmed him in the belief that a statesman who wanted to serve his country must have courage to resign in time to be able to lend a guiding hand to younger men who are learning to do his work.

The president said he believed if President Paul von Hindenburg had resigned before he lost his health, Adolf Hitler's régime would not have triumphed in Germany and that sound democracy would have been evolved in central Europe.

Benes, a sincere believer in the league of nations, has spent much of his time in recent years at Geneva. His frequent departures made him lose part of his influence over parliament at home. Nazis and communists have opposed him with equal energy, making it almost impossible for the moderate party to obtain sufficient votes to insure his election.

Benes, founder of the little entente, of Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Rumania recently signed a treaty with Russia. He expressed the hope that this alliance would help safeguard his small buffer state, the last democratic stronghold between the complete or semi-dictatorships of Germany, Poland, Russia, Austria, and Hungary.

An item yesterday stated that James Hillman, who has been missing since Monday from his home in the East End Park hotel, 5242 Hyde Park boulevard, is an official of Robbins & Staufert, Inc., lether goods manufacturers at 229 South Market street. Hillman was never an official of the company. He was formerly connected with the concern as a salesman, but left its employ two months ago.

Blind Beggar Convicted in Death of Woman Aid

Boston, Mass., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Forrest K. Wells, 30 year old blind beggar musician, was convicted tonight of murder in the second degree in the death of his companion, Hazel Martin, 27. The verdict carried a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment. Miss Martin was a familiar figure downtown as she accompanied Wells in quest of stray coins. She was found beneath a third story window of a shabby south end lodging house.

TOWNSEND PLAN FOR THIRD PARTY HITS CANDIDATE

Michigan Nominee Near End of Campaign.

Battle Creek, Mich., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Verner W. Main, Townsend old age pension plan advocate who is the Republican candidate for congress in the special Third district election next week, expressed astonishment today when informed Dr. F. E. Townsend, co-founder of the plan, had announced plans for a third party in 1936.

"The Townsend leaders have repeatedly declared they would never adopt such tactics," he said. "It must be the stubborn resistance to the plan encountered in both parties . . . that inspired the decision of Dr. Townsend."

This echoed the statement in Washington of Dr. F. E. Townsend, who said it was "inevitable that we have a third party, as neither of the old parties appears favorable to our cause."

Cuts Throat in Theater; Asks Theater for $50,000

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Attorneys for Lester Larson, 18, today filed suit in District court for $50,000 damages against a theater for injuries he suffered when he fell against a glass door, cutting his throat. Attorneys charged the accident occurred after Larson had become faint after seeing a face lifting operation on the screen. As a result of the accident, Larson's attorneys alleged, he is tongue-tied, cannot open his mouth wide, and bears a large scar.

ARGENTINE WHO WED LEONORA HUGHES, DANCER, DROWNED

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Carlos Ortiz Basualdo, 37, wealthy Argentine who broke up the great dancing team of Maurice and Hughes when he wed Leonora Hughes in 1925, drowned last night. His speed boat overturned in Lake Nahuel Huapi, in the southern Argentine Andes. The mechanic also drowned.

The team of Maurice and Hughes was internationally celebrated. Basualdo fell in love with Leonora Hughes in Paris, followed her to her native America when the team made a triumphant tour and won her.

They were married in St. Patrick's cathedral, New York. Maurice, a Belgian, wept openly in a pew at the wedding which was to break up the team. When she left the altar, the bride bent over and kissed him. Maurice died several years later of tuberculosis. Meanwhile he had married Eleanor Ambrose, a subsequent dancing partner.

NEW YORKER, DAUGHTER OF M'ADOO WED

New York, Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Information reached New York today from Mexico City of the marriage there yesterday of Francis Taylor and Mrs. Nona McAdoo De Mohrenschildt Cowles, daughter of Senator William G. McAdoo. The couple are now on their way to Miami, Fla., aboard Mr. Taylor's yacht.

Mrs. Taylor and Edward S. Cowles were divorced recently.

Mr. Taylor is the son of Mrs. Moses Taylor and the great-grandson of Moses Taylor, founder of the National City bank.

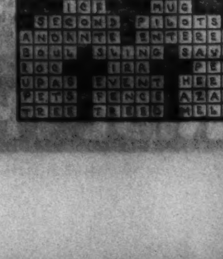
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



LANDON FRIENDS CONSIDER ENTRY IN OHIO PRIMARY

Write for Information on Procedure.

Columbus, O., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The Alf M. Landon for President forces cast a friendly glance today at the fifty-two delegates Ohio will send to the Republican national convention next year.

Friends of the Kansas governor requested Secretary of State George S. Myers to forward to Landon information regarding the requirements for entering Ohio's presidential preference primary next May.

They did not indicate whether Landon would seek the election of a convention delegation friendly to him.

Landon apparently had no direct connection with the movement, which signified the first overture by supporters of one of the frequently mentioned possibilities for the Republican nomination to win Ohio's convention delegation.

Speaks at Cleveland.

A few weeks ago, when Landon addressed an Ohio Chamber of Commerce convention at Cleveland, he said he came east to "sell Kansas to Ohio."

Landon is a former Ohioan.

The state's Republican leaders have taken a stand for the election of a favorite son — uninstructed — delegation. They wish to keep the fifty-two convention votes free for bargaining purposes until convention time.

Myers said the request for the primary election information came through Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general in the Harding administratiton.

Daugherty Makes Request.

From other sources, it was learned that Daugherty's office had asked Myers to forward the information to Topeka on behalf of a mutual friend of Daughterty and Landon. Daugherty was in Sarasota, Fla.

A prospective presidential candidate may file in Ohio either personally or by having a friend file as a candidate for him. The latter method, however, would not bind delegates to pledge for him.

No Request, Landon Says.

Newton, Kas., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon said here today he hadn't "asked any state for any information about any presidential primary."

The Kansas budget balancer, prominently mentioned in talk about Republican presidential possibilities, said he didn't know a thing about a request made in Columbus, O., that information on the Ohio preferential primary be sent him.

MISSING CADET HELD RUNAWAY; DROP INQUIRY

Assistant State's Attorney Samuel M. Meadows of Knox county announced yesterday at Galesburg, after a three day investigation of the disappearance of Jack Norton Manning, 16 years old, from the Illinois Military college at Abingdon, that he was convinced the boy was a runaway.

Young Manning is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Manning, 500 Diversey parkway. He disappeared from the school Dec. 6. His parents went to Knox county to aid in the search. Unwilling to admit that he had fled, they advanced the theory that he might have been killed or kidnaped. They were still firm in this belief last night.

Mr. Meadows said that he questioned the faculty and the students of the school and was convinced the parents' fears were groundless. He added that he had seen three notes left by Jack stating that he was going away, and that these notes were undoubtedly in the boy's handwriting.

"Our investigation is finished," said Mr. Meadows, "except to aid in a search for the runaway."

Arrest Doctor for Quiz on Alleged Fake Accident Ring

Dr. Harold S. Partee, colored, who has an office at 4346 Cottage Grove avenue, was arrested yesterday by state's attorney's police for questioning in regard to the alleged operations of a fake accident ring, which it is charged has defrauded the Chicago Surface Lines and the Yellow Cab company of approximately $25,000. Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Dillon said he questioned Dr. Partee about alleged faking of X-ray photographs.

SEN. LEWIS BACK; ANNOUNCES HIS 1936 CANDIDACY

Admits Debt and Tax Will Be Big Issues.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis, back in Chicago yesterday after a three months trip to Europe, declared that he will be a candidate for reelection in 1936. Senator Lewis showed no ill effects of his critical illness in Moscow, Russia, late in September. He was stricken with pneumonia.

"If my party wishes to present me as an agent of Illinois in Washington," Senator Lewis said, "I am ready to serve." In reference to his candidacy he was emphatic in classifying himself as "an independent Democrat," who had, on occasions, opposed the will of the President and some of the administration's plans.

Silent on State Situation.

The senator deftly dodged all questions concerning present and future affairs of the state Democratic organization, and particularly those questions bearing on the possibility that Gov. Horner will not be renominated by the party. He turned aside his questioners with the explanation that his prolonged absence from the United States prevented his being in close touch with the situation in Illinois.

Senator Lewis disclosed his plans for a personal campaign for reduction of federal expenses by drastic consolidation of government agencies. The 30 billion dollar federal debt is a matter of deep concern to him, he asserted.

Recognizes Debt Issue.

"Opponents of the administration," he declared, "will make debt and taxes the issue of the next election, and the issue will be a proper one. We must find some way to avoid increases in the debt and lighten the tax burden."

The senator announced that he has written a bill for submission to congress, which will effect this end. This plan, he said, involves consolidation of the departments of agriculture and interior, abolition of the interstate commerce commission, federal trade commission and the federal reserve board. He would have the secretary of commerce take over the necessary functions of the trade commission and the treasury department assume esesntial duties of the reserve board.

As to payment of the soldiers' bonus, Senator Lewis said he favors full payment, but not in a lump sum. Some form of instalment payment can be worked out, he said, which would avert a presidential veto.

The senator's listeners heard him charge that members of the league of nations sanctions committee in classifying oil, cotton and steel as war materials "with exquisite wisdom chose those particular products which the United States produces and competes with the world on the seas."

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

INVITATION.

Leading Republicans in New York have expressed a preference for Chicago as the scene of the Republican national convention. They have called attention to its advantages, not least of which is its climate. No one can guarantee what the weather will be next June, but Chicago is almost certain to be a more comfortable place than any inland city to the west, and Chicago's accommodations are superior to those of any lake city to the east.

Chicago has more than adequate hotel facilities for delegates and headquarters. Its restaurants, theaters and other places of entertainment are attractive. Its shops are famous. It is used to acting as host to all kinds of conventions, including those of the national parties. It is the hub of highway and rail transportation and is close to the center of population. These are among the many considerations which have led the national committees of the two parties to choose Chicago as the convention city again and again.

Political considerations give added reason for holding the forthcoming conventions of both parties in Chicago. Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, and Nebraska are the critical states. They may, and they probably will, determine the victor in the election. Chicago stands at the center of this battle ground. The party which opens its campaign in Chicago is starting with an advantage. It is reasonable to expect that at least one of the parties will decide for Chicago and difficult to believe that the other will permit its rival to monopolize the opportunity.

THE DEAD SPEAK NOT.

The funeral of Walter W. Liggett, bitter foe of political corruption and civic knavery, was held yesterday in Minneapolis.

He had dared to attack Gov. Olson and his coterie. Olson's impeachment had been his editorial aim. He had offered repeatedly "to produce enough evidence" of graft and official protection of outlawry "to insure that Floyd Olson will be finished forever as a factor in public life." The last issue of his paper, printed the day of his assassination, had surpassed all previous efforts in his campaign.

He had been beaten and slugged. His name had been dragged through the muck and slime of a sex trial; in retaliation, he had charged. He had been acquitted. A month to a day after his acquittal he was shot down in the style of gangsters.

Liggett knew what he might expect. He said so. He knew that Howard Guilford, a like crusader, had been slain from ambush. Guilford also had assailed the Olson ring editorially. He had been connected with a publication that, with THE TRIBUNE's help, had fought Olson's gag law to a finish.

"Los muertos no hablan" is an ancient Spanish proverb. In our tongue this acrid saying became: "Dead men tell no tales."

Howard Guilford was buried in September, 1934. He had lasted a year.

Walter Liggett had lasted a year.

BEG PARDON.

An editorial, "Why Pick on Crowder?" in THE TRIBUNE of Dec. 12, is an instance of confusion of names for which THE TRIBUNE apologizes to its readers and especially to the relatives and many friends of the late Gen. Enoch Crowder. Our reference was to Gen. Crozier, now retired, and long head of the ordnance department of the army. Any criticism expressed or implied of ordnance policies or practice had of course no application to Gen. Crowder, who was provost marshal general of the A. E. F. and before and after judge advocate general of the army, to say nothing of his highly meritorious service in Cuba and the Philippines.

SOLVING THEIR OWN PROBLEM.

The announcement of "the fastest train in the world" to Denver, Colo., involving new types of equipment that are now past the experimental stage, follows hard on the heels of a statement by Hugh S. Siddell of the Western Passenger association that the lower experimental fares made effective in December, 1933, will from now on be regarded as the normal basis. It has always been so. Something new and attractive will make its appeal to the public if the price is brought within reason.

But the word "permanent" should not be used in connection with either development despite this new and expedited service. It is highly probable that several times the number of railroad passengers for Denver will continue to use the highways. Reduced fares have increased passenger travel in the western area over 50 per cent, but they have not yet made any appreciable inroads in the vast trafic available for rail transportation.

Combined efforts involving improved service and lower fares and rates are the only salvation for our railroads, with the objective little short of nation-wide "suburban" service.

THE PRECARIOUS PEACE OF EUROPE.

People observing the unreliability of statesmanship in the most responsible posts must be impressed by the grave dangers to world peace contained in this undependability. It would appear that the double dealing of minor politicians intriguing for profitable office had advanced upon the grand stage of major world affairs.

It had been apparent for many years that if the stability of the world depended upon treaties and signed agreements it would be too fragile to endure. Von Bethmann-Hollweg might return to view with amazement the wrecked pledges and broken faith in the period following his celebrated scrap of paper remark. No honor attaches to obligations of government. The essence of pledges is not inviolability. They merely serve as expedients, almost proving the formula, the greater the power the greater the irresponsibility.

The world can learn to place no faith in agreements, but it is an even more serious thing when it learns to trust no one's actions. Only the men at the top of government in Europe, it is true, can be aware of all the elements with which a vacillating outfit of prime ministers and cabinets is dealing, and consequently the reasons for the desperate and contradictory expedients adopted cannot be fully known.

Baldwin, Hoare, Laval, Eden, and even Mussolini and Hitler may be facing possibilities and prospects which appall them. The major aims in the case of the principal opponents of the Italians in Ethiopia may be the peace of Europe, threatened either by a war or by social upheaval. Mussolini in Africa may be fighting for the preservation of his government and his order in Italy. It may be that in the search for solutions the statesmen are exposing themselves to charges of trickery, double dealing, and hypocrisy. This is the charitable view. The evidence to support it is not clear. What is on the surface condemns the participants.

Even if it is merely bewilderment which has left all this confusion of tracks over the face of the world, the portent is ominous because it would not seem that men whose acts are so reversible could possibly be intrusted with the welfare of people unable to avoid the consequences of their mistakes.

ESTABLISH TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE.

Another plank in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE'S platform for America, "Establish an American Trans-Atlantic Air Service," will shortly be consummated due to the constant pounding of this newspaper through its editorial columns. We have told American air interests and authorities that the United States must be first in the field and warned them against an invasion by foreign flying companies that might readily establish Europe as firmly over the water as on the water.

Recent news stories bring word that American, British, Irish, and Canadian air officials have agreed to extend reciprocal landing and operating privileges in their countries for such service. Pan-American Air Ways will inaugurate trial flights during the summer of 1936, and it is expected that regular schedules will be available by the summer of 1937. The public is acquainted with their very thorough methods from their conquests of the Caribbean and Pacific.

The United States holds a peculiarly strategic position with respect to trans-Atlantic air service in that a single western terminal country is available. Newfoundland and Canada are merely intermediate landing fields. The European situation is far more complicated in that England, Germany, France and possibly other nations might offer eastern ports of concentration.

It may be wondered why the Pacific was conquered before the Atlantic with its enormous trafic pool. The answer is international jealousy which now happily appears to have been adjusted.

WHEN PLANES RAIN BOMBS.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

Talk about the specter of fleets of airplanes crossing the ocean and wiping out great populations!

The Italian army tried it. A squadron of airplanes was sent to bombard the city which is the present headquarters of Haile Selassie. They dropped seven hundred bombs, with the emperor's palace as the objective. The only serious damage done was to one wing of an adjacent hospital. Fifty-three persons were killed and a larger number wounded, including a Red Cross nurse and a foreign newspaper correspondent. The military value of the expedition was exactly nothing. And if it was intended to have a panic value it did not have that, either. A raid of wild tribes from the hills in one of their periodic outbreaks could have done more harm with their spears and clubs.

The airplane is, of course, an important weapon of war. But its uses are better judged by military experts than by imaginative columnists. At any rate the only two modern experiences, one five years ago at Chinchow in Manchuria and the other just now at Dessye, Ethiopia, have both confirmed military judgment as against journalistic imagination.

STILL GOING UP.

[Grand Rapids Press.]

In any appraisal of improved business conditions it is well not to forget the canal at Sault Ste. Marie, for the tonnage reports at the locks have provided an accurate business barometer during the last few years.

As of Dec. 1 the total tonnage passing through the canal this year was 47,853,191 as against last year's total of 41,958,161. And the season runs until Dec. 15. The increase over the figures of a year ago is encouraging, and even more so in comparison to the low tonnage report of 1932 when but 20,480,873 tons passed through the locks.

The canal business has a long way yet to go before it approximates the peak figures of 1929, with 92,622,017 tons, but the upward trend is consistent and there is encouragement to be found in that fact.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

DR. ALEXIS CARREL, one of the scientists of the Rockefeller institute, tells us of a way to live for centuries. You have to be hermetically sealed up some way, put in cold storage and then at some future time you can name yourself, a few weeks later or a few years or a few centuries, the people in charge of the cold storage will shoot the required drugs into you and you'll walk right out and enjoy life again. That sounds pretty good. Personally I'd like to be put in storage and not know anything whatsoever during the time when we have to pay our income taxes. And then it might be nice to be put in storage and kept unconscious as long as the New Deal is raving. It would be nice just to be removed from this existence for a few hours now and then. For instance, when a fond mamma brings out her precious infant, aged four, to dance and imitate Greta Garbo, I would like to take a pill and not know anything whatever for the next four hours. And it might be nice to sleep gently in the cold storage warehouse until the crooners and the high sopranos and the toothpaste ads got off the radio. And I wouldn't mind spending a few years unconscious (if I was sure of coming back) until the movies can use a larger scale and not have all the characters huddled in a telephone booth. And if Mr. Roosevelt is reëlected or Mr. Hoover moves into the White House I am going right down to the Rockefeller institute and beg Dr. Carrel for pills that will rock me to sleep for four years anyhow.

BLIND SOLDIER.

Cocked on his head was a funny little hat;
I watched him feeling through the wild November rain
To where, with a tray of pencils, he always sat
And stared through empty sockets at the slaty skies,
Seeing far past the heeedless crowds with unseeing eyes;
Just a victim of the waste of war and the tragic years
In which old rulers raged and worked their ancient gag:
I say I watched him, then, through my failing tears,
Went on to where a bishop blessed another battle flag.

But there are many of us who love the English language who would sternly refuse to pass the Yule anywhere. But we will greatly enjoy passing Christmas with any friends who bob up with a promise of having a roast goose on the table and something in the way of Scotch on the sideboard. Well, Mr. Walker, all I can say is that Yule be sorry that you've turned your back on Christmas. And promise that Yule never do it again.

DISPASSIONATE OBSERVATION

Some live a life in eighty years,
Some live a life in one,
But life is through for many men
Before their years are run.

Some men, with monastried lives,
Avoid earth's cloying breath,
And these, I think, in some cold niche
Keep living after death.

LILA TERRY.

MEN! sad news in the papers for us all yesterday! Instead of the universal joy that fills the earth at this season we men will be cast into the deepest depths of gloom. But we must be brave. We must fight nobly and manfully on in spite of this great blow that has fallen upon us. Remember, men, that it is all darkest just before dawn, that into each life some rain must fall, some days be dark and dreary. And also, men, recall that over the Alps lies Italy and that beyond this life of toil and pain there is a land of endless night, where joy eternal reigns. Yes, men, even if a judge in St. Paul rules that a man cannot have alimony from his former wife, still we must press heroically on. Alimony from the ex-wife would be a great help; we could sit in the back room at our favorite bar and play dominoes and checkers or go down the alley and make a few little bets on the ponies and send a box of chocolates to the girl friend—but the law is the law! Let us try to be calm, dry our tears, and wait for better days.

ELECTRIC SHOCKS.

THE manifold applications of electricity have influenced our standards of living to a marked degree. Labor saving devices, particularly in the home, have multiplied. Nevertheless, electric current must be controled—"cabined, cribbed, and confined"—if it is to serve without danger. The use of electricity is increasing and should increase, but certainly even greater care must be exercised in surrounding electrical equipment, transmission lines, transformers, etc., with every possible safeguard. In the United States the number of deaths from electrical accidents is estimated as between seven and eight hundred each year. These figures should give us pause and the question may be asked, "Are these fatalities necessary?" We may further inquire how electricity affects vital functions of the body.

How much current can cause death? In susceptible persons a voltage as low as 45 has been followed by death. Much, of course, depends upon the current quantity [amperage] as well as upon the force of the current [voltage]. One can permit 100,000 volts to pass through the body with impunity if the current quantity is fractional. Again, alternating current appears to be more dangerous than direct current.

There are many factors that influence the effects of electricity. For example, a dry skin is a poor conductor—in other words, it interposes a formidable barrier to the penetration of the body. A moist skin lowers the resistance and a thoroughly wet skin acts as a good conductor. The length of time that the current flows is also of importance. A charge that continues for but a fraction of a second may be without danger, whereas the same charge endured for several seconds may cause death.

Those who have experienced a strong electrical shock, and who have survived, recall the agonizing pain. Many describe the immediate but temporary loss of sight preceded by bright flashes before the eyes. Others mention the fact that the time sense disappeared and that five seconds seemed like ten minutes. Some of these persons became unconscious, exhibiting convulsions, twitchings, or tremors during the period.

It is not at all uncommon for the electric current to contract the muscles so violently that actual fractures of bones occur. Again, longitudinal fractures of the long bones may follow without the slightest apparent relation to muscular contraction.

The number of nonfatal electrical injuries is probably large, varying from slight shocks to severe burns. Perhaps some of us have had the experience of grasping a live wire—fortunately, with dry hands—and have had difficulty in releasing the fingers because of the immediate, sharp, vigorous, muscular spasm. While the grasp may not be broken as long as contraction is maintained, the body may be pulled away by a violent effort, thus severing the contact. As soon as the connection is broken the muscles relax.

Whenever a strong current passes through the body the heart muscle may be thrown into a similar state of contraction. It will cease to beat and if the current continues long enough and if it is sufficiently strong the heart will fail to resume its function. If the organ happens to be in the direct pathway of the current in its flow through the body, beating will stop under the effects of a lighter charge. If the current can be broken even a heart that has stopped for a few beats will resume its action either of its own accord or under proper stimulation.

In like manner the effect on the muscles of respiration is so pronounced that breathing becomes impossible as long as a current of sufficient strength is maintained. The chest muscles and the diaphragm are rendered immobile.

The prevention of electrical accidents lies rather largely in the hands of electrical engineers and of manufacturers of electrical equipment. Of course, no type of apparatus can be made absolutely foolproof and we must all use reasonable caution in connecting, disconnecting, and operating electrical devices.

STATE OF MIND.

B. N. writes: Ever since birth I have been nervous, high strung, and excitable. At times I go to pieces completely. I have developed a terrible inferiority complex. My whole body sweats, my circulation is poor, and at times I am hardly able to breathe due to a choking sensation. My doctor tells me it is a state of mind, but I seem unable to overcome it.

REPLY.

I realize fully that your "feelings" are real and positive—desperately so. But you can gain the upper hand through your own efforts and those of your friends. Endeavor to attain a normal perspective of yourself in relation to the rest of the world and you will find your symptoms disappearing. I assume, of course, that thyroid disease [goiter] is not present. There are a number of books written for the purpose of helping to overcome neurasthenia. We will be glad to send a list of such books if stamped, addressed envelope accompanies request.

HUNTER WAS WRONG.

J. T. writes: In an article on syphilis mention is made of the fact that in 1767 John Hunter claimed that syphilis and another disease involving sex were both caused by the same virus. What other sex disease was meant?

REPLY.

Through an error John Hunter confused the virus of gonorrhea with that of syphilis. Ricord showed by over 2,000 inoculations that gonorrheal pus would not produce the lesions of primary or secondary syphilis. Later observations paved the way for the demonstration by Neisser in 1879 that a specific biscuit shaped diplococcus [gonococcus] was the cause of gonorrhea.

SETTLING ESTATE.

Hinsdale, Ill., Nov. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have received a determination of inheritance tax from the Probate court in Cleveland. Value of succession is $1,620 and a tax of $56. 1. Who pays this succession, the court or the administratrix? 2. Do each of the heirs have to pay the administratrix? 3. There is some real estate listed in the estate. Could any one heir force the sale of the property? 4. By applying to the court will they deduct the inheritance tax? 5. The administratrix hired an attorney. Who pays him, the court or the heirs? 6. How much can he charge? 7. Is that fixed by the court? 8. What does the administratrix receive for administration of the estate? 9. Do the nephews of the deceased have to stand aside and let the adopted daughter of a deceased brother share in the estate?

W. R.

1. The beneficiary, unless the will provides otherwise.
2. See 1.
3. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.
4. See 1.
5. The administratrix would pay him out of the assets.
6. Depends on facts that are not before us.
7. Yes.
8. Depends on facts that are not before us.
9. No. See Phillips vs. Conica, 59 Ohio State 1. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROBATE NECESSARY.

Lancaster, Wis., Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband died seven months ago leaving no will. He owned a small farm in Michigan. 1. Do I have to have this probated? 2. What share of the farm will I own? I have two small children. 3. Can I sell it, and how soon? 4. Can I be made administrator and guardian of the children or will some one have to go bond for them? 5. What expenses will there be, and what steps must I take?

N. J.

1. Probate would be necessary in order to produce a merchantable title to the real estate.
2. A one-third life interest.
3. No.
4. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned.
5. The first step would be to employ an attorney. We are not in a position to estimate the cost. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROPERTY PURCHASE.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—There is an old rundown house that can be bought cheaply. The title, I understand, is in the name of a 14 year old child under the guardianship of her stepfather. 1. The estate is still in probate. 2. What steps would be necessary to buy this property beyond the ordinary routine? 3. Would the fact of being in probate increase the cost materially outside of first selling price? 4. If the property was rented, could a legal agreement be made so as to let the rent apply on the principal until such time as the owner attained her majority? By that I mean the remaining four years' rent be applied on the purchase price until the child became of legal age, so as to be able to deliver a deed.

E. R. A.

1. It is not clear whether you mean the mother's estate or the guardianship of the child.
2. If the mother left the property for the child under a will, the possibility of selling would depend largely on the wording of the will. In any event, it probably would be necessary for you to employ an attorney.
3. Your facts are not clear; see 1.
4. See preceding answers.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY VICENTE ALBANO PACIS.

[Editor of the Philippines Herald.]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA.—Inauguration of the Philippine commonwealth last Nov. 15 is regarded here as a symbol of historical vindication for both the United States and the Philippines. It is deemed to prove American good faith on the one hand and the Filipinos' capacity to govern themselves on the other.

When Admiral Dewey sank the Spanish fleet and freed the Philippines from Spain, the Filipinos, under Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, believed America's interest to be a passing one. He expected—and so proclaimed to 7,000,000 followers—that America would do in a month what it took her 37 years to do. With the decision of President McKinley to hold the Philippines until they were able to govern themselves came the unsuccessful three year Aguinaldo insurrection.

The subsequent American Philippine program has been threefold—educational, political, and economic. Americans mustered out of the army became teachers, supervisors and superintendents. Gradually the Filipinos assumed the educational task, first as elementary school teachers, then as high school instructors, and lastly as administrative officials in the bureau of education and professors in the state university.

Anglo-Saxon mass education has justified itself. English is today more widely spoken and written than any other language, not barring Spanish, which had a 400 years' start, and the dialects. The most important literary works and the most popular magazines and newspapers are published in English. There is no assurance, however, as to its permanence. It has not by any means become the home language, and whether it will remain after the republic begins in 1945 only time will tell.

The political progress of the Filipinos has been rapid. Even before the commonwealth they manned the entire legislative department, and the United States had also delivered the courts, with the exception of the Supreme court, to natives.

Economic progress has been no less effective, though somewhat more vague. Filipinos have prospered under both the partial and complete free trade arrangements. While their oriental neighbors existed on coolie standards they began to talk of full dinner pails and pianos and radios in every home.

But the Philippines never forgot their desire for independence, especially since, with Aguinaldo, they believed that the United States had promised it to them. Subjugation of the Philippines had created suspicion of bad faith in Filipino minds. With all the American explanations and promises of ultimate freedom the natives could not fully believe that America would ever withdraw.

Now the commonwealth is declared to be a vindication of American good faith and altruism. Further, it is held to complete the meaning of the interpretation given by McKinley to the American doctrin of government by consent of the governed. America has governed the Filipinos by force until such time as they can truly govern themselves.

THE CHICAGO SPEECH.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—The President said: "Though food prices in the city are not on the average as high as in 1929, yet they are in many cases too high. It is difficult to explain why in many cases if the farmer gets an increase for his food crop over what he got three years ago the consumer in the city has to pay two and three and four times the amount of that increase."

Now if the highest authority in the land admits that food prices in the city are in many cases too high and that it is difficult to explain, who can? And also if it is an injustice for the city consumer to pay "two and three and four times the amount of that increase," why is that injustice permitted?

All I can say is that under the present administration food prices have gone up with leaps and bounds. It is terrible to work hard, spend all for the bare necessities, and then not get all one desires. Is that a just reward for a lifetime of hard effort?

MABEL B.

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 10.—Apparently the President did not realize that consumers were also listening in on his speech which he delivered before the producers.

Isn't it a fact that prices have increased out of all proportion to our incomes? Isn't it a fact that pork [live weight] prices have increased 174 per cent and beef 95 per cent during the past two years?

Who is to blame for this increase? Is it the corner market? Is it the packer? Is it the critic? No. Let's put the blame where it belongs: on the administration which claims credit for having brought about this increase.

I am one of those struggling to make both ends meet, and I know that my wage dollar buys much less now than ever before.

W. J. DUNKER.

ANALOGIES.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—In a recent meeting of the American Farm Bureau federation one of the speakers in addressing the meeting said: "If a manufacturer has a big inventory and no orders he shuts down his plant and stops producing. I see no crime in the farmer doing the same thing. Every factory has production control geared to its orders; every merchant has inventory control geared to his sales; so I cannot see that the farmer should be blamed for desiring some measure of production and inventory control."

The above is all very true, and surely manifests good judgment on the part of a manufacturer or merchant, but should he be subsidized by the federal government not to overload his inventory?

No. He uses his good common sense and judgment based on past experiences and anticipated outlet.

Control of crop and stock production is just as sensible and practical, but should be attained by organization and coöperation among farmers and stock raisers through the various organizations without government control and subsidy. There is very little incentive to exercise judgment in managing one's business if he is guaranteed a return for not so doing.

H. C. V.

FORECAST.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—You remember three years ago, in the fall of 1935, how the city council took it upon themselves to void our daylight savings law by giving us eastern time? How during the winter of 1936-'37 business started to adjust itself to the darkness by gradually changing their hours—opening and closing one hour later? It was started as you will remember by the commission merchants on Randolph street and the South Water market; then the stores with whom they did business; and then it spread rapidly all over the city.

Now we are on the same basis as we were before daylight savings time, and yet we find every attempt to put through a new daylight savings law blocked by certain interests, such as the moving picture, entertainment, and railroad people.

ORACLE.

QUESTION FOR PHILOSOPHERS.

Crown Point, Ind., Dec. 4.—The last two years have seen the development of the fastest automobile, the fastest aeroplane, the fastest train, the fastest ocean liner, the longest aeroplane flight and the highest flight into the stratosphere. Not to be outdone by man, nature produced with few exceptions the hottest, coldest, wettest, dryest, snowiest and darkest months in the history of the weather bureau. Sometimes we wonder if there is a limit to anything.

L. M. ALLMAN.

CHANGING STREET NAMES.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—I wish to enter my protest against the wholesale changing of street names now under consideration. To me it looks like a racket, or a make work scheme to enrich the few at the expense of the many. The so-called "inconvenience" in some respects is not a fact. It is not so many years ago when similar plans were proposed and caused great distress in some respects. I allude to the method described as laying a ruler down on a street map of the city and making all streets in line of one name, regardless of the fact that there might be several blocks between one end and another.

I will cite as an illustration that it was suggested that Bellevue place, a fine gold coast residential street, was to be named Oak street, of unsavory reputation. Residents of Bellevue place raised such a protest that they saved the name of the fine street. Now it is proposed to call Arlington place Montana street, although there are several blocks between the two streets that are not cut through. Think of the confusion in delivering parcels when an expressman endeavors to go from one to the other in a straight line, especially as Montana street is almost concealed from the casual person as it curves to almost a right angle from Lincoln avenue.

What is the matter with Lane court? We all know where it is, and calling it by another name would hide it, making it difficult to locate by those familiar with the old name.

There are hundreds of such annoyances and confusing changes to be contemplated, while the expense in making these changes is beyond computation, in street signs and placing them; changes in the guide books, which every one must buy to find out where they are; and then the difficulty to delivery men who are familiar with the streets as they now are, who would lose time in constantly consulting the guide books to find the new names.

There are a few duplications which might be remedied without so great expense, as Lincoln avenue and Lincoln street, but if the great thoroughfare, Lincoln avenue, were to be changed in name the expense would be incalculable.

OLD RESIDENT.

SUGGESTION FOR HISTORIANS.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Now that history is being made on the American scene in quantity, if not in quality, I offer the suggestion that our politicos, tycoons and gas bags be given an appropriate sobriquet to assist our young hopefuls in the classrooms remember their history by giving it a tang and bouquet, i. e., a glamor they cannot resist, something like Parmesan cheese on spaghetti, a bit smelly but appetizing.

Who could ever forget Attila the Scourge, Ivan the Terrible, Peter the Great, Diamond Lil, Louis the Quince, etc., etc.

Getting back to the American scene, who could forget Teddy the Toothful, Taft the Titanic, and among the lesser worthies Woodrow the Windy, Calvin the Canny, Delano the Deceptive? Our boys and girls would eat up their histories like the movies and cry for more.

A. L. WHYTE.

MINNESOTA EXPLAINED.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—It's not so difficult to understand the situation in Minneapolis. It had its inception and growth in the reign of the lumber kings there.

I was in the retail lumber business during the time when the power of these kings was supreme; subscribed to the trade journals, and was able to read a lot between their lines. The arrogance and pride and cruelty of these kings surpassed belief. The men that felled their forests and operated their mills were only tools in their hands by which they piled up their wealth—they were of no more value to them—no more thought of than the worn out machinery that they scrapped and replaced with new. They had no interest in the worn out man or the old horse that dropped dead under the pressure of the heavy load of logs that he drew. They are responsible for the class hatred in Minneapolis today. It was they who bred and nurtured it and no communists, nor radicals nor Reds.

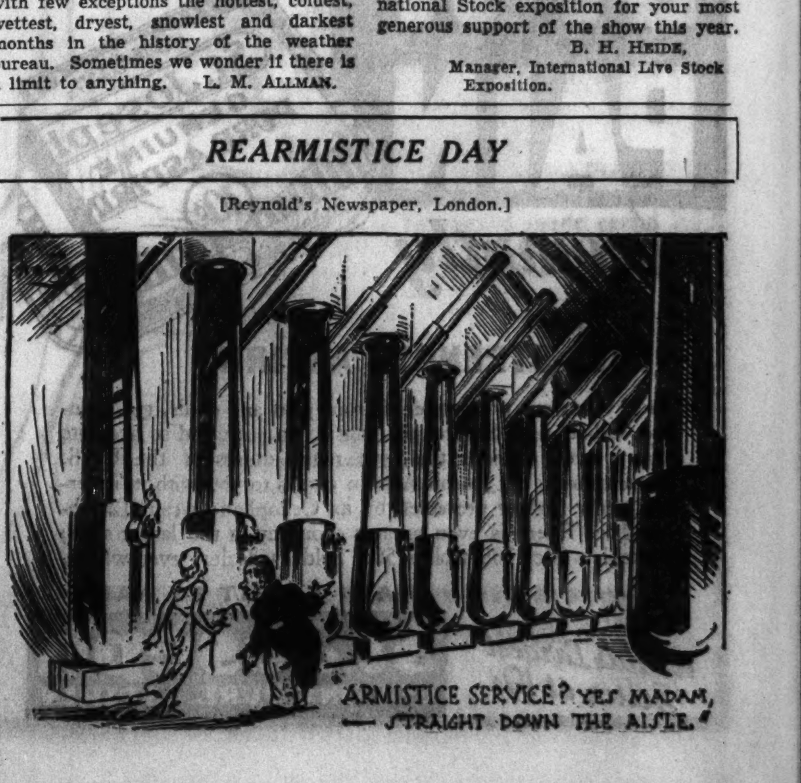
REARMISTICE DAY

[Reynold's Newspaper, London.]



ARMISTICE SERVICE? YES MADAM, — STRAIGHT DOWN THE AISLE.

SHOULD SANTA MISS A SINGLE CHICAGO CHILD?

Answer Up to You and Good Fellows.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

The dancing flames of a roaring fire made shadows on the ceiling of a darkened living room last night. Two children, a boy of 6 and his sister of 7, were seated at the piano playing and singing "Silent Night, Holy Night, All Is Calm, All Is Bright."

Their fingers paused at the end of the piece and their childish voices seemed to fade away in the silence of the room. Father and mother welcomed them to their arms and the four sat talking about the coming of Santa Claus.

The little girl spoke first.

Discuss Santa Claus.

That led to a general discussion about Santa Claus, just how this roly-poly fellow got down narrow chimneys and finally to the question of whether all the little boys and girls in Chicago were going to have a visit from Old Saint Nick on Christmas eve.

Similar scenes, no doubt, will be repeated thousands of times throughout Chicago during the next few days. And the question that remained unanswered for these two children will be asked over and over by child after child: Will every little boy and girl in Chicago be remembered at Christmas time?

Become a Good Fellow.

Reader—you can help answer that question by becoming a Good Fellow. As you read this hundreds of mothers and fathers are groping for an answer. They know that unless fate intervenes many a worn stocking will be empty. That fate can be none other than you—in the rôle of a Good Fellow.

So THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE each Christmas maintains this department in order to bring you together with the unfortunate family. Won't you join? Call Superior 0100 or fill in the accompanying Good Fellow coupon and send it to headquarters at 1 South Dearborn street in THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service office.

Thomas Wren, former Good Fellow editor of THE TRIBUNE, has asked for the names of five families to which he will take heaping baskets of food, toys and candy at Christmas time. Let's read what he says about his visit to Good Fellow homes last year:

"Last year, my Good Fellow visit was to a four-room apartment in the 1900 block on South Halsted street. A long, creaky and warped stairway, ill lighted, led to this fourth floor, rear, dwelling that housed five small children and a widowed mother. Their clothes were shabby but clean.

Girl Acts As Mother.

"The eldest girl, a peaked faced child of thin body and vacant stare was the little mother of the group. Hers was a valiant battle. A mongrel dog paced about the kitchen, circling in and about the children, displaying a paternalistic sort of attitude, occasionally substantiated with the flash of the teeth and a long, low growl; perhaps a warning to the visitor.

"Bleached flour sacks furnished the underclothing for the girls, the youngest of whom had just passed two. Absorbing some of the joy and happiness that radiated from this family in unfortunate circumstances as it received its basket, the Good Fellow's visit ended, as it started, bereft of any long, tangled rings of 'red tape'."

SEEKS TO FREE EX-OPERATOR OF MEDICAL CLINIC

An attempt to free Kenneth W. Barron, who is serving a sentence of a year in the county jail for practicing medicine without a license, was made yesterday before Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten. Attorney Harry Kronnenberg, counsel for Barron, alleged that his client did not waive a jury trial as shown by the court records.

Barron, former operator of the Madison-Western medical clinic, 2418 Madison street, was found guilty by Judge Hasten in a bench trial last Nov. 15 and was sentenced to jail and fined $500. Kronnenberg declared yesterday that his shorthand report of the trial failed to show Barron waived a jury. If the official record were changed as Kronnenberg requested the trial would be nullified and his client would be freed, the lawyer said.

Hearing on Kronnenberg's motion to change the record was continued to Dec. 20 to allow Assistant State's Attorney Jacob Sheer, who prosecuted the case, to file an answer.

TWO HELD IN BRAWL DEATH.

Joseph Taylor, 41 years old, 11749 Buffalo avenue, and Herman Marcinik, 29, of 8529 Muskegon avenue, were held to the grand jury yesterday on manslaughter charges by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of John Nivakovich, 11640 Buffalo avenue, who was fatally injured in a street fight Dec. 10.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Some Observations.

ALTHOUGH winter has closed down on the Wheaton experimental farm, the sheep there are still finding grass to eat these days, and to see them in the field cropping away at the green stuff, one might think that they had forgotten all about the season. These animals can do pretty much as they please right now. If they want to stay out in the pasture overnight they can. However, on cold nights you'll see them head for the sheepfold to get into a sheltered spot until morning.

If there are any barn owls [the monkey faced member of the owl family] that would like to move to a place where there is a lot of food for them this winter the boys on the Wheaton farm surely would like to get in touch with them. The ideal, happy hunting grounds for a pair of barn owls is the field near the big pond where countless numbers of meadow mice have their burrows in the heavy grass. Every time I walk through this part of the farm I see the mice scurrying along, giving me one fleeting glimpse of their dark gray bodies before they disappear in their runways.

These little rodents, quite common all through northern Illinois, have now abandoned their underground burrows because the soil is frozen, so they are living in nests above ground. The owls would find this field with its big population of meadow mice a wonderful spot to get their meals these winter days. Although a few barn owls live on the farm there are enough mice here to feed several more, if they want to move in and get free food and shelter.

Except for the flocks of juncos that flash their white outer tail feathers when they are flushed from a brushy or weedy thicket, the occasional sight of a hawk, the strident call of a jay, and the friendly notes of the chickadees, there isn't much life to be seen in the fields and woods of the farm these days when you hike over the place. The ponds are frozen tight, except for one corner of the large pond where there is water flowing into it. This is open, of course, and the water birds have access to it when they please. The Muscovys sometimes take to the air and fly out to their old pond home, but they just circle over the expanse of ice and then go back to the poultry yard.

The boys on the Yorkville farm still are hitting the bangboards in the cornfields, because all the corn has not been husked. But they have only about 90 more acres to take care of and they're not worrying about it because they realize that the big part of the cornhusking job has been completed.

One bunch of 202 steers here on the farm to be fattened for the market enjoyed a real thrill this week. They were let out at the west end of the field in order to be moved to a cornfield quite a distance east. They rushed through the gate on the gallop and the way they roared down the road made me think that the "head man" had turned the move into a race to see which one would get into the new field first. These steers are to act as gleaners in the cornfield. Their job is to get every bit of corn dropped by the husking squads.

While standing around the feed lot near Clarence's house the other day when a chilly wind was coming out of the north, I noticed that one pigeon was getting mighty chummy with the big Herefords. This bird flies down from the top of the barn and lights on the back of a steer. Apparently it's a sort of a game—anything to relieve the monotony of these winter days.

Yesterday I saw the first indication that the farm is expecting Santa Claus and the Christmas holidays pretty soon. The evidence was a beautiful big fruit cake baked by Mrs. Louis Thurow Sr. that won't be cut until Christmas day.

Youthful Fugitive Sought 2 Years Seized as Bandit

Paul Semchuk, 19 years old, who has been sought for more than two years since he escaped from a patrol wagon en route to the juvenile home, was arrested yesterday by the West North avenue police. Morris Banovitz, 1059 North Rockwell street, identified the youth as the person who robbed him of $100 on Nov. 7. Semchuk gave his address as 2316 North Moody avenue. In June, 1933, he was charged with robbery and was being transferred from a police station to the juvenile home when he escaped.

GIANT CHEESE TO REACH CHICAGO FOR POOR TODAY

Wisconsin Sends Dairy Queen with It.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—A mammoth cheese, weighing two tons, was on its way to Chicago today from Green Bay, a Christmas remembrance of Wisconsin cheese makers to Chicago's needy. It was a gift to Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and will be distributed at Christmas time through the Good Fellows.

The cheese, said to be the largest ever made, started by truck from Green Bay at 7 this morning, and its tour down the Fox river valley and across the state to Madison drew much attention. No one ever saw a two ton cheese before, and wherever it stopped there was much indulgence in mental arithmetic concerning how many sandwiches it would make and much conjecture as to how it would be sliced.

It Won't Be Sliced.

The plan of the donors is not to slice it up for sandwiches, but to distribute it in sizeable portions. It will provide good sized portions to around 5,000 families. A little less than a pound per family, mathematics show.

Virginia Kelly, Clintonville, chosen Wisconsin's dairy queen at the 1934 Wisconsin state fair, is riding in the escort car. She will be in Chicago about noon and make a presentation speech when the cheese is formally given to Col. McCormick. Steve Suidzinski, Denmark, Brown county cheese maker and fabricator of the two ton exhibit, rides in the escort car with Queen Virginia. Charles L. Nye, manager of the Shefford Cheese company, Green Bay, and Lee Yorkson, secretary of the Stevens Point Chamber of Commerce, and his 8 year old son, Buddy, comprise the rest of the escort.

Interest Slows Schedule.

The ride down the Fox river valley attracted so much attention that the procession got behind its schedule before noon. Stops were made at Depere, Kaukauna, Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Oshkosh and Fond du Lac and there was a grouping of spectators everywhere.

At Fond du Lac the route headed westward and stops were made at Waupun, Beaver Dam, Columbus, and finally at Madison, the college of agriculture and the university and the capitol. There was delay there. Glen J. Toule of the Green Bay Press Gazette, who accompanied the party and from time to time reported progress of the procession, bulletined that it was going to be late getting into Milwaukee, where it will be kept overnight, and where the escorts will freshen up for their trip to Chicago tomorrow morning.

On the way down, it will stop at Racine, Kenosha, Waukegan, Wilmette, Evanston, and reach Tribune square about 1:15 in the afternoon.

BARNET TAKES OATH OF OFFICE AS NEW PRESIDENT OF CUBA

HAVANA, Dec. 13.—(AP)—José A. Barnet, 71 year old diplomat, took the oath of office as provisional president of Cuba today. The full diplomatic corps assigned to Cuba, including Ambassador Jefferson Caffery of the United States, attended the ceremony.

The powerful Menocalista party which forced the resignation of President Carlos Mendieta announced its acceptance of Barnet. The party, headed by Gen. Mario G. Menocal, twice president, revoked its withdrawal from the national elections, set for Jan. 10 to set a constitutional government to supplant the provision administration, and expressed confidence of victory.

Barnet, former secretary of state, will serve as provincial president until the inauguration, May 20, of the president elected next month.

SANITARY BOARD HAS 2,500 ACRES OF LAND TO LET

Ross A. Woodhull, president of the Chicago sanitary district, said yesterday that 2,500 acres of district and bordering drainage channels are available for farming and for factory sites.

Descriptions and maps of the property have been prepared for the convenience of prospective lessees. In the spring signs will be posted on tracts still open for renting.

According to Woodhull, the district has in force sixteen 99 year leases to manufacturers, and a number of farm leases. These leases net $78,000 annually, he said, and if the additional acreage were leased on the same basis, the total income would be $200,000.

BOOKS

Rise of Stalin Traced in Book by Barbusse

Walter Duranty Also Writes About Russia.

BY LOUISE LEONARD WRIGHT

"Stalin," by Henri Barbusse. [Macmillan, $3.]

"I Write as I Please," by Walter Duranty. [Simon & Schuster, $3.]

"Men and Mountains," by M. Ilin. [Lippincott, $2.50.]

WHEN Stalin succeeded Lenin he was a dark horse to most of the western world. Now Duranty says that Stalin is the "greatest living statesman" and Stalin's pictures are everywhere added to those of Marx and Lenin.

Barbusse makes it clear that Stalin's career is no meteoric one. At 19, when he was expelled from school for studying natural science, he became a professional revolutionist "simply because I thought the Marxists were right." As a Georgian he revolted against the oppression of the Russian czar and as a worker he revolted against the capitalistic system.

With Lenin, Stalin worked for the revolution of 1905. He followed Lenin when the split came between the Bolsheviks and the Mensheviks.

In the lean years from 1905 to 1917 Stalin not only created discontent among the workers but he organized it. By 1917 he was a veteran ready to become a trusted and helpful understudy of Lenin. His special genius is for organization. Barbusse credits Stalin with the organization of the campaigns which defeated the Whites.

Organization Enables Him to Oust Trotsky.

As commissar for Nationalites, Stalin organized the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, which meant a recognition of the cultural independence and economic dependence of more than one hundred nations composing the union. Then, as general secretary of the central committee of the party, Stalin organized the membership so that he was eventually able to ease out Trotsky and the opposition. A ward politician would envy him his skill, but Stalin's real strength comes from his conviction that his cause is right.

This biography differs from most in that the author is more interested in the setting than the jewel. As an enthusiastic communist Barbusse is constantly leaving his subject in order to persuade his readers that the soviet system is the only good in this evil world.

Evidently what pleases Mr. Duranty is to string together anecdotes and incidents as one suggests another. His book is mostly about Russia, but at any moment the reader may be whisked back to the author's war experiences in France or school days in England. The writer uses the subject he knows best as the motif for a book which is sometimes philosophy, sometimes history, and always full of the vitality that goes with good conversation.

Duranty Asserts War Toughened His Hide.

The most striking autobiographical feature of the book is the effect the war had upon Duranty. He says it toughened his hide so that he could stand the appalling misery in Russia. Even the terrorism with its summary executions couldn't move him as did the sight of young men going off to be shot in the war.

Duranty takes his profession of journalism seriously. For fourteen years he has tried, through his dispatches to the New York Times, to make Americans understand what is going on in Russia. He has sometimes been accused of editorializing the news. To this he replies in his book that not only are the conditions in Russia alien to us but also the habits of thought. Without interpretation Russia can't be understood by westerners, he contends.

With disarming candor Duranty evaluates his early dispatches in the light of subsequent events. He takes justifiable delight in having prophesied that the Nep Era was a temporary expedient and that Stalin would succeed Lenin.

Book of Interviews.

"England Speaks," Philip Gibbs' picture of present day England, is based on interviews and travels throughout the country.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

The Inquiring Reporter visited five of the leading Chicago bookshops as the most likely places to find people interested in books and questioned the shoppers.

The Question.

What three books would you like to have for Christmas?

The Answers.

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, was found in Kroch's bookshop looking acquisitively at all sorts of books. He admitted that if he could have anything he wanted for Christmas he would choose "The Encyclopædia of the Social Sciences," edited by Edward R. A. Seligman and Alvin Johnson, which is five times three books, a set of 15 volumes.

GLENN FRANK.

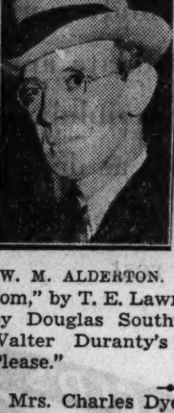
In Carson Pirie Scott & Co.'s bookshop Mrs. Corinne Bronson, 137 North street, Peoria, Ill., from the bookshop of Bergner's department store there, was taking a busman's holiday. Her choice was "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," by Barry Benefield; "Salamina," by Rockwell Kent, and Anne Morrow Lindbergh's "North to the Orient."

MRS. BRONSON.

Louis Cowan, a publicity man, 8 South Michigan avenue, who had dropped into the Doubleday-Doran bookshop to look over the new books, immediately nominated "The Twenties," volume VI. of Mark Sullivan's chronicle of "Our Times," a first edition of Sinclair Lewis' "It Can't Happen Here," and "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," by T. E. Lawrence.

LOUIS COWAN.

At the same bookshop W. M. Alderton, 5801 Dorchester avenue, who is a member of the faculty of the Chicago Theological seminary, affiliated with the University of Chicago, also turned his eyes entirely away from fiction. If he could have three books for Christmas, and just three of this year's luxurious crop, he would choose "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," by T. E. Lawrence; "R. E. Lee," by Douglas Southall Freeman, and Walter Duranty's "I Write as I Please."



W. M. ALDERTON.

Mrs. Charles Dye, 721 Rush street, "the woman in the home," who is actually that fabulous person that writers are always writing about—and hoping to please—just as they are "the man in the street," was looking at the selection of Christmas cards in Kroch's bookshop. She knew exactly what books she wanted for Christmas: "Mark Twain's Notebook," Gaar Williams' red plush album, "Among the Folks in History," and a volume of Dorothy Parker's poems.

MRS. CHARLES DYE

Paul Porter was in from Kenosha, Wis., for a day's jaunt when we found him at Brentano's eagerly looking over the year's literary treasures. He is a newpaper man there, and, perhaps because newspapers are so full of material for fiction, he chose solid fact for his Christmas books—Louis Corey's "Crisis of the Middle Class," "The Story of Civilization," by Will Durant, and Norman Thomas' "War."

Frank Hicks, 7555 South Shore drive, editor of the Racing Form, was also doing his Christmas shopping in the book section of Marshall Field & Co., and he, too, was intrigued with the new nonfiction. He said he would like to have "An Almanac for Moderns," by Donald Culross Peattie; "I Write as I Please," by Walter Duranty, and "Freedom of the Press," by George Seldes.

FRANK HICKS.

At the Doubleday-Doran bookshop Miss Flora Levy, 6801 South Oakley avenue, a graduate student at the University of Chicago, was very careful about her three choices. She gave them much thought and finally selected "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," by T. E. Lawrence; "Europa," by Robert Briffault, and "Modern Man in Search of a Soul," by C. G. Jung.

MISS FLORA LEVY.

At Carson's bookshop also was C. M. Strickland, a broker at the Board of Trade. He was just coming out of the rental library, where he had chosen a book to read over the week-end. He said that if he could have his choice of three of the year's books they would be Carter Harrison's autobiography, "Stormy Years"; Emil Ludwig's biography of "Hindenburg," and "Ordeal by Fire," by Fletcher Pratt.

C. M. STRICKLAND.

In the book section of Marshall Field & Co. Mrs. M. Howard, 22 East 24th street, Chicago Heights, Ill., was looking with zest at the books of new nonfiction preparatory to making her Christmas purchases. She is a pay roll clerk for a firm in Harvey, Ill., and books are even more fascinating to her than figures. She reads the book page of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE regularly, and she knows just which three books she'd choose for herself for Christmas. They are "Mrs. Astor's Horse," by Stanley Walker; Ellen Glasgow's "Vein of Iron," and "North to the Orient," by Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

MRS. M. HOWARD.

Many Favorite Authors Turn to Short Stories

Outstanding Books of Year Are Listed.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

SHORT stories have made a fruitful harvest in the literary garnering of 1935. Almost all your favorite authors have contributed a collection of tales.

Following are the outstanding books of the year in this field:

The O. Henry Memorial Award Prize Stories of 1935 [Doubleday, Nov., $2.50], edited by Harry Hansen. In this volume are the three tales which have been given the O. Henry memorial awards of $300, $200, and $100, respectively. They are "White Horses of Vienna," by Kay Boyle; "The Home Place," by Dorothy Thomas, and "John the Six," by Josephine Johnson. Interesting as the narratives themselves are the printed reasons of each judge for his or her choice.

The Best Stories of 1935 [Houghton-Mifflin, Sept., $2.50], edited by Edward J. O'Brien. This yearly publication always is of interest to lovers of the short story, for, besides pieces by famous as well as little known authors, Mr. O'Brien gives a list of the year's best books of tales, an index of short stories in books, distinctive stories in American magazines by American, Canadian, British, and Irish authors, and translations. These appendices are valuable source material.

From Death to Morning [Scribners, Oct., $2.50], by Thomas Wolfe. Reading the work of this genius is like listening to Wagner or watching the aurora borealis. It is an experience beside which the mill run of most fiction seems trivial and insignificant. Mr. Wolfe takes the form of the short story and twists it and shapes it to his own ends. Read "Dark in the Forest, Strange as Time" aloud in order to get the full glory and beauty of the words. "Death the Proud Brother" gives four pictures of death as it comes to four people in a huge city. It is one of the most magnificent pieces of writing I ever have read.

Fate Cries Out [Doubleday, Oct., $2.50], by Clemence Dane. In this volume of narratives Miss Dane pulls back the curtain on her characters at the crucial hour of their lives, at the very moment when fate cries out, when destiny is decided. Her art is one of consummate skill, of dignity, of beauty of tone.

What the Sweet Hell [Henry Holt, Oct., $2.00], by Peter Chamberlain. The title of this book is a trifle misleading. It refers only to the first story in the group, a grand little piece about a London tough.

Blandings Castle [Doubleday, Sept., $2], by P. G. Wodehouse. If you are one of his devotees the latest Wodehouse is your meat. But to a rank outsider "Blandings Castle" really isn't the top. It works too hard for every laugh, it is too labored, too artificial.

The Forsytes, Pendyces, and Others [Scribners, Oct., $2.50], by John Galsworthy. Probably the last posthumous collection of the work of this famous English writer to be published. In it are several early stories, bits about the Forsytes, the skeleton of a play, etc. Of especial interest is "Doldrums," written in the 1890s, before either Conrad or Galsworthy was famous. It contains portrait sketches of the two in an account of the torrid calm of the doldrums and its effect on a little group of mariners.

Kneel to the Rising Sun [Viking, June, $2.50], by Erskine Caldwell. The writer of "Tobacco Road" depicts the lives of more poor whites, Negroes, and landlord farmers in this group of violent and revolting short stories. However, each tale is like a blow, delivered with economy of motion and great force.

Winter Orchard and Other Stories [Simon & Schuster, Aug., $2.50], by Josephine Johnson. Readers who found beauty in "Now in November," Josephine Johnson's first novel, will be interested in this collection of her stories. Miss Johnson's art is simple, gentle, soft, "a lovely voice speaking in a quiet room."

All the Young Men [Houghton-Mifflin, Aug., $2.50], by Oliver La Farge. Almost all the narratives in this book are about the Indians of our southwest. Among the twelve pieces are four exceptions: "Haunted Ground," a mystical tragedy; "No More Bohemia," which depicts the artistic temperament [if that be possible!]; "The Goddess Was Mortal," the brief romance of an archæologist and a woman of the tropics, and "Camping on My Trail," a hair raising account of an American engineer who is pursued through the jungle by savages and whose life depends on his endurance and the few bullets he has left for his gun. This last is a classic in the field of the short story. Mr. La Farge, when writing about Indians, shows a deep sympathy and understanding. This volume does more to explain the Indians than reams of learned treatises and scientific investigations.

Chocolate and Vanilla [Knopf, Sept., $2], by Fannie Ferber Fox. Here is a group of women whose portraits form a cross-section of middle class American life. The locale of most of the tales is Chicago, where the author, the sister of Edna Ferber, lived for many years. They are stories in the vernacular, most of them with a breezy humor and a not too subtle irony. A little of "Chocolate and Vanilla" goes a long way.

Dream without Ending [Longmans, Sept., $2], by Ursula Parrott. Here are facile, fluent little dramas divided into three groups—those with a West Indian background, those with a strong American flavor, and those called Russian. In this last you have a moviesque romance between a beautiful Russian-American princess and a tall and stalwart American whom she tries to bend to her will. Told with a good deal of verve and a light touch, it yet fails to convince you.

Guillotine Party [Vanguard, Oct., $2.50], by James T. Farrell. The author of the trilogy about Studs Lonigan may be counted upon to give a graphic picture of life in the raw, minus a single illusion, and this he does in this collection of his stories. One of them is, indeed, the sketch which formed the nucleus of the trilogy. All have a Chicago background; all are bitter.

Money from Home [Stokes, Oct., $2], by Damon Runyon. If you enjoyed "Blue Plate Special" you have a lot of laughs in store for you in this new series of funny tales by one of America's most facile writers of the idiom. When Mr. Runyan tells you about race track touts, or chorus girls, crooks, ticket speculators, or any of the minor lights of Broadway, you practically shake hands with them. There's hardly a dull moment in this entire book. It's heartily recommended as a Christmas gift for a man—any man.

Mr. Aristotle [McBride, Sept., $2], by Ignazio Silone. Although Silone is considered one of Italy's finest writers and his book "Fontamara" has been translated into fourteen languages, he is on Mussolini's blacklist and his work never is published in his own country. This new book of his stories depicts the slow, tortured workings of the peasant's mind; shows the bare existence meted out to him; gives slow starvation as the reason for his absurdities and his crimes. The author shows the dark, cruel, and relentless side of Fascism. He writes with great simplicity and deep sympathy.

San Francisco Tales [Appleton-Century, Sept., $2.50], by Charles Caldwell Dobie. As the name indicates, these narratives are concerned with the many-faceted life of the city of the Golden Gate. Whether packed with melodrama and action or with the subtle workings of the mind, these sketches are done with considerable skill, albeit tinged strongly with sentimentality.

Other important collections of short stories of the year are:

Mr. White, The Red Barn, Hell, and Bridewater [Doubleday, Oct., $1.25], by Booth Tarkington. Stories with a mystical and supernatural flavor.

The Elaghin Affair [Knopf, Feb., $2.50], by Ivan Bunin. Sophisticated tales with a European background.

Time, the Present [Simon & Schuster, May, $2.50], by Tess Slesinger. Clever stories of the post-war generation.

Selected Short Stories [Doubleday, July, $2.50], by Sinclair Lewis.

Feliciana [Scribners, July, $2.50], by Stark Young. Among these tales are several about characters in, and with the delicate beauty of, "So Red the Rose."

My Own, My Native Land [Doubleday, Aug., $2.50], by Thyra Samter Winslow. Thumbnail sketches, like old chromos, of the middle western American scene. As homely and as appetizing as a loaf of fresh bread.

Taps at Reveille [Scribners, March, $2.50], by F. Scott Fitzgerald.

The Doctor's Son [Harcourt-Brace, Feb., $2.50], by John O'Hara.

Review Shows Year Is Rich in Nonfiction

Many Enjoy Reading of Courageous Careers.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

IN nonfiction as well as in fiction 1935 has been rarely rich. American readers seem to have discovered anew the joys to be found in the vicarious companionship of those who have faced life with high courage; for the most popular books of the year have been books of that type.

The most important book of the year, perhaps of our day, was such a one—"SEVEN PILLARS OF WISDOM" [Doubleday, Sept., $5], by T. E. LAWRENCE, who recorded in its many pages the greatest personal adventure of our generation. And vying with it in popularity was a short book, "NORTH TO THE ORIENT" [Harcourt, Aug., $2.50], by ANNE MORROW LINDBERGH, which was one of the loveliest books of its kind ever written, the record of a perilous air trip, but, more deeply, the record of a spirit with wings.

The public's interest in adventures of the flesh and of the spirit began early in the year with the publication of VINCENT SHEEAN'S "PERSONAL HISTORY" [Doubleday, Feb., $3], the record of the first thirty years of a newspaper man's lifetime. It was a best seller from its publication date for months. Its particular public is now reading with zest the reminiscences of another newspaper man, WALTER DURANTY, "I WRITE AS I PLEASE" [Simon, Nov., $3], or perhaps "THE STREET I KNOW" [Furman, Oct., $2.75], the reminiscences of HAROLD STEARNS, who also was a newspaper man.

Tales of Revolution and Exploration.

ROSA E. KING was not a reporter, but no one ever reported more factually or more excitingly a revolution than she did in "TEMPEST OVER MEXICO" [Little, July, $3].

No more remote spot was ever stepped upon by man than the sea and ice covered earth under the feet of ADMIRAL RICHARD E. BYRD in "DISCOVERY" [Putnam, Nov., $3.75], the record of his second antarctic expedition, a book written with such zest and humor that it fascinates any one.

ERNEST HEMINGWAY went to far places in "GREEN HILLS OF AFRICA" [Scribners, Oct., $2.75], ROCKWELL KENT took his double barreled pen and pencils to Greenland again in "SALAMINA" [Harcourt, Oct., $3.75] and had mild adventures. In "ASYLUM" [Harcourt, Aug., $2] WILLIAM SEABROOK immured himself to be cured of drunkenness, and the record of his conquest of self is as fascinating as his picture of an insane asylum.

Historical Biographies Far Above Average.

Biographies and memoirs which either contributed to history as source material or interpreted historical persons or actions were numerous and above the average in excellence. An important contribution to source material was the publication of the memoirs of ARMAND DE CAULAINCOURT, who was Napoleon's master of horse and fled with him alone from Russia. After a hundred years they have just been published under the title "WITH NAPOLEON IN RUSSIA" [Morrow, Nov., $3.75].

ROBERT LANSING'S "WAR MEMOIRS" [Bobbs, Sept., $3.50] and volume 5 of "WOODROW WILSON" [Doubleday, Nov., $4], which not only explain but document the years of neutrality of the war President, both contain hitherto unpublished evidence.

American historical biography was greatly enhanced with the publication of the two concluding volumes of "R. E. LEE" [Scribners, Feb., $3.75 a volume, four volume set $15], by DOUGLAS SOUTHALL FREEMAN, and with a book about "THE LEES OF VIRGINIA" [Little, Oct., $3.75], by BURTON J. HENDRICK. John C. Calhoun emerged from the biography by ARTHUR STYRON as "THE CAST IRON MAN" [Longmans, Nov., $3.50]. FRANK MONAGHAN sang of "JOHN JAY" [Bobbs, Sept., $4] and "ULYSSES S. GRANT" [Dodd, Sept., $4], was judged by William B. Hesseltine.

CHARLES G. DAWES' "NOTES AS VICE PRESIDENT" [Little, Oct., $3] were interesting, but too reticent to be classed as real source material about the Coolidge régime. On the other hand, CARTER H. HARRISON, oftentimes mayor of Chicago, talked right out in his autobiography, "THE STORMY YEARS" [Bobbs, Oct., $3.75]. In UNOFFICIAL OBSERVER'S "OUR LORDS AND MASTERS" [Simon, Oct., $3.50] we were told even more frankly who governs the world. How two of them did was told in "SAWDUST CÆSAR" [Harpers, Nov., $3.50], by GILBERT SELDES, a book which will keep the author forever out of Italy, and in "STALIN" [Macmillan, Nov., $3], by

KNOOP SCULPTURE OF MAUROIS

Stein Lectures to Americans Are Published

Help Some to Understand Noted Figure.

"Narration," by Gertrude Stein [University of Chicago Press, $2.50]. Introduction by Thornton Wilder. Published on Tuesday.

"Lectures in America," by Gertrude Stein [Random, $2.50].

THE publication this week of the four lectures which Gertrude Stein gave at the University of Chicago in the spring, with "Lectures in America," which were delivered mostly to students of the other great universities, make a complete record of the public utterances of the most spectacular literary visitor of our day. No writer for years has been so widely discussed, so much caricatured, so passionately championed.

The name Gertrude Stein is known to every one: Those who think a book is something to put a cocktail glass on so that it won't make a ring on the table as well as to the intelligentsia.

It is a phenomenon that Gertrude Stein after an absence in France of thirty years came to her native land known only to a few writers or to those who had met her abroad as a brilliant critic, as a writer however important, difficult to understand, and as a personality of tremendous vitality and power; and that after six months she returned to France known to every one who reads the newspapers.

Her opera, "Four Saints in Three Acts," gave undeniable pleasure to the most nonliterary as well as to the most sophisticated; all of whom stubbornly insisted that it didn't matter whether you understood the words or not, the opera was delicious. And she became the passionate enthusiasm of most of the young intellectuals of the land. Those are facts, but they do not wholly explain the phenomenon which made the name Gertrude Stein a part of the popular American vocabulary.

The phenomenon may be illumined a little by another fact admitted by every one who came in contact with her: that it is impossible to talk to or listen to Gertrude Stein without being convinced that she has one of the rare intelligences of the day, that she is absolutely serious and sure about her own work, and that she is a born teacher.

These two volumes of her lectures will for some help clear the mists from the phenomenon of her capture of the interest of the American public. For others they may add to those mists, for the lectures were written for and presumably delivered to audiences with a special interest and equipment in the highly specialized subjects with which they are concerned—the intricacies of expressing in a fresh manner the eternal truths of whatever the creator wants to create—the writer, the essence of scene and temperament, the painter, the essence of form and color, the American, his America.

The short introduction by Thornton Wilder to "Narration" is, in itself, a brilliant example of criticism, exposition, and interpretation. F. B.

Maurois Pens Clear Pictures of 9 Writers

Publish His Lectures on British Authors.

"Prophets and Poets," by Andre Maurois. [Harpers, $3.] Published Dec. 2.

ANDRE MAUROIS' latest book is intriguing not only because it is written by one of the most finished of French writers, but also because it was written [as a series of lectures] to explain to France the work of "certain English writers who, since the opening of the century, have played an important part in the spiritual molding of two or three generations of human beings."

In an almost elementary fashion M. Maurois offers to his readers the essential facts of the biographies, character, and work of the writers who, he says, have "offered to their contemporaries not only esthetic enjoyment but also a philosophy," and, in that simplicity, clarifies, even for readers who know it intimately, the work of the men and women he discusses.

M. Maurois' method of presentation is as simple as the multiplication table. He tells [first] the biographical and social facts which influenced [second] the author's character and point of view and [third] how they produced [fourth] the author's philosophy. It is the most effective of patterns for critical biographical writing, and perfectly adapted to M. Maurois' purposes.

Brilliantly Highlights Nine English Writers.

The nine writers whom he thus brilliantly high-lights are Rudyard Kipling, H. G. Wells, Bernard Shaw, G. K. Chesterton, Joseph Conrad, Lytton Strachey, D. H. Lawrence, Aldous Huxley, and Katherine Mansfield. The book sparkles with quotable paragraphs [my copy bristles with page markings] and it is an inadequate display of the book's charms to choose sentences from their mosaic setting. But a phrase here and there . . .

About Kipling he says that "what we sought in Kipling, apart from the admirable stories, was first and foremost a heroic conception of life," and he says [in contradiction to many other critics—and rightly so, it seems to me] "that conception was neither exclusively British nor exclusively imperial." In a word, the great influence of Kipling was due not to his stirring of the blood of the British to conquest, but to the inevitable stirring of any reader's blood by heroic dreams.

H. G. Wells, he says, "believes that human societies can attain to a state of lasting perfection and that this state is within sight," and that "better than any one he has demonstrated the absurdities of a society which has failed to adapt its functions to its powers."

Calls Bernard Shaw "A Destructive Power."

Bernard Shaw, he says, "has been a destructive power, he has had little creative influence," and he compares Shaw with Voltaire: "He has the same encyclopedic intelligence, the same fusion of a light tone and serious content, the same vivacity of style and personality, the same vivid and laughing old age."

"Kipling, Wells, and Shaw, each in his own way are aristocrats," says M. Maurois. "Chesterton on the contrary is a democrat." And he declares that "during an age of morbid rationalism, Chesterton reminded men that reason is indeed a wonderful tool, but a tool that needs material to work on, and produces nothing if it does not take the existing world as its object."

Conrad's "message," he says, "appears as the most direct expression of a stoic philosophy of life; that of the British man of action. This foreigner has proved himself, more exactly even than Kipling, the interpreter of what is best in the English soul."

M. Maurois tries to seek out the causes of the worldly success won by an essayist [Lytton Strachey], "whose writings did not seem, a priori, destined to interest a wide public," and among other keen evaluations declares that Lytton Strachey's "originality lies in the fact that he introduced the ideas and tone of an eighteenth century Frenchman into an England which was still Victorian," but that he did so "in a very English way."

Sees Lawrence Longing to Preach.

Of D. H. Lawrence he says: "If ever there was a writer who longed to preach a gospel, to offer men a faith, it was Lawrence. But to define that faith is not easy." There is, incidentally, a serious typographical error on page 265 which describes Lawrence's last days in Vence, France. "He is buried at Venice," the text reads.

Huxley, M. Maurois says, "understands, demonstrates, refashions, and distrusts every system; but . . . he is saved by the poetry of the systems and of disdain."

Katherine Mansfield "is a great writer, one of those who added deep truths to English literature of the present day . . . because she knew that spontaneity and sincerity are of far greater import than verbal brilliance, strangeness of feeling, or novelty of ideas."

Three Other Books on English Authors.

The season has offered us three other intriguing books on English writers. Two of them are at least partly concerned with the fantastic Lord Byron and the third has as many of his quips and idiosyncracies in its pages as those of any other poet.

Peter Quennell writes of "Byron: The Years of Fame" [Viking, $3.50], when an unstable, too young man was idolized by a whole nation and looked upon as a god, even though half angel and half fiend. Mr. Quennell has material more fantastic than any fiction writer ever made up for his hero, and he writes a biography more exciting than most novels.

Byron is one of "The Romantic Rebels" [Little-Brown, $3.75] with whom Frances Winwar is concerned. Shelley and Keats are the other two of the spectacular trilogy. The author relates them to one another and —more thrillingly—to their times of whose ferment they were the rich wine, as potent intoxicants today as they were to their own contemporaries.

"Annals of the Poets" [Scribners, $3], by Chard Powers Smith, is one of those illuminating books that occasionally come to us from some one who has taken delight in gathering an infinitude of facts about an infinite number of uncommon human beings. Mr. Smith subtitles his book, "Their Origins, Backgrounds, Characters, and Personal Peculiarities, Private Lives, and Habits of Composition," and in the 500 odd pages of his volume there is the most amazing collation of oddities about great literary figures that you ever met.

TWICE SUPPRESSED, 'SAWDUST CAESAR' IS PUBLISHED IN EAST

"Sawdust Caesar," George Seldes' indictment of Mussolini and Fascism in general, has just been published in New York by Harpers. The book was originally sold to a London publisher, who prepared the MS. for publication in 1932. At that time, however, the foreign office requested the publisher to suppress the volume on account of the very friendly relations between Great Britain and Italy. Now the ban has been lifted and the book is being rushed through the press in England.

"Sawdust Caesar" was also banned by the Quai d'Orsay for the same reason.

THREE DIMENSIONAL BOOKS WITH 'SPECS' FUN FOR MANY AGES

Small books with a simple device in their front covers, pasteboard glasses with colored lenses through which one looks at the illustrations, offer one of the most engaging "tricks" in the book business. With the material taken from museums or from spots of natural beauty the Orthovis company has published volumes of authentic comment and strangely blurred illustrations which, when looked at through the specs, clear up and become three dimensional instead of two, and the groups of animals, or the caves, or what not that one is gazing upon seem to be almost museum pieces in themselves. Most of the books are intended for children, but there are some which adults find fascinating. The Orthovis company has exhibits at most of the leading bookshops.

Miss Strobel Reviews Year Among Poets

Finds Worthwhile Works in Many Classes.

BY MARION STROBEL.

IN "Solstice" [Random, $2] Robinson Jeffers has at last connected with his material. With as much effortless grace as Joe Louis he has put on an unforgettable show. Yet because Mr. Jeffers' medium happens to be poetry the average citizen simply won't believe it has as much punch as a prize fight. That it has vitality, color, drama, and the ruthless authority that could make some seventy-five thousands yell themselves hoarse—that is, if they could somehow be inveigled into reading it.

The book is short, a few lyrics and two long poems. It is these that are the show. The lyrics are equivalent to preliminary rounds. The long poems, "At the Birth of an Age" and "Solstice," are Jeffers at his best. Here is not only the power of his earlier work, but a mastery of that power. Here is blood, hate, and pathology, but each under control. The reader gets the complete impact of their force.

Winifred Welles' lyrics are as lovely as any being written today. The sensitive microscope of her eye makes minutiæ of beauty startlingly visible. Not grass, but each blade of it, is seen; not grasshoppers only, but their antennæ; each separate petal of a flower. She foreshortens the world. Its colors become so fresh, its lines so myriad, that they have the beauty of heightened evanescence. Familiarity becomes luminous and strange, like objects seen after a long illness.

Her lyrical preceptions are as acute as ever in her latest narrative poems. Each story, of the four she tells in

MEXICAN ODYSSEY

By HEATH BOWMAN and STIRLING DICKINSON
Foreword by JOSÉ MOJICA

A TALE of happy-go-lucky journeyings in a strange land that thrills with quaint and unexpected adventure.

Stirling Dickinson, artist and Heath Bowman, writer, Chicagoans and Princeton graduates have achieved a delightful chronicle of six months' wandering in Mexico. Their work is a perfect collaboration. Vivid parts of their romantic records are written by the artist and some of the most striking of the 73 linoleum prints project the author's thoughts.

A book that you can give riotously at Christmas. Every one will enjoy it. José Mojica calls this "the best book I have read about my country."

Review Shows Year Is Rich in Nonfiction

HENRI BARBUSSE, who was as welcome in Russia as the sunshine.

Kings of Other Days Live Again.

Rulers of another day lived again vividly in "FRANCIS I." [Doubleday, March, $3], by FRANCIS HACKETT, and a little naughtily in "GEORGE THE FOURTH" [Putnam, Aug., $3], by ROGER FULFORD. King and queen makers were chronicled in "HINDENBURG" [Winston, April, $3.75], by EMIL LUDWIG, and in volumes 3 and 4 of a monumental biography by WINSTON CHURCHILL—"MARLBOROUGH" [Scribners, March, $3 a volume].

There was another life of "JOAN OF ARC" [Little, Nov., $3.75], by MILTON WALDMAN, to add to the shelf already crowded with stories of her life.

Royal Ladies Popular as Biographical Subjects.

Royal ladies were the subjects of some of the most popular biographies of the year. "MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTLAND AND THE ISLES" [Viking, Aug., $3.50], gave a new, frank picture of her. "CATHERINE" [Viking, June, $3.50], GINA KAUS' story of the Russian empress, reads almost like a novel. E. F. BENSON wrote a delightful biography in "QUEEN VICTORIA" [Longmans, April, $3.50]. FRANCIS WATSON told of "THE LIFE AND TIMES OF CATHERINE DE MEDICI" [Appleton, Aug., $3]. "MARGUERITE OF NAVARRE" [Coward, Oct., $3.50] engaged the talents of SAMUEL PUTNAM.

Among the biographies which chronicle greatness there were only two about women—"JANE ADDAMS" [Appleton, Sept., $3.50], by her nephew, JAMES WEBER LINN, and a biography JANE ADDAMS herself finished just before she died, "MY FRIEND JULIA LATHROP" [Macmillan, Nov., $2]. "GOD'S SOLDIER" [Macmillan, May, 2 vols., $7.50] was what ST. JOHN ERVINE called Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army.

Two scholars were the subjects of important biographies. "PERCIVAL LOWELL" [Macmillan, Nov., $3] was studied by A. LAWRENCE LOWELL, and RALPH BARTON PERRY wrote exhaustively about "THE THOUGHT AND CHARACTER OF WILLIAM JAMES" [Little, Nov., 2 vols., $12].

HAROLD NICOLSON wrote tellingly of "DWIGHT MORROW" [Harcourt, Oct., $3.75], WILLIAM T. HUTCHINSON gave us the second volume of his "CYRUS HALL McCORMICK" [Appleton, Nov., $5], and THOMAS BOYD wrote feelingly about a less fortunate inventor, "POOR JOHN FITCH" [Putnam, Sept., $3].

Two newspaper men were the subjects of biographies—"VICTOR LAWSON" [University of Chicago, Dec., $4], former editor of the Chicago Daily News, by CHARLES H. DENNIS, and Frank A. Munsey, who was not treated so gently by GEORGE BRITT in "FORTY YEARS, FORTY MILLIONS" [Farrar, Oct., $3].

Two Stories About Fathers Popular.

Biographies about their fathers which were as fascinating as they were unconventional were two of the most popular books of the season, "OLD JULES" [Little, Oct., $3], by MARI SANDOZ, which won the Atlantic $5,000 1935 nonfiction prize, and the incomparably amusing "LIFE WITH FATHER" [Knopf, Aug., $2], by CLARENCE DAY.

There were a great many exciting books this year of memoirs and description and criticism of the social scene, in America and abroad, which were a delight. How gaudy America can be when she sets her mind to it was told in "KING LEHR" [Lippincott, Aug., $3], by ELIZABETH DREXEL LEHR; in "BROWNSTONE FRONTS AND SARATOGA TRUNKS" [Dutton, Oct., $3.75], by HENRY COLLINS BROWN, and, a little more sardonically, in "MRS. ASTOR'S HORSE" [Stokes, Oct., $3], by STANLEY WALKER. Any one of the three books is priceless.

Pretty sardonic, too, were the tales of the "LORDS OF CREATION" [Harpers, Oct., $3], the great financiers of America, by FREDERICK LEWIS ALLEN. Only slightly sardonic is "THE DU PONT DYNASTY" [Reynal., Sept., $3], by JOHN K. WINKLER.

"Mars His Idiot" Bitter Attack on War.

"MARS HIS IDIOT" [Harpers, Nov., $2.50], by H. M. TOMLINSON, was a magnificent and terrible indictment of war.

"THE DIARY OF OUR OWN SAMUEL PEPYS" [Simon, Nov., 2 vols., $6], by FRANKLIN P. ADAMS, is a running commentary on the events of the last two decades in New York, a period and a place which saw many of the events in the life of "THE FABULOUS WILSON MIZNER" [Henkle, Nov., $3], by EDWARD DEAN SULLIVAN.

Five decades are covered by ROBERT T. MORRIS in his autobiography, "FIFTY YEARS A SURGEON" [Dutton, Feb., $3.50]. Two American women wrote of their own full lives, a great feminist in "THE LIVING OF CHARLOTTE PERKINS GILMAN" [Appleton, Oct., $3], and HELEN WOODWARD in "THREE FLIGHTS UP" [Dodd, Oct., $3].

One of the most important autobiographies of the year was BARONESS SHIDZUE ISHIMOTO'S "FACING TWO WAYS" [Farrar, Aug., $3.50], relating her life on two continents. And LILO LINKE'S "RESTLESS DAYS" [Knopf, April, $3] was an amazing first hand picture of modern Germany.

Four Important Books About American Writers.

There were likewise many excellent biographies and memoirs with a literary turn to them. Of the critical and factual lives of great writers four important books were about Americans—"AMY LOWELL" [Houghton, Nov., $5], by FOSTER DAMON; "VACHEL LINDSAY" [Scribners, Sept., $3], by a fellow Illinois poet, EDGAR LEE MASTERS; MARGARET DELAND'S memories of her childhood, "IF THIS BE I" [Appleton, Oct., $2], and the final documentary evidence about the greatest of American humorists, "MARK TWAIN'S NOTEBOOK" [Harpers, Oct., $4], edited by his biographer, ALBERT BIGELOW PAINE.

ANDRE MAUROIS, a famous Frenchman, gave us two books this year about English literary figures—a biography of "DICKENS" [Harpers, Feb., $2] and "PROPHETS AND POETS" [Harpers, Dec., $3], short critical biographies of nine modern English writers.

ARTHUR BRYANT continued his biography of "SAMUEL PEPYS: THE YEARS OF PERIL" [Macmillan, Nov., $3.50], telling of the period not covered by the famous diary. FRANCES WINWAR wrote of Byron, Shelley, and Keats in "THE ROMANTIC REBELS" [Little, Nov., $3.75]. PETER QUENNELL glowingly pictured "BYRON" [Viking, Nov., $3.50] in his years of fame. JESSIE CONRAD wrote intimately about her husband in "JOSEPH CONRAD AND HIS CIRCLE" [Dutton, Sept., $3.50].

Reminiscences Tell of Literary Figures.

Volumes of reminiscences, mostly of literary figures, were "CHRONICLES OF BARABBAS" [Harcourt, April, $3.75], by a retired New York publisher, GEORGE H. DORAN; "CONTRACTS" [Harpers, Sept., $3], by an international literary agent, Curtis Brown, and "TIME PAST" [Houghton, Oct., $3], reminiscences of the great Paris literary days of MARIE SCHEIKEVITCH, who knew every one.

She knew a great many of the people whom HAVELOCK ELLIS discussed in "FROM ROUSSEAU TO PROUST" [Houghton, Nov., $3.50], a study of modern French literature, including ANDRE GIDE, whose amazing autobiography was "IF IT DIE" [Random, Oct., $5]. But not, of course, "BEAUMARCHAIS," the great French dramatist of the eighteenth century, whose biography is thoroughly covered by PAUL FRISCHAUER [Viking, Oct., $3.50].

Reminiscences of well known men included JOHN HAYS HAMMOND'S "AUTOBIOGRAPHY" [Farrar, March, 2 vols., $5] and ESME HOWARD'S memoirs, "THEATRE OF LIFE" [Little, Oct., $3.50]. And about the real theater the delicious book about her father, "DU MAURIER" [Doubleday, April, $3], by DAPHNE DU MAURIER; "DIAGHILEFF" [Simon, Oct., $3.75], the biography of the genius of the Russian ballet by ARNOLD L. HASKELL and WALTER NOUVEL.

A woman who knew the great made intimate disclosures of them—MABEL DODGE LUHAN in "EUROPEAN EXPERIENCES" [Harcourt, Sept., $3.75].

Donald Culross Peattie's Work Wins Honor.

There were some books of nonfiction this year which are in a class by themselves. Two books by DONALD CULROSS PEATTIE were of that kind—"AN ALMANAC FOR MODERNS" [Putnam, March, $3], which has just been chosen by the Limited Editions club jury as the year's "modern classic" to be perpetuated in a special form, and "SINGING IN THE WILDERNESS" [Putnam, Sept., $2.50], which he calls a "salute to John James Audubon."

Likewise one cannot classify SOMERSET MAUGHAM'S exquisite and masterful "DON FERNANDO" [Doubleday, July, $2.50], for it is more than a picture of Spain in the glory of its golden age. And no book just like "RATS, LICE, AND HISTORY" [Little, Feb., $2.75], by HANS ZINSSER, was ever written, turning the bitter eyes of malevolent germs onto history. And who ever could tab exactly "EARLY ONE MORNING" [Macmillan, Sept., $5], by WALTER DE LA MARE? We'll say it's an anthology of the delicious things that have been written about childhood.

It is easier to classify "MAN, THE UNKNOWN" [Harpers, Sept., $3.50], a brilliant study of the metaphysical by one of the world's greatest doctors, DR. ALEXIS CARREL. Though they are about subjects a little strange to some of us, GERTRUDE STEIN'S "LECTURES IN AMERICA" [Random, March, $2.50] and the lectures which she delivered at the University of Chicago, "NARRATION" [University of Chicago Press, Dec., $2.50], are wholly and fascinatingly comprehensible.

ZORA NEALE HURSTON made a remarkable collection of Negro folk tales and beliefs in "MULES AND MEN" [Lippincott, Oct., $3]. HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON took us all over the seven seas in "SHIPS" [Simon, Feb., $3].

Playgoers would never miss BURNS MANTLE'S annual, "THE BEST PLAYS" [Dodd, Oct., $3]. GEORGE SELDES wrote stingingly about "THE FREEDOM OF THE PRESS" [Bobbs, Sept., $2.75], and there was a delightful book of essays, almost hilarious "FOR AUTHORS ONLY" [Doubleday, Aug., $2.50], by KENNETH ROBERTS.

History has not been slighted this year in the spate of the year's excellent books of nonfiction. Two fine ones of the survey type were given us—"HISTORY OF WESTERN CIVILIZATION" [Harpers, Sept., 2 vols., $10], by HARRY ELMER BARNES, and "THE STORY OF CIVILIZATION" [Simon, July, 2 vols., $5], which is the first part of what will be five impressive sections by WILL DURANT.

That most useful of all reference histories of the immediate past was completed this year by MARK SULLIVAN with "OUR TIMES: THE '20S" [Scribners, Nov., $3.75]. Two volumes of "A HISTORY OF EUROPE" [Houghton, vol. 1 June, vol. 2 Oct., $4 each], by H. A. L. FISHER, brought us what critics considered the most witty, scholarly history of the year in England. WILLIAM HENRY CHAMBERLIN gave us the first comprehensive unbiased "HISTORY OF THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION" [Macmillan, May, 2 vols., $12].

LIN YUTANG interpreted "MY COUNTRY AND MY PEOPLE" [Day, Sept., $3] in a book which was not history, but which helps readers to understand Chinese history. WALTER PRESCOTT WEBB wrote excitingly about the days of "THE TEXAS RANGERS" [Houghton, Nov., $5], and PHILIP ASHTON ROLLINS edited the journals of Robert Stuart in "THE DISCOVERY OF THE OREGON TRAIL" [Scribners, 2 vols., $7.50].

From France came the lectures which BERNARD FAY gave spectacularly at the Sorbonne, "REVOLUTION AND FREEMASONRY, 1680-1800" [Little, Nov., $3]. WALTER MILLIS gave us a fascinating picture of our country from 1914 to 1917 in "ROAD TO WAR" [Houghton, May, $3], and HERBERT AGAR set us all thinking about our "LAND OF THE FREE" [Houghton, Oct., $3.50].

Herma Clark, author of "When Chicago Was Young" in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, will give a "Dickens Evening" on Friday at 8 o'clock in Fullerton hall, the Art institute. The program will consist of a talk, "When Charles Dickens Was Young," and readings from "A Christmas Carol." Tickets may be had from Miss Lucy B. Kent, 40 East Huron street, or they may be bought at the door.

Miss Strobel Reviews Year Among Poets

"A Spectacle for Scholars" [Viking, $1.75], is whimsical and wise. There is humor in them and tragedy. No one of the four is as a whole, however, as exciting as its component lyrical parts.

Robert Frost has written an introduction for his friend Edwin Arlington Robinson's last book. It is an introduction that is as beautiful as any poem that Frost has ever written. In eleven pages of prose as clear and sharp as a New England winter he gives his philosophy of good and bad writing, of humor and of grief. With charm and humility he shows the world as it is and his friend Robinson as he knew him to be. It is an introduction that has the grandeur and simplicity of the Gettysburg address.

In "King Jasper" [Macmillan, Sept., $2] Robinson tells the story of a king's lust for gold. King Jasper is symbolical of our present age. The poem moves quickly with great power and restraint. It has wisdom and humor. At the tragic end of the story there remains only Zoë, the life-force. Frost says that any poet to resemble Robinson "would have to resemble him in that grazing closeness of spiritual realities."

In "Saint Peter Relates an Incident" [Viking, $2], James Weldon Johnson again shows the tenderness, the reverence, and the humor that make his work a spiritual beacon for any race. The book includes the Negro national hymn that Johnson wrote twenty years ago, several dialect poems, and many others varied in form but similar in mellowness and sincerity.

There is also the title poem. This is the most important in the book. It was written at white heat. In a foreword Mr. Johnson says that he read one morning in the newspapers that the United States government was sending a contingent of gold star mothers to France to visit the graves of their soldier sons buried there; and that the Negro gold star mothers would not be allowed to sail on the same ship with the white gold star mothers, but would be sent over on a second and second class vessel.

The poem, which is never bitter, which is always big, amused and understanding, made me, and I think would make any other white reader, ashamed.

Marianne Moore's "Selected Poems" [Macmillan, $2], demand intelligent and careful reading. T. S. Eliot says in his introduction, "My conviction has remained unchanged for the last fourteen years; that Miss Moore's poems form part of the small body of durable poetry."

I don't agree. I do feel, however, deep respect for Miss Moore's intellect, and amazement at her detailed observations, and at the effete, elegant contortions of her rhymes.

Audrey Wurdemann won a prize with her first book of poetry. In her second, a group of narrative poems entitled "The Seven Sins" [Harper's, Sept., $2], she maintains her competent level. Her visual images are arresting. The book is cleverly constructed and adroitly executed. The story flies very smoothly, but it doesn't soar.

All Edgar Lee Masters' books are vital, uneven, and individual. "Invisible Landscapes" [Macmillan, $2], is his latest. I liked especially the freshness and originality of the long poem with the apt title "Beethoven's Ninth Symphony and the King Cobra."

Richard Aldington's poems have the quality of a man walking in a London fog. Those included in "Life Quest" [Doubleday-Doran, $2], are tenuous, but they move in their own way.

Here's an anthology that is as much fun as a Little Jack Horner pie. It is called "Trial Balances" [Macmillan, $2]. Thirty-two poets are presented and about the only quality they have in common is their youth. Each poet is introduced by a well known critic, who either pats the poet on the head or sententiously kicks him in the pants.

The critics, I believe, are supposed to show up the poets. Sometimes they do. More often, they show themselves up.

"Bay Window Ballads" [Scribners, $2.50] contains the best of David McCord's verse from 1923-1935. It has the qualities that light verse should, and so seldom does, have. It is funny, clever, suave, and technically as clear as cellophane. Highly recommended.

"No Traveller Returns" [Harper, $2.50] is, so the jacket says, by Joseph Auslander. Had I, however, opened the book at almost any of the sonnets I should have thought it was written, in her weaker moments, by Edna St. Vincent Millay. A neat impersonation, Mr. Auslander!

Theodore Morrison has been highly praised by Edwin Arlington Robinson and Hervey Allen. I find his most recent book, "Notes of Death and Life" [Crowell, $2], sincere but sententious.

A few volumes of collected verse not mentioned here, because previously reviewed, are "Chosen Poems" [Macmillan, $3], by Harriet Monroe; "Collected Poems" [Macmillan, $2], by William Butler Yeats; John Masefield's "Collected Poems" [Macmillan, $5]; "Selected Poems" [Knopf, $2], by Robert Nathan, and "Selected Poems" [Macmillan, $2], by A. E.

Music Lovers Reap Harvest in New Books

Three Great Composers Inspire Volumes.

LOVERS of music read as well as listen! Every year stimulating books are added to the shelves of constructive listeners—this year has been no exception. First of all there are new biographies of the great composers. Three inspired books this year.

"Beethoven" [Macmillan, $4.50] inspired a man who is known best to the world as a statesman, Edouard Herriot, but who as an enthusiastic amateur musician has written an enthusiastic nontechnical biography which shows Beethoven as a product of his period as well as an abstract genius.

William Murdoch, the brilliant English pianist, used the new material about "Chopin" [Macmillan, $3] to redraw the intimate portrait of the man of whose music he is considered one of the best living exponents. The publication of all of the known letters of Chopin, the discoveries regarding his father's ancestry contributed new source material for this full length portrait.

Ernest Newman, considered by many England's No. 1 music critic, chose "The Man Liszt" [Scribner's, $3] as opposed to the composer as the subject of a book which Stefan Zweig calls a "profound corrective to the earlier biographies of Liszt."

Then there are the books designed either to make music more comprehensible to the newcomers in the audiences or to lure readers into an orchestra seat. The fact that "audiences" have been enlarged to include listeners in their own fireside chairs with the twirl of a dial as their tickets of admission is responsible, perhaps, for the larger number of such books this year than previously. In its mildest form the instruction is tacit in an anthology of prose and poetry on musical themes, "The Magic of Music" [Dodd Mead, $2], edited by Robert Haven Schauffler.

A little more outright in its object is Eric Clarke's "Music in Everyday Life" [Norton, $3], which tells the reader all sorts of facts about how music is taught, how such teaching is made possible by the musical foundations, how broadcasting and mechanical recordings have made music more available.

John Erskine, well known novelist but also head of one of the biggest musical foundations in the world, the Juilliard School of Music, has edited "A Musical Companion" [Knopf, $3], which was published originally in London and which literally is a companion to the musical amateur whose knowledge is sketchier than his enthusiasm. It is half way between elemental and technical, happily each. Mr. Erskine has not changed the original English edition, merely edited it to suit American tastes and included a more comprehensive article on American music than appeared in the original. That article is by Mme. Olga Samaroff Stokowski, who has herself this year offered "The Layman's Music Box" [Norton, $2.75] to help create "amateur listeners." The book is an outgrowth of the Layman's Music courses of New York and Philadelphia, of which Mme. Samaroff Stokowski is founder and director.

A New York critic, known to the ether as impressive commentator on the Philharmonic radio broadcasts, Olin Downes, analyzed "Symphonic Masterpieces" [Dial, $2.75] for untutored as well as tutored listeners. And finally Philip Hale's "Boston Symphony Programme Notes" [Doubleday, $3.50] have been published, edited by John N. Burk and with an introduction by Lawrence Gilman. They are for the cognoscenti among listeners, although their brilliance of style makes them fascinating to the tyros in a symphony audience.

The opera inspired Paul Bekker, another New York critic, to a critical discussion of "The Changing Opera" [Norton, $3.50], which enlivens the whole subject of the relationship between music and everyday life.

The popularity of the Russian ballet in the allied art of the dance was responsible for the popularity of the biography of "Diaghileff" [Simon, $3.75], by Arnold L. Haskell and Walter Nouvel, and for two informative books about the ballet, "Tonight the Ballet" [Dutton, $1.50], by Adrian Stokes, and "To the Ballet" [Dodge, $1.50], by Irving Deakin. A comprehensive book about "The Dance" [Putnam, $5], by Lincoln Kirstein, traced its development from the days of rituals. Elizabeth Selden wrote tellingly about "The Dancer's Quest" [U. of Cal. Press, $6], and illustrated her book with impressive plates of modern dancing.

Three Professors on Advisory Staf of Poetry Magazine

Three professors of English at the University of Chicago, Robert Morss Lovett, Percy H. Boynton, and Thornton Wilder, are now members of the advisory staf of Harriet Monroe's Poetry—A Magazine of Verse. Their addition to the staf is part of a program of coöperation between the university and Miss Monroe's magazine, it was announced.

Through the university the magazine has received renewed support from the Carnegie corporation of New York, which will insure its publication for the next three years. Grants are being made through the university. Poetry will have the benefit of the university's publishing experience in administering the funds. No changes in the policies of the magazine are contemplated, it was said.

Cookery Books Make Gifts of Distinction

New Volumes Done Up in Gay Bindings.

BY MARY MEADE.
[Tribune Cooking Editor.]

Cook books for Christmas? And why not, if you've listed the name of some woman [or man] whose pet hobby manifests itself in the kitchen.

Several brand new cook books offer unusual possibilities as distinctive gifts. Foreign cookery, intriguing ins and outs of native American dishes, bright specialty recipes, and suggestions for entertaining are included within the covers of these newcomers—all done up in the gayest of bindings!

One of the most impressive of the foreign lot is "Recipes of All Nations" [Wise, Nov., $2], compiled and edited by the Countess Morphy, and just out. It covers not only the most typical dishes of some twenty-nine countries, but practically the whole field of cookery in each. Well indexed, its 800 some pages should delight the cook who goes in for authentic and complete foreign meals.

"Your Mexican Kitchen" [Putnam, Oct., $2], by Natalie V. Scott, is one of the most truly delightful of the foreign cook books. Its author, who wrote "200 Years of New Orleans Cooking" [also a suggestion for the Christmas list], has carefully assembled those fine Mexican recipes in which the charms of Spanish and Indian cookery are so harmoniously blended. Interspersed among its 300-odd pages are attractive wood cut illustrations.

A famous London chef, "Pin" Baglioni, of the Embassy club, is responsible for a third book of recipes with great gift possibilities, "150 Hors D'Oeuvre Recipes" [Kendall, $1.50]. It's a happy thought for an ardent hostess, whether or not she is interested in garden-variety cooking. The recipes are prefaced by a concise history of appetizers in various countries.

"More Lovely Food," written in amusing fashion by Ruth Lowinsky and illustrated, equally cleverly, by Thomas Lowinsky, likewise deserves attention. It contains a truly remarkable lot of interesting recipes of cosmopolitan origin, mingled with comments sufficiently sprightly to make the book entertaining reading as well as a valuable collection of ideas. The cover is yuletide cheer itself—a shiny, durable scarlet stuff. [Nonesuch Press, London, $2].

MYSTERIES OF THE WEEK

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

The murder story takes a new slant in "13 Steps" [Doubleday, $2] by Whitman Chambers. In the prolog a condemned man begins his climb up the fatal thirteen steps to the gallows in San Quentin jail. Watching him is a young newspaper man who loves the condemned man's wife and at each slow step some incident that lead to the murder for which he is about to die races through the mind of the watching man. A pretty tough succession of incidents it is about a lot of hard-shelled individualists who rouse little sympathy, but they are also individuals under Mr. Chambers' expert analysis and, once launched, you won't put that book down until you know the worst.

A variety of outrageous things are said and done and not for a minute is any one of the protagonists sober if he or she can help it but nevertheless the book packs a distinct wallop and ends with a logical surprise. If you like "Butterfield 8" or "The Policeman Only Rings Once" this is just the book for your quiet Sunday reading.

Tod Downing has written four mystery stories with Mexico as their setting, of which "Murder on the Tropic" [Crime Club, $2] is far and away the best. It also is filled with sharply defined people who murder and get murdered with dreadful frequency and under hauntingly mysterious circumstances. The parched hacienda filled with frightened people is a background worthy of the crimes committed within its confines. If you have been or are going to Mexico you will find it doubly interesting, for not only is it a good murder story but a good novel, vivid with the atmosphere of the country.

An astonishing document is "Crime Incorporated" [Whittlesey House, $2.50], by Martin Mooney, who is that New York crime reporter who went to jail because he wouldn't disclose to a federal judge the sources, giving names, of his exhaustive knowledge of rackets and racketeers. He also went to jail frequently because he couldn't or wouldn't pay alimony to an early wife and while there made friends with innumerable crooks who somehow or other were induced to tell him their middle names and hint at the surnames of the big shots whose punishments they were working out.

So starting from there Mr. Mooney has picked up a mass of blasting information which, if true, and he says it is, will make you suspicious of your best friend who, for all you know, may be the arch racketeer himself whose ex-punk is Al Capone. In each city, says Mr. Mooney, there is a group of men, notable in the professions, business and politics who reap billions, not millions, from organized and recognized rackets. His statements, which omit only names and addresses, are circumstantial and appalling. He takes New York for his prototype only because its bigness offers the largest returns.

His material is sensational and he uses it well. He means that his exposé should be taken seriously and if it is it should start a hue and cry which ought to put some of the less flourishing rackets out of business even though the mightiest brains of the country direct them.

Mr. Mooney and his publishers are truly courageous if crime is as powerful as he hints. Read the book as a tribute to a young man more daring than any who ever rode the air under the big top.

'Sea Scorpion' a Vivid Tale of Intrigue and Piracy

"The Sea Scorpion" [Greenberg, $2], by Col. George Brydges Rodney, is a salt water yarn of revenge and intrigue, of piracy and hidden treasure, of battles on land and sea. The author has told a sanguinary but lively and entertaining blue water tale.

New Book Catalogs: Some Comments on Two Unusual Ones

"Along the North Wall" is the title which the author of the Argus Book shop catalog calls his very personal, critical comments on the books which the shop has for sale. It contains information set down with such amusing frankness as "we have neither edition in stock just now," in talking about a book which he says he is glad collectors can buy. And in commenting on their ability to find scarce first editions, he says, "The night has a thousand eyes and so has Argus—and more tentacles than an octopus."

Which reminds us of another book catalog which is interesting in its own right, the Christmas issue of the Bookbuyer published by the Scribner book store in New York. It contains essays written especially for it [and therefore first editions] by Thomas Wolfe, Douglas Southall Freeman, S. S. Van Dine, William Lyon Phelps, Mark Sullivan, and Maj. John W. Thomason Jr. The Bookbuyer is sent to customers of the store and to any one else who has enough interest in books and authors to send for a copy.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO
A Famous "Inquiring Reporter" Visited Our Book Store Yesterday and Interviewed Six Customers as Follows—
Question:
WHY Did You Come to Carson's for Your Christmas Books?
The Answers:

Mr. John T. Brown, manufacturer: "Because I always seem to find the books I'm looking for. Carson's book stocks are better selected and better arranged than those of other stores I've tried."

Mrs. J. Paul Thompson, society editor: "I like the salespeople here. They know their books and that is such a help in these busy shopping days. By the way, is it true that you hope to fill every stocking this Christmas?"

Bobby Smith, boy scout: "Gee, the books here are swell! You know, they've arranged a separate book store just for us kids. It's called the Hobby Horse Book Shop. I'll bet it's going to keep you busy this Christmas, delivering."

Mr. Albert Williams, architect: "It's a convenient place to shop. All the books are displayed in one room on the first floor just inside the Wabash Avenue entrance. I save time by shopping here."

Miss Martha King, school teacher: "I am especially interested in books for children, and Carson's have an unusually fine selection. Their salesforce has been well trained, and you can rely on its recommendations."

Mr. Frank R. Miller, salesman: "I like the atmosphere of this book shop. It's sort of friendly and I feel welcome to come in and look over the new things whether I buy them or not. There are lots of good books here this year."

COURT UPHOLDS AWARD OF BABY IN MUENCH CASE

Anna Ware May Get Child by Christmas.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—The Court of Appeals today upheld Special Commissioner Rush H. Lumbaugh's recommenation that the controversial "gift of God" baby is the son of Anna Ware, unwed servant girl, and not the child of Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, former St. Louis society woman.

Unless impeded by more legal snarls, the baby boy will be delivered to his 19 year old mother in time for her to have him at Christmas. Until any motions for a rehearing are disposed of, the child, now nearly four months old, will remain a ward of the court in Children's hospital.

Girl Accuses Muenches.

Commissioner Limbaugh made his report a week ago after conducting a habeas corpus hearing in which Miss Ware sought return of the child she alleged was being held in the home of Mrs. Muench and her physician husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench. She accused the Muenches of "palming it off" as their own.

The commissioner asserted Mrs. Muench announced the birth of a son last Aug. 18 to gain sympathy from a jury which was about to try her, and later acquitted her, of kidnap conspiracy charges. Mrs. Muench had been childless for more than 20 years of married life before she announced the birth as a "gift from God in my hour of need."

Overruled by Court.

The Muenches, Attorney Wilfred Jones, and Mrs. Helen Berryoyer, all respondents in the habeas corpus action, filed exceptions to Limbaugh's report. All were overruled by the Court of Appeals, which granted them until 5 p. m. next Wednesday to move for a rehearing.

"CUTE COLONIAL COTTAGE" FANS PEEVE ARCHITECT

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The sentimental citizen who must have one of those "cute colonial cottages" was disclosed tonight as a thorn in the side of the progressive architect.

The modern architect says the sentimental citizen would do well to let the former have his way with modern gadgets; this is because the future holds the possibility of "the greatest period of home building in American history," in the words of Howard Myers, editor of the Architectural Forum.

Speaking at the General Electric company's "new American home" here tonight, Myers took up the cudgel for the modern architect.

"The little colonial cottages which we are so fond of emulating represented the most straightforward and logical solution of a house in those times," he said. "They were built of wood only because wood was the abundantly available material. Similarly the windows were small because they helped to conserve heat and glass was very expensive."

51 DESCENDANTS NOTE WOMAN'S 108TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Mathilda Steiger, the oldest citizen of Park Ridge, celebrated her 108th birthday yesterday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bertha Deering, 104 North Chester avenue, Park Ridge, with whom she lives.

At the party were her three daughters, Mrs. Deering, 69 years old; Mrs. Louise Schuenemann, 67, of 9 North Greenwood avenue, Park Ridge, and Mrs. Augusta Bishoff, 74, of 5104 Byron street, Chicago, and twelve grandchildren, thirty great-grandchildren, and six great-great-grandchildren.

In the afternoon Mrs. Steiger participated in singing hymns in her native German, but she tired when evening came and retired early. She has been sightless for the last two years, but otherwise her health is good.

Mrs. Steiger was born in Germany and came to Chicago in 1888 with her husband, Julius, who died in 1912.

PRINCIPAL DENIES EMBEZZLEMENT AT ARRAIGNMENT

Repudiating his previous promise to plead guilty, Charles S. Winslow, 59 years old, former principal of the Lake View night school who confessed to having embezzled $9,954 in school funds, entered a plea of not guilty of embezzlement before Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle in the Criminal court yesterday. To Prosecutor Leslie E. Salter Winslow explained that his friends had advised him not to plead guilty. Judge Normoyle continued the hearing until next Tuesday to enable Winslow to employ counsel. Winslow is in jail for lack of $10,000 bonds.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

News notes:

Herbert Hoover will be on the air Monday evening from 9 to 9:30 over WENR-NBC discussing "The New Deal Further Explored, Including Relief." Mr. Hoover will be addressing the John Marshall Republican club in St. Louis.

Tenor Don Mario [Alvarez] will be leaving the Penthouse Serenade program and Chicago after his appearance tomorrow afternoon. Mario expects to take a southern vacation and plans to be back on the air with a new program around Feb. 1. Jack Fulton, tenor formerly with Whiteman will become the headliner on the Penthouse show.

Charlie Hughes, who produces "Behind the Camera Lines" on W-G-N and MBS, is bringing out a book titled "Broadcast Opportunities—and How to Grasp Them." The book contains the answers to that question most often asked of radio editors: "How Can I Get Into Radio?"

W-G-N artists will do their bit toward spreading Christmas cheer on the south side when they appear at the Chicago Defender's Goodfellow club basket fund show at the Regal theater tonight. Among those who will appear are the Doring Sisters, Barbara Parks, Sally Jo Nelson, Bob Elson and the W-G-N Choral club. Other headliners: Benny Goodman, Helen Ward, Stepin Fetchit, Eddie Peabody.

Billy Mauch, 10 year old dramatic actor heard on the White Rabbit Bus program on NBC and on various CBS dramatic programs, has been chosen to play the part of Anthony Adverse as a child in Warner Brothers picture. He was picked because he resembled a childhood picture of Frederic March who will play the adult part. Oddly enough Billy has a twin brother, Bobby, who also plays on the air, who did not look enough like the March picture to be considered, it is said.

NBC is hatching up a special Dec. 25 juvenile show in which one character is to be called "Little Carol, the Christmas Dickens." . . . Joane Blaine has signed a contract which insures her appearance on "Mary Marlin" for a year to come. She will also continue on the Princess Pat series. . . . Sing Sing's glee club of 100 voices will sing on Warden Lawes' sponsored program on Christmas night. . . . Bob Hawk of the "Red Hot and Low Down" program on WCFL is making a personal appearance at the State-Lake this week.

With auditions for WBBM's Twin Winner contest under way—they still have 5,600 to listen to—the judges have noted that the most popular songs among the girl entrants are "Smoke Get in Your Eyes" and "When I Grow Too Old Too Dream," and Puccini arias are favored among operatic selections. Men seem to go for "One Alone," "Neopolitan Nights," and "I'm in the Mood for Love." The auditions will go on nightly for many a month to come.

WIDOW GETS ALL OF ALEX D. NAST $350,000 ESTATE

The will of Alex D. Nast bequeathing an estate estimated at $350,000 to his widow, Mrs. Jeannette Nast, 5454 South Shore drive, was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge O'Connell. Mr. Nast, an official of the Commercial Investment Trust company, 333 North Michigan avenue, died on Dec. 7. He was 64 years old.

The following wills also were admitted to probate and filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin:

RACHAEL SIMON, died Sept. 20. Estate $12,000, to daughter and brother. Benjamin Simon, brother, executor.

DR. MILO MacKELLAN, died Aug. 28. Estate, $6,000, to widow, son and two daughters, Jennie MacKellan, widow, executrix.

EMMA C. GLOECKLER, died Feb. 10, 1928. Estate, $7,000, to husband and executor, George Gloeckler.

HARRY HUNT, died Nov. 29. Estate, $5,000, to two sons and daughter, Saddie Hunt, daughter, executrix.

A. W. Martin, Professor of Voice, Dies in Michigan

BRITISH AIDED BY SUNSPOTS; TO GET PARIS TELEVISION

Eiffel Tower Station Sends Programs.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The British public soon expects to have television programs from Paris. Great Britain will have the sun spots to thank.

Pictures and broadcasts will emanate from the Eiffel tower station, the power for which is being increased from 4 to 20 kilowatts.

The ultra short wave of 8 meters used for these transmissions is usually held to have a range of only 20 to 25 miles. Recently, however, owing to sunspot activity, radio experimenters, amateur and profsesional, have achieved remarkable feats of long distance reception on these wave lengths.

London In Third Place.

Last February when the government's television committee first reported, London seemed likely to have the first public television service in the world. Now London must take third place after Berlin and Paris.

Five public television reception rooms have been prepared in Paris. Each accomodates 50 persons. The size of the picture is about 7 inches by 8. The British Broadcasting corporation has made arrangements for only one public television reception room.

Paris has two systems of television in use. Studios are located in the ministry of posts and telegraphs. Sixty line medium wave transmissions are made from the transmitter at the ministry and more important 180 line transmissions are relayed to Eiffel tower. Commercial sets will not be available for some time.

Studio Artists Provide Program.

The programs now are all provided by artists in the studio. There are no film transmissions at present. The Eiffel tower broadcast film apparatus will be installed in a few months. Sketches for two or three people and solo dances are favorite items on the program. Sacha Guitry, French actor, recently played with Jacqueline Delubac in a television sketch which was written by himself.

CALLES, MEXICO'S "IRON MAN," FLIES HOME; FACES FOES

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—(AP)—In the face of a storm of criticism and accusations, Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former president and for eight years "iron man" of Mexico, returned to his country today to "assume full responsibility for his acts."

Gen. Calles, who left Mexico last June after a dispute with President Lazaro Cardanas over economic and political policies, flew here from Los Angeles in a chartered plane.

The former president, who was credited with having run the political affairs of Mexico since 1928, said in a statement that he was "the only one responsible for all the acts of his government." He also took the responsibility for the religious conflict which existed during his presidency.

CHARGE FORMER CONSUL RETAINS MONEY OF PERU

A warant was issued by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday for the arrest and removal to Chicago of Jorge M. Chavarri of Toledo, former Peruvian consul here. The warant, charging wrongful assumption of the character of a diplomat, was issued after Dr. Abel Larrain, who succeeded Chavarri as consul on Sept. 8, 1933, alleged that his predecessor continued to accept money from American exporters for duties levied by the Peruvian government. The warant was sent to Toledo. The maximum penalty on the charge is a $5,000 fine and five years in prison.

Nelson's Widow Freed of 'Harboring' Her Husband

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The widow of George "Baby Face" Nelson, clutching a rabbit's foot for luck, was granted probation today after pleading guilty to "harboring" her gangster husband. She said the foot was pressed into her hand just before her federal court appearance by a colored woman prisoner. She had previously served a year's sentence in federal prison.

Find Skeletons in Wood; Seen as a Suicide Pact

Orange, Va., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The bleached skeletons of two sweethearts deep in the woods near here today brought the verdict that Walter Hutchinson, 22, had shot his 17 year old fiancée, Gladys Hicks, to death at her request before taking his own life.

Watch Clock for 3 Yrs., and Discover the Day Is 'Short'

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Two German physicists asserted today that observations with a special clock had shown a day has 4/1,000 seconds less than 24 hours because of the varying speed of the earth's rotations.

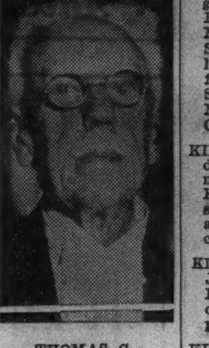
T. C. MACMILLAN, EX-LEGISLATOR, IS DEAD AT AGE OF 85

Thomas Cumming MacMillan, a former state legislator, clerk of the United States District court here from 1895 until 1919, died yesterday in his home at 67 6th avenue, La Grange. He was 85 years old and had lived in or near Chicago since coming here from Scotland in 1857.



THOMAS C. MacMILLAN.

Mr. MacMillan was attending the old Chicago university at the time of the Chicago fire in 1871. Shortly after the fire he joined the staf of the old Chicago Inter-Ocean, of which he later became political and associate editor. He was a member of the Illinois house of representatives from 1885 until 1889, and of the state senate for the next four years. He was a member of the commission which drafted the law setting up the Chicago sanitary district and chairman of the state senate committee which secured the $800,000 appropriation from the state for the World's Columbian exposition of 1893.

He is survived by his widow, Mary, who was a small child aboard the boat which brought them from Scotland to the United States; a daughter, Mrs. Jeanie Pocock, and two sons, James and Hugh. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in the Congregational church at La Grange. Burial will be in the Na-Aus-Say cemetery near Oswego.

Cold—Shopping—Eyefull.

THIS tale comes from a man formerly a cowhand and now a merchant in a small town in South Dakota which boasts one hotel, a bleak, hollow brick edifice that fails to keep out the intense cold of their severe winters.

During the first blizzard of the season a traveling salesman put up at this hotel. His room was so cold that he could not sleep, and finally, taking his blankets with him, he went downstairs to stretch out on the sofa in the combination office and lounge. After midnight the door burst open and a rancher who had driven twenty-five miles across the prairies in an open flivver entered in a whirl of snow. The traveling salesman sleepily opened one eye and, seeing the rancher covered with snow and icicles, called out drowsily:

"Hullo, what room were you in?"

IT'S fun to see what people select from among the lavish Christmas displays in the stores. Yesterday at the linen section one woman was buying a thin Italian openwork luncheon set and the lady next her was buying a bar apron with the first verse of the daring young man on the flying trapeze embroidered on it. There are cocktail napkins this year stamped with illustrations from the song, made by Tony Sarg, with a different verse printed on each napkin. Also new are the cocktail shaker mitts, each mitt having a heavy white cord that goes around the neck. There are bells on each mitt to add to the gayety. . . . One of the town's loveliest ladies was buying Lowestoft china on the same floor, and the lovely glaze and the soft Lowestoft rose and lavender and deep blue held the attention of this wanderer for some time. Long enough, indeed, until we weakened and bought a bowl, its pale gray surface adorned with tiny roses, and little gold swaying Chinese lanterns, and tiny gold stars. Our Christmas present to ourself.

THE sales in doll house furniture are bigger this year than ever before, probably due both to the Colleen Moore doll house and Mrs. Thorne's decorated rooms at the Historical society. The furniture is of better style than ever before too. And also in the toy department — the crowds around the demonstrator of a game called "Battleship Chess" are reminiscent of a street fight. Nearly 5,000 of the games have been sold in one store already. The beauty shops in some of the department stores already are booked solid for the Monday and Tuesday before Christmas and before New Year's, we are informed. And an inhuman creature who already has completed her Christmas shopping, even to tissue paper and seals, says you find the best dressed women in the five and ten cent stores.

COMING out into the street, there was, loafing near the curb, a man wearing a child's aviation helmet, his unshaven face with its bleary eyes and a cigar stub between the lips emerging incongruously from the childish headgear.

Good Morning!

"Metropolitan" SHOULD be box-office! It has both class and the common touch!

Fine music richly backgrounds and veins the light but entertaining "backstage" story of grand opera folks. Tense dramatic scenes are neatly balanced by really funny comedy. There is much splendid acting, and the machine of the whole moves smoothly on the well oiled wheels of expert direction.

As you would expect, Lawrence Tibbett's singing is the big white light of the production. What amazes you is the dynamic screen personality the great baritone has developed. In this piece he's a veritable whirlwind, and, when he's singing, sweeps you completely out of yourself.

Among the operatic numbers presented by the star are selections from "Carmen" and "The Barber of Seville." He sings, too, the "Faust Trio" in solo and with chorus, and for the finale—a thrilling one—he renders the prologue to "I Pagliacci."

Also, vocally he travels a couple of popular musical highways—"Glory Road"—a spiritual—and "The Road to Mandalay." Beautiful!

In the story Miss Alice Brady is seen as a temperamental [nuts I call it] diva, who, furious that she hasn't been selected to sing a certain rôle, essays to first produce and then destroy a grand opera presentation.

She has a case on Mr. Tibbett—who desires his heart's beloved, Miss Virginia Bruce, to have the featured rôle. This leads to that, as you might expect—and the picture has plenty to show you—if you see the picture, which I hope you will.

Outstanding bits of acting are contributed by George Marion as an aged impresario and Luis Alberni as stage manager. Miss Brady makes you mad as a wet hen—as she's supposed to do. Virginia Bruce is characteristically charming and gracious. Excellent cast throughout.

I'm not one—as a rule—to make promises. But I do guarantee you'll enjoy "Metropolitan."

Delta Gamma Phi Dance.

ENGAGEMENT

Allen Dewitt Landphere, 1018 South 15th avenue, Maywood, announces the engagement and forthcoming marriage of his daughter, Miss Marjorie Landphere, to Leicester Wright Fisher of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Fisher of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Hendersonville, N. C.

Miss Landphere attended Lake Forest college and John B. Stetson university at Deland, Fla., where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. Fisher, a graduate of Cornell university, is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

The wedding will take place Jan. 18 in the chapel of St. Mark's church in Evanston, with a reception following at the Georgian hotel. Mr. Fisher and his bride will live in New York.

Paul Rowan and Lydia Swift Will Be Wed Today

Ceremony to Take Place at Bride's Home.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT is a disappointment to the great number of friends of the Alden B. Swift family that they will not see the Swifts' younger daughter, Lydia, walk down a church aile this afternoon to become the bride of Paul Rowan, but the Swifts prefer to have a quiet family wedding in their own apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive—something like the one on Thanksgiving day a year ago at which their son, Nathan B. Swift, took Nancy Traylor as his bride. The ceremony this afternoon will be read by the Rev. Dudley S. Stark of St. Chrysostom's church in the presence of relatives and closest friends, and a reception will follow for the same group.

The bride will be unattended, and the bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Reilly of Sharon, Pa., will have Jefferson D. Currier as his best man. Miss Swift is rejoicing that the doctor will permit her arm, which has been held in a sling since it was injured in the early summer to swing free today for the ceremony, although it will have to go back into the sling tomorrow for several weeks more.

Mr. Rowan and his bride will take a brief wedding trip and when they return they will make their home in the Swifts' apartment for a few months during the time that Mr. and Mrs. Swift are away on a trip that is taking them to New Zealand and Australia.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Alexander and Orville E. Babcock Jr. will take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the First Presbyterian church of Lake Forest, with the Rev. Burtis McHatton officiating. Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the residence in Waukegan road, Lake Forest, of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Alexander.

Mrs. Sidney D. Johnson [Josephine Templeton] has come from her home in New York to act as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Margaret Taylor of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Newton C. King, the Misses Myrtle and Lillian Lampert, Suzanne Morris and Virginia Ashcraft. Bruce Babcock will be his brother's best man and ushering will be David Schmid, Newton C. King, Alexis Thompson, Aldis J. Browne Jr., Edson Cook, Nelson L. Barnes Jr., and Frederic Macfarlane.

Mr. Babcock, the elder son of the Orville E. Babcocks of Chicago, will take his bride on a short wedding trip and upon their return, just before Christmas, they will be at home in Lake Forest.

Ruggles-Cain Wedding in Evanston Tonight.

At a ceremony this evening at 8:30 o'clock in the chapel of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston Miss Ruth Cain will be married to Rudy Lamont Ruggles, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Ruggles of Brookline, Mass.

Rolly M. Cain will give his daughter in marriage. Attending Miss Cain as matron of honor will be Mrs. Norman B. Johnson, and Mrs. Wallace D. Mackenzie, the former Betty Gillies, and Mrs. Charles F. Meyer will be bridesmaids. Patty Williams, the Preston H. Williams' small daughter, is to be a flower girl.

Norman Johnson will be Mr. Ruggles' best man. H. Robinson Safford, Albert Johnson, James Munro and Dr. Wallace D. Mackenzie will be ushers.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[Gilbert Seehausen Photo.]

Both poets and fashion agree that hands must be pale. A rich cream that serves as skin smoother and whitener helps a lot; so do featherweight cotton gloves to be worn after the nightly creaming.

What doth it profit a woman to wrap a carload of Christmas gifts if the hands that do the wrapping are anything but lily white and well groomed? Meaning, of course, that there is no point in losing sight of the necessity to cling like grim death to your good looks even in all this Yuletide excitement.

And there's still less point in thinking that hands aren't important; they are—and increasingly so every day.

New York, you know, has a salon devoted completely to the beautification of hands and nails; it does a rollicking good business, too, which shows you how much truely smart women concentrate on keeping their hands poetically pretty.

One of the products used in this salon is a cream—a skin smoother and whitener — that really makes rough, red paws satin soft and pale enough to satisfy any writer of love lyrics. This is a rich cream, snow white and with a lovely fragrance, that replenishes the natural oils exposure and frequent hand washings take away. The chapping or horny finger tips or general roughness that beset even the most careful of us in midwinter will be completely conquered if the cream is used nightly.

You don't need to use a great deal of this at a time—a thin film is as good as gobs of it, and much more economical. If you use it during the day use a very small amount, massaging it in well. As a night cream use a bit more and leave it on in a smear.

With the cream you'll get a pair of night gloves that you'll really root for. The hand beauty specialist did a lot of experimenting before she decided on these—and we're much inclined to agree with her that they're the best to date. They're a featherweight cotton knit in a loose weave and unbelievably comfortable. Courting sleep with a pair of gloves on never seemed any treat to us, but it isn't half bad if the gloves are loose and light like these. And they certainly keep the cream on the hand skin instead of the bed linen.

These Hosiery Hints Will Help Fill Gift Lists

Thin Stockings Appreciated by Party Goers.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Fashion footnotes for the Christmas hosiery shopper! Whether you send them half a dozen in a box or just one pair, do it differently this holiday. Send the thinnest stockings you can find. Find them among the new arrivals, 57 gauge affairs that are beautifully flawless and just what any party goer dreams about for all the gala season ahead.

These come in stunning evening shades as well as summer sun tan effects and the deservedly popular Peter Pan shade that goes with everything.

Ask for "Evenglow" for a super flattering evening stocking or peach tan and Titian if you want sun tan effects. These exceptionally sheer stockings are quite the most luxurious looking you've ever seen in the price class.

Red toes are taking the town. You'll find them in inky black, in Peter Pan and in a golden glowing evening shade. These scarlet tips to otherwise ordinary stockings do grand things for anybody's sandals, particularly the very open spaced sandals that are merely a matter of criscrossed straps with almost all the toes showing.

They are also what you can tuck in with a pair of frivolous boudoir slippers. Besides having wickedly alluring tips to peek through the straps of decorative dancing sandals they wear surprisingly long and also are pleasantly low in price.

There are plenty of black heeled stockings . . . since the last rush for these smart ankle slenderizing numbers the supplies have been replenished, and gift boxes are going out fast. In sheer gunmetal and in that always good Peter Pan shade they will be among the most welcome of packages. Two price ranges are available.

Silver and gold tinted hosiery to match the shimmering evening footgear of either silver or gold kidskin should be noted by the gift shopper. These delightful new tints are unexpectedly good finds. The pale silvery gray and the equally exciting pale gold tint are beautiful accents for kidskins of similar colors.

Another practical but flattering all-around hosiery shade is called masque. It goes with everything, black colors, and is perfect with new printed dresses. These prices also fit gift lists.

Lace clox, still exquisitely decorative, are lovely accents to filmy street and evening hosiery. Several designs are available and also several shades for both street and evening wear. An exciting new shade called "Orchids to You" ought to take the crowd by storm; it's a lovely, unusual tone of blue gray, quite dark, and it works magic when worn. This new color can be found in plain chiffon and in bridal lace design and should be the pet find of the season.

Author Gene Fowler Describes an Outing with John Barrymore

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Gene Fowler, author of "The Mighty Barnum," "Father Goose" [story of Mack Sennett], and "Timber Line" [the publishers Bonfils and Tammen], was out making the rounds of Hollywood night spots when he joined forces with John Barrymore. After some hours together Barrymore and Fowler arrived at Fowler's home, where the writer's daughter acts as his chatelaine. Fowler says: "She greeted us with 'The idea!—you coming home at this time and in this fashion—and, moreover, bringing a ham actor home with you!'

"Now, John Barrymore likes my daughter, and thought it was funny," Fowler continued. "John rose to bow to her, but, unfortunately, just at that instant he slipped or something, and completed his bow by falling flat. It was undignified but humorous. I wanted to be polite, and asked my daughter to bring John a little something to cheer him up. She brought him a glass and John started to drink. As he drank he realized it was a glass of vanilla flavoring. 'Alas!' said Barrymore, 'I have stumbled into the house of Borgia.'"

The Briar Pipe

By Stuart Palmer

SYNOPSIS.

Violet Feverel is killed, apparently by having been thrown from her horse, Siwash. She was taking an early morning's ride in New York's Central park. Miss Hildegarde Withers, teacher and student of criminology, happens on the scene of the tragedy, where she meets her friend, Inspector Piper. They suspect murder. After the body is removed Miss Withers finds a briar pipe on the spot where the dead girl had lain. Mrs. Maude Thwaite and her husband, Rufus, are owners of the stable where Siwash is kept, and Latigo Wells manager. Maude Thwaite desired to own Siwash. At Violet Feverel's apartment Miss Withers and Piper overtake Violet's young half-sister, Barbara Foley, about to elope with Eddie Fry, Violet's boy friend and a race track gambler. Barbara tells them that Violet was divorced from Don Gregg and had had him put in alimony jail. Thomas, who with his wife, Mattie, are old retainers of Don's father, Pat Gregg, comes in search of Violet. Old Mr. Gregg thinks he is going to die. Thomas hints at foul play. Miss Withers and Piper accompany Thomas to the Gregg country home. Pat Gregg has had a near stroke. Back in town Miss Withers and Piper call at the alimony jail, but Don Gregg had been released on a fake writ before his wife's death. Then they call at the morgue. The medical examiner's autopsy reveals Violet Feverel was killed by a BB bullet which hit her throat. Miss Withers finds Don Gregg in Violet Feverel's apartment. He is taken to headquarters, but is released. Miss Withers confiscates his pipe. An expert tells her Gregg's pipe was owned by an amateur smoker. The "murder" pipe's owner had false teeth. Barbara takes Siwash out on the bridle path. He runs away with her and she is thrown off. Latigo Wells finds that the cinchband of the saddle had been cut. Miss Withers buys apples with which she hopes to find the owner of false teeth.

INSTALMENT XXX.

EAVESDROPPING.

Miss Withers, puzzled but pleased at this unexpected evidence of friendliness, drew closer. She saw the big red thoroughbred nose the apple, then pick it up daintily between his teeth and munch. . . .

"Watch him!" gasped Thwaite, bubbling with repressed laughter. "Just watch him, that's all. . . ."

Siwash chewed. Suddenly he stopped chewing and the apple fell in slobbered fragments to the floor. His ears waggled and he shook his head savagely. It is impossible for a horse to spit, but Siwash came as close to that act as he could. His teeth ground together and he reared high in the air. Great tears rolled out of his brown eyes.

Thwaite was roaring with laughter. "Quinine!" he finally managed to explain. "A tablespoon full of quinine stuck into the core of the apple. . . ."

Miss Withers looked blank. "I didn't know he was sick," she said.

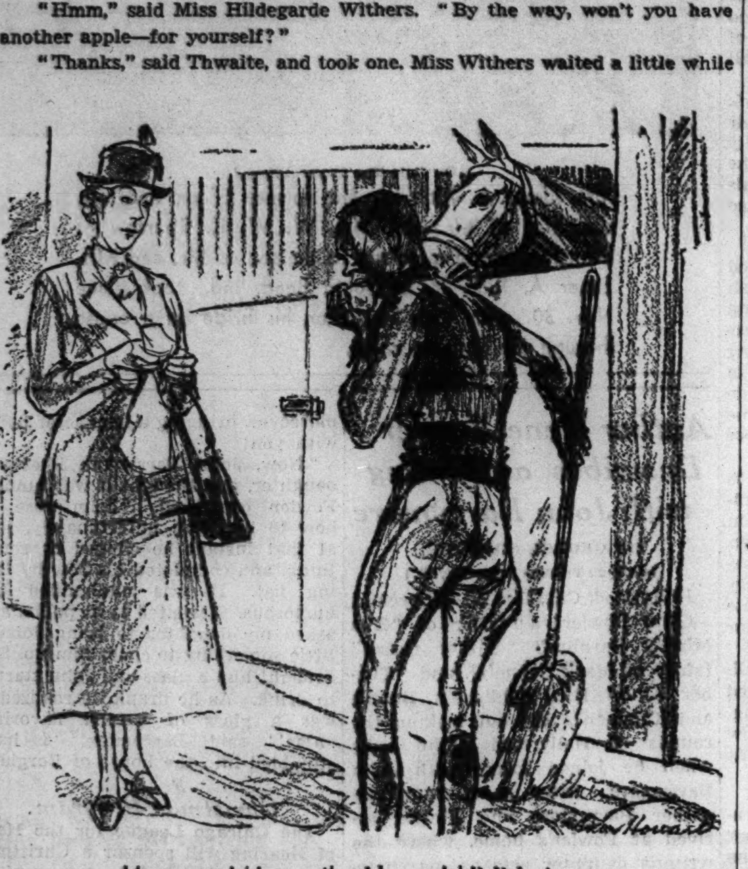
"He wasn't—but he is now!" Thwaite gasped. "Did you see the look on that nag's face?"

Thwaite didn't see the look on Miss Wither's face.

"That red horse is so particular about what he eats, you'd think he was human," Thwaite explained. "It isn't often I can fool him."

"Hmm," said Miss Hildegarde Withers. "By the way, won't you have another apple—for yourself?"

"Thanks," said Thwaite, and took one. Miss Withers waited a little while longer and saw him bite into the fruit. Finally she went away, vaguely surprised and disheartened.



He opened his mouth wide, and bit it in two.

Highpockets was sweeping the runway as she came back toward the front of the stable. On an impulse the school teacher stopped. "Young man," she said accusingly, "I want to ask you a question."

"Yes'm?" Highpockets immediately became the picture of guilt.

"Were there ever any—any carryings on between Dr. Thwaite and Miss Violet Feverel—that you happened to notice?"

The eyes rolled. "Tha's what Miss' Thwaite like to know, I bet you!"

"That doesn't answer my question," snapped the school teacher, who realized that she was very close to being a meddlesome busybody. Yet she supposed that the end justified something or other.

"Well," decided Highpockets, "I wouldn't say yes and I wouldn't say no."

"Didn't Dr. Thwaite like Miss Feverel?"

Highpockets could answer that. "Yas'm! Everybody like Miss Feverel. She was a mighty fine lady—gave me a red hot tip on that big race next Saturday. She tell me how to win myself a barrel of money."

"And you're going to bet on the horse she suggested?"

"I sho' am! That is——" he corrected, "If that Wallaby horse has the right number on him. I can't bet on no two or three—but if it's seven or eleven! Zowie! Miss Feverel was always lucky."

Miss Withers thought of Violet Feverel as she last had seen her, and shivered a little.

"Thank you," she said, preparing to depart. She saw the colored boy staring hopefully at her paper sack full of apples. "O, have one?"

"Yes, ma'am!" said Highpockets. He took a large, red apple, opened his mouth very wide, and bit it in two. Both halves disappeared almost instantly. He grinned.

Miss Withers looked gratified. "Too bad you're not on my list of suspects," she said cryptically. "I could cross you off."

She went out of the stables into the street again, stopping long enough to have a good look all around. But there was no sign of the young man she expected to find lurking there. It had not been her intention to warn him off—indeed, the more the various characters in this mixed up affair spied upon each other the better she would like it. This broth needed a good deal of stirring.

She hurried over to Broadway, descended underground and rode past three subway stations, and came up into the daylight again. Yet as she approached the bulk of the Hotel Harthorn Miss Hildegarde Withers had a vague feeling that the daylight was not as bright as usual. "I'm getting the fidgets over nothing," she scolded herself. "This is no work for a person with nerves." Yet all the same she kept looking over her shoulder.

The desk clerk knew her by now. "Miss Foley came in about an hour ago," he proffered. "With a gentleman. Shall I annonunce you?"

"Take your hand off that telephone," Miss Withers told him, "or I'll see that your announcing days are over." She flounced on toward the elevator. Once she stopped and waited behind a pillar, but nobody seemed to be following her.

For some time Miss Withers hesitated near the doorway of the apartment which had been Violet Feverel's. There was a narrow transom above the door, and it was slightly open. Through this opening faint sounds of voices came.

"It would be a shame to interrupt them," said Miss Withers to herself. Latigo Wells was speaking. She could recognize that soft drawl anywhere. Miss Withers strained her ears for all they were worth, but she could barely make out what the young westerner was saying.

"There's some that go in for yodeling," he was telling his invisible audience. "But me, I don't yodel. Though I don't say I couldn't learn to yodel. . . ."

"Sure you could!" It was Barbara, her voice vibrant, ringing with misplaced enthusiasm.

"Anything to get away from the job I got now," Latigo continued. "You know I'm so sick of horses I hope to die if I ever see another horse. . . ."

There was an exclamation from the girl. "But Mr. Wells—I thought all cowboys loved their horses."

"You been seeing Tom Mix," Latigo accused her. "Besides, now that we're pals I don't mind telling you that I never was no real cow-puncher. My old man, he run a livery stable in Butte for awhile. . . ."

There was a faintly disappointed "O" from the invisible girl. Then, after a short pause, a chord was struck on the piano. A guitar chimed in, and Latigo's voice boomed out in the lugubrious strains of a ballad bewailing the fact that "He won't see his mother—when the work's all done next fall. . . ."

Miss Withers started as a voice spoke just behind her.

"A true music lover!" said Mr. Don Gregg.

"And what, pray, are you doing here?" she demanded.

Gregg shrugged. "I could ask you the same thing, couldn't I?"

Miss Withers told him somewhat sharply that he was in no position to ask questions. "So it was I, and not the Thwaites, whom you were shadowing!" she observed, as she drew the young man out of the vicinity of the apartment door. "Might I ask why?"

Paul Rowan and Lydia Swift Will Be Wed Today

Ceremony to Take Place at Bride's Home.

mony at the Glen View club. Mr. Ruggles and his bride will be at home at 1518 Hinman avenue, Evanston, after Dec. 21.

Mrs. Frank J. Bersbach is presenting her debutante daughter, Miss Helen Bersbach, at a luncheon tomorrow at her home on the grounds of the Indian Hill club. Seventy friends of Miss Bersbach and of her elder sister, Miss Barbara Bersbach, who came out a year ago, are being invited.

Two Parties Planned for Elizabeth Dewes.

Two parties are to be given for Miss Elizabeth Dewes this week-end. Her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke, will be hosts at a dinner-dance this evening at the Racquet club, and tomorrow afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Seipp and their daughter, Pauline, will entertain at tea for her. Miss Dewes, the youngest of Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes' three daughters, made here debut at a dinner-dance Nov. 30 at the Casino.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin H. Niblack are giving a small dinner party tonight at their home in Lake Forest. The Niblacks, of course, will be among those at the Rowan-Swift wedding this afternoon, for Mr. Niblack is Mrs. Alden Swift's brother.

Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. John L. Cochran, and Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe have invited about seventy-five old friends of the former Dorothy Schmidt, now Mrs. Otto Teegen of New York, to dine and dance tonight at the residence of Mrs. Osborne, 1455 State parkway, at a party they are giving for Mrs. Teegen. Tomorrow afternoon Miss Margot Atkin is giving a cocktail party at her home in Winnetka for Mrs. Teegen, and on the 28th Miss Janet Fairbank will be a dinner hostess for Mrs. Teegen, who is here for her first real visit since she married a little over a year ago and went to New York to live.

Reception Tonight for Joseph L. Lhevinne.

The cards that the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago sent to its members inviting them to a birthday party for Josef Lhevinne tonight brought so many acceptances that Ida Noyes hall will be filled to overflowing with members and musicians anxious to drink the pianist's health and wish him many happy returns of the day. Rudolph Ganz will propose a toast to Mr. Lhevinne, who will be introduced by Carl Bricken. Mr. Lhevinne, who was soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week, will play informally at 8:30, and at 9:30 there will be a reception for him, with Mrs. Harold Stark, president, heading the receiving line.

The Curtis Munsons will be motoring north to Lake Bluff soon after their arrival from Alberta tomorrow, for the Howard Linns are giving them a supper party tomorrow night. Mr. and Mrs. Munson will spend the holidays with her mother, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings of State parkway and Lake Forest.

Entertains for Miss Morton and Pat Hamill.

Miss Betty Durham is hoping for some clear, cold weather tomorrow, and even some snow, for otherwise she will have difficulty in providing her guests with the winter sports she planned to have for entertainment after the luncheon she is giving for Miss Suzette Morton and Pat Hamill. The luncheon will be at the Hubbard Woods residence of Miss Durham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Durham, and then the party will go to the Indian Hill club for skating and tobogganing. The Hamill-Morton wedding will take place next Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morris are giving a cocktail party tomorrow from 5 to 7 o'clock in the Woman's Symphony orchestra headquarters in the Fine Arts building for Ralph Lawton, who will appear as soloist with the orchestra at its tenth anniversary concert earlier in the afternoon in the Studebaker theater. Mrs. Morris is managing director of the orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Keehn are giving a tea tomorrow afternoon at their Lake Forest home for Mr. Keehn's son, Roy D. Keehn Jr., and his bride, the former Patricia Hampton.

Mildred Watkins and Bruce Kenyon Engaged.

At a family dinner last night Mr. and Mrs. William W. Watkins announced the engagement of their daughter, Mildred, to Bruce W. Kenyon, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Kenyon of Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Watkins, who formerly lived in Highland Park and Chicago, came up from their present home in Savannah, Ga., especially for the engagement party. They are staying at the Orrington hotel.

Miss Watkins attended St. Mary's school in Minnesota and the Roycemore school in Evanston. Mr. Kenyon attended Lake Forest academy and Kenyon college.

Mrs. John T. McCutcheon and her sister, Mrs. Clay Judson, are planning a party for their children, Shaw McCutcheon and Alice Clay Judson, for the evening of Dec. 27. It is to be a theater party at the Auditorium, where "The Great Waltz" will be playing. Shaw's older brother, John Jr., will arrive from Harvard, where he is a freshman, on Dec. 21 to spend the holidays at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ward Seabury of Oak Park have announced the engagement of their daughter, Betty, to Joseph W. Hibben, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hibben of Cleveland, O. Miss Seabury was graduated from Pine Manor and attended the University of Chicago, where she was a Quadrangler. Mr. Hibben is a graduate of Princeton and the Harvard business school, and has been in business in Chicago for two years.

Soft Collar Highly Flattering

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSE.

This chic satin blouse has a soft, flattering, novel shirt collar, and either long or short raglan sleeves. It's perfect for afternoons at bridge or tea, besides being smartly practical for casual wear. Velveteen in a rich Venetian or renaissance coloring will be attractive, and wool jersey or silk crêpe are other suggestions for less dressy wear.

The pattern, No. 2913, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2½ yards of 39 inch material.

Palette-Chisel Academy Has 40th Exhibition

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The 40th annual exhibition of paintings by members of the Palette and Chisel Academy of the Fine Arts has opened in the Davis store's 8th floor gallery. It is an entertaining show with a number of remarkably fine paintings.

The outstanding picture is "Hot Irons," by Edward T. Grigware, a magnificent representation of the west. It is a great picture. The story runs that on the strength of this canvas one of the big cattlemen asked Mr. Grigware to paint twenty-two more westerns.

Maurice Greenberg strikes an entirely different note, but a delightfully original one, in "The Bath" and "Circus Patern." Both of these are of sufficient merit to reward any visit to the exhibition. Mr. Greenberg has a deft touch and an intriguing manner with pattern and color.

Othmar Hoffler repeats the note of charm with his exquisite portrait of a little girl "Betty." Leo Marzolo and Hubert J. Margraf both have paintings of distinction. The "Old Roses," by Marzolo, is an enchanting piece of color, delicate and tender. The "Chinese Brazier," by Margraf, is resonant and forceful. The craft with which he has managed the brasses and blue glass cannot be too warmly praised.

"A Rainy Afternoon," by Anthony Buchta, is delicious in its grays. "The Cobbler," by Same Byers, is a homely, honest study. "Autumn Begins," by Oscar B. Erickson, is a particularly intriguing landscape, and "Winding Street," by J. Jeffery Grant, is characteristically fine.

Oskar Gross gives us a beautiful painting in "Anno 1860," a young girl in brown silk—a very lovely canvas. "Reverie," by Arnold B. Turtle, has a wistful charm, and "Mary of Taos," by N. P. Steinberg, is a solid bit of painting.

But go back to Grigware again for a final thrill. After his "Hot Irons" look at "Along Cody Road"—there is a jewel of a picture! The exhibition will continue to Dec. 31.

Guitou Knoop, Russ Sculptor, Is Feted at Tea

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

In his preface to her catalog André Maurois wrote of Guitou Knoop, "You possess, dear Guitou, the qualities which Americans like best: youth, simplicity, sincerity, and enthusiasm," and after meeting the young Russian sculptor yesterday at the Arts club I am sure every one there agreed with M. Maurois' description of her.

"She is charming," every one was saying after being presented to her, although some changed the adjective to "lovely" and others preferred "beautiful." All the enthusiasm was not for her personally, however, for her exhibition of nineteen busts, including one of Maurois, came in for its share of admiring comment, too.

The tea opened two other exhibitions also—paintings by Haim Soutine and drawings, oils, lithographs, and books by Juan Gris. In spite of the fact that Christmas is so near, that every one claims to be so busy shopping she hasn't time for anything else, there was a large crowd at the tea, most of them arriving about 4:30, just after the Symphony concert was over. There was not an unsold seat in Orchestra hall, either, for the concert of which Josef Lhevinne was the soloist.

One of those at the tea was Charles Haubiel, who is leaving tonight for his home in New York, and who was given a luncheon earlier yesterday at the Arts club by Mrs. Nancy Cox MacCormack, well known sculptor. Mrs. MacCormack also returned to the club for tea after the concert and was full of praise for Mlle. Knoop's work. Mr. Haubiel's "Rittrati" [Portraits] was one of the compositions played by the orchestra yesterday afternoon and Thursday night.

Christmas recipes already are highlighting our mail. Mrs. C. S. of Chicago starts off the forum with a request for "Christmas Stollen." We make it like this:

Christmas Stollen.

- 2 1-ounce cakes yeast
- 2 cups lukewarm milk
- 8 cups flour
- 1 pound butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 4 eggs
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¾ pound seedless raisins
- ¼ pound chopped almonds
- ⅓ cup chopped orange peel
- ¼ cup chopped citron
- Grated rind of one lemon

Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm milk, and stir in one cup of flour. Let stand in a warm place. Cream the butter with the sugar, add the whole eggs, one at a time, and beat well. Add the lemon rind, and then combine the two mixtures. Add the remaining flour [reserving about a half cup for sprinkling the chopped fruit] and nutmeg, and knead the dough until smooth and elastic. Mix the chopped fruit with the half cup of flour, and knead into the dough. Let rise until double in bulk. Toss on a floured board and divide into three or more loaves. Spread the tops of each with melted butter, press down the center with a rolling pin, and double each over to form a longish loaf. Again brush with melted butter, let rise until again doubled in size, and then bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for 45 to 50 minutes. When slightly cooled, spread with a plain confectioner's sugar icing.

Another interesting sweet yeast bread is of Bohemian origin. We're reprinting this recipe for a Chicago reader with the feeling that many other people are going to want to try it, too.

Bohemian Kolatchen.

- 1 ounce compressed yeast
- 2 cups scalded milk
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¾ cup butter
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- 2 egg yolks
- Grated rind of one lemon
- 6 cups flour
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon mace
- 1 teaspoon anise seed, well pounded

Crumble the yeast in a half cup of the milk, cooled to lukewarm, and add a teaspoon of the sugar. Let stand in a warm place. To the rest of the hot milk add the butter, sugar, salt, nutmeg, lemon rind, and finally the egg yolks. Stir in the yeast mixture and the flour, and knead until smooth and elastic, working in the cinnamon, mace, and anise seed. Let double in bulk, and then roll out to a half inch thickness. Cut in three inch rounds, lay on a well buttered pan, pressing down the center of each cake so as to raise a ridge around the edge. Place one tablespoon of prune or other fruit jam in the center, and set again to rise. When the dough has doubled in bulk a second time, brush the tops with stiffly beaten egg white, sprinkle with granulated sugar, and bake at 375 degrees F.

Metropolitan Museum Buys Historic Morgan Altar Piece

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Another piece from the collection of J. P. Morgan has found its way to the Metropolitan Museum of Art—a 15th century altar piece. The purchase of a 12th century lifesize wooden crucifix from Spain also was announced. The altar piece, a triptych of Saint Lawrence enthroned, by Fra Filippo Lippi, will have its first public showing next week.

According to CULBERTSON

[Mr. Culbertson continues his description of a "friendly game" he recently watched. The first hand in this series appeared Tuesday of this week.]

With a doubled small slam to his credit, West decided to do some gloating on his own hook in return for the "riding" South had given him.

"I don't hear any criticism of our contract on the last hand," he remarked sweetly.

"What do you want us to do—cheer?" growled South. "Come on, deal the cards!"

This was the next hand:
South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

SOUTH
♥ Q J 7 3
♦ 10 7 6 3
♣ Q 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 spade	Pass	2 dimds.
Pass	4 spades [final bid]

North, with his scattering of honor cards, felt that his best defense lay in not jeopardizing one of them on his opening lead, and therefore led the nine of diamonds. Dummy won the trick and now declarer made the worst play imaginable—he took a trump finesse! A moment's thought should have shown him the folly of this play. North's return lead, after winning the queen, actually did show it to him. It was a diamond, removing West's only entry to the dummy's solid suit. Declarer tried to wriggle out of his blunder by leading another diamond and discarding his losing heart, but of course North ruffed and West later had to concede two club tricks for a penalty of 100 points. Obviously the proper play of the ace, king, and jack of trumps would have brought home the contract with two overtricks.

For the first time, East had something to say.

"If you'd stiffen your will power, partner," he remarked icily, "you might be able to resist a finesse now and then!"

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: If a defender fails to follow suit, has the declarer the right to ask him whether he is out of the suit?

Answer: Yes. In certain cases it is much to declarer's advantage not to have a revoke occur [a long suit without entry might be shut out] and he has the right to demand that a defender follow suit when he is sure that he is able to.

Realistic Art Stirs Rage of Girl Subject

BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

GARY COOPER.

Three young art students set out on a sketching trip and, cash being limited, they were to trade their work for food and lodging and gasoline as much as possible. It worked out satisfactorily and one day they arrived at an unusually attractive farm house. The elderly woman who owned it had never seen artists before and was glad to accommodate them in exchange for a picture of her house. The boys liked her, her cooking, and everything around the place, and offered to paint the woman's portrait if they could stay for a while. She agreed to an extended visit, but had her doubts about the portrait proposition.

Her maid servant volunteered to pose first as a tryout and managed, as girls will, to get the most romantic looking fellow to do the job. The basis of selection proved to be unsound, not to say disastrous. He had a fine nose, narrow in front view and very pointed in side view, indicating a realistic turn of mind and critical view of things.

With these traits he went to work on a face with a fleshy nose, on the side of which the owner had placed temporarily a piece of black adhesive tape to cover a little wound. He did a good likeness and the portrait was in general pleasing, but the tape stood out like a landmark. When the sitter saw it she thought he was making fun of her and broke the canvas over his head.

She should have selected the artist who had a fleshy nose like hers. He would have eliminated every blemish on her face. He would have felt the ugliness of the roughly outlined spot as deeply as she did, and would never have put it in.

Gary Cooper, a handsome, husky lad with the steady, concentrated look of well protected eyes, is sincerity personified. The long upper lip indicates calmness and the slightly down-slanting nose tip a conservative attitude. The forehead is moderately backward sloping with heavy bumps over the eyes. This means a tendency to see things as they are, and to judge detail values according to how they fit into a scheme as a whole. The rounded nose tip in side view denotes a disinterestedness in regard to the affairs of others.

Child's Gifts Should Have Lasting Value

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I shudder [economically] sometimes when the wave of Christmas giving has receded and I see in my mind's eye some of the things that its backwash has left behind.

Toys that won't work and that produce frustrated tears instead of satisfaction, playthings that break at the first sturdy onslaught, trick mechanical devices that amuse for only a day or two, objects that attract the adult eye and seem "so cute," but which serve no other purpose than to clutter up the house—there's far too much of this sort of débris to show for the expenditure of perfectly good and often hard-earned money. There's less of this waste than there used to be, especially among parents, but there's far too much, nevertheless.

I'm sure you understand that I'm not recommending that you buy instead only "useful" presents for your child, such as a whole new outfit for Sunday school, or a pair of pajamas, or nice, warm underwear. Money is never better spent than on good sturdy playthings, dolls and furry animals, books, apparatus, supplies for sports, and materials for pursuing hobbies and special talents.

What I'm advising you to do is to keep cool when you shop. Don't get light-headed with the shopping fever.

Do as much looking as you like—but keep your feet on the ground. Plan carefully and get something real for your money.

There are beautiful books, fine toys, and well built playthings in the stores. The trash is in the minority. Be canny in your buying and when Christmas has receded you will find that the children have toys and materials that will keep them happy, and be of value, too, throughout many months.

Which Type of Jewel Is Best Suited to You?

Personality and Coloring Dictate Choice.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Did you ever think of yourself as a jewel type? A diamond girl, a ruby beauty, an emerald sister, an amethyst sweetheart, a turquoise honey, or what you be?

It's a little game you might play on yourself, or include your friends in on it. But don't get catty with either yourself or friends and go identifying any one as "paste" or "brass ring" jewels. That wouldn't be nice.

The idea comes from a noted jewelry designer and connoisseur of rare gems, who has his own secret of classifying women as diamond types, ruby, emerald, and so on.

How classify them? Well, the woman's coloring and her personality largely dictate the type.

Diamonds, it would appear, belong on the woman with great poise, sophisticated and generally elegant. No sallow skinned or dowdyish person is permitted in the diamond type circle. Mousey women, colorless women, naive simple folks have other jewels to draw from, but not from the diamond mines. The lovely blonde with white skin may gather in the pearl necklaces and be praised for her art most highly if she leans to the light, creamy cast of pearls. Should she have a mind for it [or, I mean, a mine], rubies and sapphires may be added to her collection with becomingness.

The sun tanned blonde is urged to direct her activities in the way of rubies and yellow topaz. For the blonde with fair pinkish skin, pearls with a pink cast are good enough and, indeed, a sparkling diamond won't dim her glory, either. The redhead with the dangerous green eyes should go for emeralds in a great big way, and sapphires, Wall street favoring her. Cornflower blue sapphires should be left to the light, blue eyed, dainty blonde. The dazzling brunette can dip both hands in the grab bag and draw out diamonds and colored stones and all she wants of them, whereas the gray haired, dark one is permitted a run of the amethyst market and diamonds.

Anyway, that gives you an idea of how to play the game in the open market or as it may appear closed to some of us POOR wretches, whose rise to a phony clip may needs rate a wedding anniversary.

Blue Is Keynote Color of Quilt in Celestial Design

Starry Night.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Blue, quite naturally, is the keynote of this lovely old quilt pattern. The stars are the usual soft blue, while the background is of deep blue. The quilt is set together to form an all-over pieced design. An interjection of variety is achieved by setting all the pieced blocks together with narrow bands of white between the squares. The finished square measures 15 inches and the completed coverlet 90x105 inches. Strange as it may seem, this old colonial quilt design, when set together block to block, is reminiscent of an old Moorish tile.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower.

Spanish Drama Is Presented by Good Amateurs

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A well regarded specimen of modern Spanish drama called "La Malquerida," written by Jacinto Benavente, was staged in the Chicago Woman's club theater last night by the Mummers, energetic high grade amateurs, for the instruction and diversion of their loyal and growing following. The performance will be repeated tonight and next Monday night.

These Mummers have theater sense; they never dawdle over their dialog and are keen at pouncing upon their cues. They dress their stage with a true feeling for the atmosphere of the play and without striving for arty touches of interior decoration. They are amateurs who appear to have a healthy, normal interest in the drama, and their productions, as thus far submitted to down town audiences, have a laudable vitality.

"La Malquerida" deals with Spanish emotions, slowly coming to a boil in a Castilian farmhouse. The head of the house has suppressed desires for his young step-daughter; her betrothed is mysteriously murdered on the eve of the wedding; the mother and wife uncorks some ferocious speeches when she discovers that it has been an inside job.

Although on the modern reading lists the play is already old fashioned, the fact that the rôle of the mother was once acted on the American stage by Nance O'Neill, a declamatory tragedy queen of the past generation, is a tip-off on its quality.

The Selwyn theater, whose license was revoked by Mayor Kelly's action against "Tobacco Road," will emerge from the blanket of censorship on Monday, Dec. 30. Ruth Draper, famous "monodrama" actress, will be the attraction, for a two weeks' engagement, offering a program of her self-written character sketches.

"Boy Meets Girl," latest hit of the Broadway stage, will come to Chicago on Jan. 16, in a duplicate company. Polly Walters will have the rôle acted in New York by Joyce Arling.

SOUTHEASTERN GROUP LIFTS SUBSIDY BAN

Make Scholarships Available.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The Southeastern conference voted today to recognize athletic ability in the assignment of financial aid to students. The move was generally interpreted as removing a sub rosa practice and was heralded as a progressive step in behalf of deserving athletes.

Eleven of the 13 conference members voted in favor of the amendment to the bylaws placing athletes in the same category with other students regarding scholarships and financial assistance.

"Athletic ability," the amendment said, "should receive consideration in determining student values and in the assignment of scholarships, loans, and opportunities for remunerative work, with the understanding that such assistance never shall be granted primarily as a reward for athletic services."

Only Get Expenses.

The amendment provided further that such aid was not to exceed in amount the legitimate expense of attending the institution as represented by tuition, fees, books, and board and lodging.

"A regular faculty committee," the amendment stated, "must grant the assistance and the records of such aid must be open to the inspection of the administrative officers of the institution and officers of the Southeastern conference.

"Athletes must be held to the same scholastic requirements that have been established by the member institutions for other scholarships."

Dr. L. C. Glenn, faculty chairman of athletes at Vanderbilt university, cast the only dissenting vote. Later he said he had no comment. Vice Chancellor B. F. Finney of the University of the South [Sewanee] did not vote.

Dr. John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida and head of the conference, said adoption of the amendment was "a constructive step," adding:

"It is a great improvement over conditions that existed in the past. It is the very thing I've been working toward."

Dr. Tigert added he had been informed football squads of the conference have better scholastic averages than the student bodies as a whole.

They May Be Abuses.

Addressing the conference group at the annual banquet tonight, President Tigert said in a prepared speech:

"It occurs to me that much of the difficulty under which we now labor might be removed if we recognize that students who meet the criteria and standards of scholarship and character which are ordinarily required of those who are not athletes, may accept financial assistance at least equal to their college expenses, even though they happen to be athletes.

"In other words, they would not be subsidized for athletic services, but would be eligible for legitimate financial aid open to other students because of scholarly and other desirable qualities.

"I realize that this kind of provision would be subject to abuse and possibly some students would receive compensation beyond their expenses and others might not really measure up to the high standards which might be set up for this kind of assistance.

"On the whole, I believe that such a policy would remove considerable pretense that may now exist and which we have found impossible to eradicate because of inability to rigidly apply the present regulations."

Herman J. Stegeman, director of athletics at the University of Georgia, said the move simply did away with an activity that was general with many schools of the country and eliminated a sub rosa practice.

Grant Longer Practice.

"This amendment," said Athletic Director Chet Wynne of the University of Kentucky, "brings above board all the assistance heretofore given athletes. It is a progressive step and places the Southeastern above most conferences of the country."

Members of the conference are: Alabama, Auburn, Florida, Georgia Tech, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana State, Mississippi State, Mississippi, Sewanee, Tennessee, Tulane, and Vanderbilt.

The conference also approved an amendment setting the opening date for football practice on Sept. 1 instead of the first Monday in September, but rejected a proposal to lengthen the season from 10 to 12 weeks.

PRESIDENTS OF BIG TEN SCHOOLS HIT SUBSIDIES

Frank Favors Rhodes Scholarhsip Plan.

Presidents and representatives of Western conference universities yesterday declared themselves opposed to awarding scholarships to athletes on the basis of athletic prowess following adoption of a resolution by the Southeastern conference providing financial aid for participants in varsity sports. The Pacific Coast conference, however, favored the stand of the southern group.

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, favored consideration of physical accomplishments in the granting of such awards.

"The awarding of scholarships on the broad basis of the Rhodes scholarship," President Frank said, "taking into consideration physical qualities as well as qualities of intellect and character is, I believe, a much sounder policy in the long run than basing the awards solely on grades."

President Frank said he did not believe the Big Ten rule governing scholarships to athletes prohibited the consideration of physical qualities, but was designed to prevent awards for athletic prowess alone.

Coast Favors Granting Aid to All Alike.

Prof. Hugh C. Willett, chairman of the Pacific Coast conference, said the action of the Southeastern conference "seems entirely justifiable."

"The Pacific Coast conference feels that institutions should grant aid to students on the basis of individual merit without unduly favoring any particular group and without discriminating against any particular group," Willett explained.

"It seems to me to be entirely justifiable for a conference to see to it that there is no discrimination against an athlete when it comes to granting aid."

Dr. E. C. Elliott, president of Purdue university, interpreted the Big Ten rule as meaning that scholarships can be awarded only on academic attainments.

"I am absolutely opposed to the principal of awarding scholarships for athletic prowess," Dr. Elliott said. "I will have to hear some new arguments for such a practice before I can change my mind."

Coffman Opposes Change in Rule.

Lotus D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota, was unalterably opposed to any athletic scholarships or modification of the Big Ten rule to embody the principles of the Rhodes scholarships. He did not oppose awards to athletes on a purely academic basis, however.

"The Big Ten eligibility rules now do not make the athletes a preferred class, but open to them every opportunity available to other students," Prof. O. F. Long, chairman of the Northwestern university committee on athletics, said. "However fair any other proposal may seem, it may be assumed that if schools have not lived up to past standards in good faith, it is too much to expect that they will live up to new regulations and the whole matter will degenerate into competitive bidding for the ablest athletes."

Prof. Alexander Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, refused to comment.

MARBERRY QUITS UMPIRING; SIGNS GIANT CONTRACT

New York, Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Fred [Firpo] Marberry, former Detroit pitcher and American league umpire, today was signed by Manager Bill Terry to play with the New York Giants next season. Marberry will be used as a relief pitcher and Manager Terry believes he will be a valuable addition to the pitching staf.

Marberry, who served for many years with the Washington Senators, was released by the Detroit Tigers last season. Later he attempted umpiring but resigned today.

DETROIT RELIES ON SPEEDY BACKS AGAINST GIANTS

It's First Meeting of Year Between Teams.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

New York's Giants, defending champions of the National Football league, and Detroit's Lions, challengers for the title in the game tomorrow afternoon at the University of Detroit stadium, did not meet during the regular season just concluded. This circumstance, for the first time since the playoff system was copied from the hocky magnates two years ago, lends importance to this game.

There was a playoff in 1932 for the league championship, but this game in the Chicago Stadium between Portsmouth and the Chicago Bears was necessary to break a tie for the title. The Bears won. In 1932 the Bears played six tie games, including two with Portsmouth and this was the real reason for the move to change professional football rules.

They Change Systems.

In 1933 the league was divided into eastern and western divisions and the winners, the Chicago Bears and the New York Giants, met at Wrigley field. The Bears won, 23 to 21. Many have called this football's most thrilling game. But before the title battle the teams had played each other during the regular season and the Bears had the better percentage standing.

In fact, the game was played in Chicago because of this and at that time it was decided the team having the higher percentage standing at the end of the regular season would be host and thus have the advantage of playing before the home crowd. But last year the undefeated Bears again were tops during the season, so this regulation was revised and the championship game was played in New York. The site of the game now is supposed to alternate between the east and west.

Their First Meeting.

The Bears were decidedly irked last year when they lost the title to New York after having beaten the same team twice during the regular schedule. Perhaps the famous tennis shoe episode was responsible for the Giants winning, as some contended, but nevertheless the Giants won the championship, 30 to 13.

There can be no recrimination after tomorrow's game. Bill Shepherd, who started the season with the Boston Redskins and then was traded, is the only member of the Detroit eleven which has played against the Giants this season. The game is a natural, and for this year, at least, makes the title play-off mean something.

By any set of figures the teams are well matched. Each has lost three games. Detroit has played two tie games, but since these were with the Cardinals [10 to 10] and the Bears [20 to 20], and the Cardinals and Bears both defeated the Giants once, there can be little argument evolved. Dutch Clark of Detroit is the leading scorer of the league with 55 points. Sixteen of his points were made after touchdowns, however, which brings the Tiger star down to the vicinity of Dale Burnett of the Giants, who scored 36 points for the year. Burnett is not expected to start against Detroit because of an infected hand.

Detroit Has Speed.

Who scores is not important. Ground gained is a far better record of merit. Ernie Caddel, Lions' heavy duty half back, led his team with 450 yards in 87 attempts. Kink Richards, of the Giants, gained 449 yards but he needed 149 attempts and thus his average is only 3 yards a try compared with Caddel's five. It would seem that Detroit has more running strength since four other Tiger ball carriers gained at least 200 yards during the season and Ed Danowski is the only other Giant to top this figure.

Danowski, however, created a new

Wildcats Beat Pitt, 38 to 30; 8 Big Ten Teams Play Tonight

Jake Nagode and Fred Trenkle, a pair of sharpshooting sophomores, led Northwestern to a 38 to 30 victory over Pittsburgh at Patten gymnasium last night. Each scored 10 points on five field goals. It was the Wildcats' second straight victory of the season and the first defeat for the invading Pitt quintet.

Trenkle, who hails from Bloomington, Ill., is the Wildcats' high scorer, although still classified as a reserve. He played one half of the Carleton game and also bagged five field goals. He entered last night's game midway in the first half and pitched in three rapid fire baskets before the period ended. He and Nagode sank most of their shots on one hand push-in attempts from the foul line.

Wildcats Lead at Half, 16-14.

Pitt kept pace with the Wildcats until midway in the second half, when the Purple pulled away. The first period was a see-saw affair with the lead changing hands four times, although Northwestern held a 16 to 14 advantage as the gun ended the half.

Capt. Ted Roderick, a small, but shifty forward, led the visitors with three field goals and a free throw for seven points. Pitt's failure to connect on free throws proved costly, since they missed eight. Northwestern made eight of eleven free throws.

Joe Garcia put Pitt in the lead at the outset with a basket from long range. McMichaels pitched in four consecutive free throws to put Northwestern in front, a lead which they held until midway in the period, when a Pitt rally, led by Roderick and Garcia sent them ahead, 13 to 8.

Mr. Trenkle Comes Through.

Trenkle then came through with three consecutive baskets to give Northwestern a 14 to 13 lead. Roderick tied the score with a free throw, but Mercer connected with a long one to close the half at 16 to 14.

Some rapid fire action ensued at the start of the second half with Pitt tying the score on two free throws by Spotovich. The lead alternated for a spell until the Wildcats

TREEST, SYKES WIN BOUTS IN HEAVY TOURNEY

Six Matches on Card, Five Knockouts.

Art Sykes of Elmira, N. Y., defeated Les Keesweeter, Moosejaw, Sask., in six rounds in the windup bout of the heavyweight elimination tournament started at the Coliseum last night.

The bout was the only one of the six matches to go the scheduled distance, it having been cut from eight rounds. Consequently the show was ended after only one hour and 20 minutes, the arena being cleared of the last spectator in an assemblage of 1,000 shortly after 10 p. m.

The standouts before the show, in addition to Sykes, were Billy Treest, Batavia, Ill.; Harry Thomas, Eagle Bend, Minn.; Johny Erjavec, Duluth, Minn.; Babe Davis, St. Louis, Mo., and Frank Androff, Portland, Ore. After the show, all six continued to be standouts, each having won his encounter decisively.

Treest In Debut.

In the other eight round bout, Thomas, 202, knocked out Houston Ash, of Kayford, W. Va., in the first round. One punch, a right to the head, ended the fight.

Sykes Floors Foe.

The small crowd, which paid $1,195, seemed to enjoy the Treest-Roushkolb bout the most. Roushkolb displayed a good left jab and a hard right, which he frequently shot to the head and body. These wallops made Treest's backers uneasy.

The former Chicago Golden Gloves champion floored Roushkolb with a right to the chin in the fourth. Roushkolb arose as Referee Phil Collins chanted nine, but he was exhausted and when Treest broke from a clinch, Eddie fell to the canvas and was counted out.

FAMOUS 12TH MAN OF DARTMOUTH IS CARD SHARK NOW

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Mike Mesko, the Rahway, N. J., lunch wagoner who claimed to be the famous "twelfth man" for the Dartmouth football team in the Princton game, now is kibitzing the bridge experts.

Mesko had better luck at kibitzing today than he did against Princeton, though both ended the same for him.

"Don't play that card," shouted Mesko to Michael T. Gottlieb, captain of the American Four Aces team, during a session today with the French bridge team. Meska was escorted to safety by the referee.

When quiet returned it was discovered, however, Gottlieb had been playing from his own hand when the lead was from dummy.

STANFORD MEN PASS TESTS, GET READY FOR S. M. U.

Palo Alto, Cal., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Stanford football players closed their books with a joyous whoop today and started talking "Rose Bowl and Southern Methodist." Final examinations were completed, and all football men were successful.

The first organized practice since the California game Nov. 23 will start tomorrow morning. Two workouts will be held each day. Stanford and S. M. U. will play in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena New Year's day.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Now that the Live Stock exposition has ended, I wonder how many are left who remember 'Way Back When the Fat Stock show, as it was then called, was held in the old Exposition building on the lake front.

In those days major features of the shows were the butchering contests, country style. Contestants had the standard three leg hoist with block and tackle, spreader, breacher knives, and equipment all laid out ready for operation. Then each two-man team brought in its steer, led it up to the rack, and on signal all teams dropped their critter and proceeded to dress out.

The teams had to take the head and legs off, skin off the hide and hoist it up, take out the entrails, take all tallow from pouch, split the critter down the back, leave the same amount of bone on each side, tie up the side and tallow, take down the three legs, coil the ropes, and clean up. When finished, judges noted each crew's time, and to the winners went the spoils.

If you don't think there was plenty of excitement, and betting, and sometimes real fights, then you have another think coming. A country butcher in those days was a real artist and no fooling, because sometimes he killed for farmers and had to do the job out in the orchard with snow up to his knees in below zero weather—but a healthy job at that.

The Armours, both Ogden and Philip, also were students there. Prof. Allen was a wonderful man and an able teacher. His three sons, Ira W. Taking Orders from Joan?

The Wake recently was commissioned a colonel on the staf of the governor of Kentucky. Now comes Helper G. C. S. to inform that Joan Crawford Tone just has been made a general on that staf. Several times, according to the yarn, she refused a colonel's commission with the remark "No, I'll be a general or nothing." So now she's Gen. Joan Crawford Tone. Suppose that we, being only a colonel, will have to take orders from her if we visit Hollywood again.

New York, Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Joe Louis, the sensational Brown Bomber of the ring, battered Paulino Uzcudun, rugged Basque woodchooper of another day, into a technical knockout defeat tonight in the fourth round of their scheduled 15 round bout in Madison Square Garden. A crowd of 19,945 paid gross receipts of $128,394.75 to see the bout.

In a battle staged for the benefit of a Christmas fund Louis polished off his rival with a single, solid blow, a right to the jaw that toppled in his tracks Paulino—the man whose proud boast it was that he had never been knocked out and who claimed never to have been knocked down.

Splits Paulino's Face.

That right to the jaw spread over enough territory to split the left side of Paulino's face, rip his upper lip, and lacerate the inside of his mouth, as well as addle his brain. Blood gushed from these wounds and from a cut over the left eye sustained in the third round as the man from the Pyrenees sank in his tracks, stretching full length on the canvas near his own corner.

Helpless and stunned, Paulino nevertheless pulled himself to his feet with the aid of the ring ropes for which he reached instinctively. But he was powerless, defenseless, bewildered, out on his feet as Louis leaped in for the kill.

While Referee Arthur Donovan hesitated to stamp the ignominy of a knockout defeat on an admirable career, Louis leaped in with two powerful rights to the jaw and started a left for the jaw. This blow was stayed, however, for Referee Donovan leaped in, waved Louis aside, clasped Paulino in his arms, and signaled the end of the fight amid the din from the greatest crowd to attend boxing in the Garden in six years.

Joe's 26th Straight Victory.

The fourth round had gone exactly 2 minutes 32 seconds when the bout was over. All the fighting, however, was crowded into the closing 15 seconds of the struggle if it could be called that.

That is the story of the twenty-sixth straight victory for Louis in an unbroken string of ring triumphs as a professional in a career that started on July 4 last year. His twenty-second knockout in this amazing record was the easiest for this stolid youngster with the expressionless, emotionless face. He marches on the goal he has set himself, the world's heavyweight championship.

In a few days the former Chicago Golden Gloves champion will be off to Havana, where he is to fight Isadoro Gastanaga on Dec. 29. He has a fight in January in Chicago against Charley Retzlaff, unless the latter changes his mind. In June Louis is to fight Max Schmeling as the final trial before he gets a crack at James J. Braddock, the world's titleholder.

Future Foes Look On.

They were there tonight—Braddock and Schmeling—close to the ring side, watching intently this human machine of destruction, doubtless wondering what will happen to them when and if they climb through the ropes against the brown skinned warrior.

There can be no criticism of Referee Donovan's intervention. He did the only thing possible with the situation that faced him. To let Louis proceed with the destruction of the helpless old man in front of him would have been butchery. Another blow might have inflicted irreparable damage to a gallant old ring warrior who has passed his prime at 36.

Paulino protested feebly, not with words, but with his actions, as Donovan stopped the contest and clasped the Basque in friendly arms as Louis seemed bent on battering him down. But it was the mute, impulsive protest of a game fighter who knows not when he is beaten.

Only Matter of Time.

It was obvious at the outset that it was only a matter of time when Paulino would go down and out. Fifteen years older than the 21 year old Louis, the recipient of more hard knocks than the youth with fists like hand grenades, Paulino was only the instrument of the crowd's curiosity, the object of attention from a gathering that wanted to see if he could stand up under Louis' paralyzing punches.

That one blow in the fourth round—a right hand drive that thudded home to the jaw almost through a knothole as Paulino presented the first inviting opening in his defense of folded and waving arms—was the one and only solid blow Louis struck. It traveled only a short distance, but it went sharp and true. Paulino toppled under it, stiffening as he went down.

Paulino might have stayed down, but the fighter's instinct made him league record for forward passing efficiency. Fifty one per cent of Danowski's passes were completed. In addition to carrying the ball 325 yards from scrimmage, Danowski threw 57 successful passes in 113 attempts and these completions gained 795 yards.

A professional league freshman, Tod Goodwin, formerly of West Virginia, is one reason for Danowski's success. Goodwin caught 26 passes for total gains of 432 yards and four touchdowns. By his work at the flank, Goodwin may be called one of the greatest ends in the history of the National league, which is taking in quite a bit of territory.

Depends on Weather.

Goodwin and the other ends will find that they are facing the fanciest ball carriers in the league in Shepherd, Caddel, Clark, and Presnell. One of these speedy runners is sufficient for most backfields. Two such may make a championship contender, but this quartet, ably assisted by such a blocker as Frank Christensen, stacks up as the fastest in pro football. Consequently, the condition of the gridiron tomorrow is more important than any dissertation on abilities of the respective players.

The University of Detroit gridiron is protected by a canvas cover, but the ground can not be firm unless frozen. After all this is mid-December. The field may be slow. It can be muddy, depending entirely on the weather for 24 hours before the kickoff. And, of course, if the gridiron is frozen solid, at least as solid as the icy field last year in New York's Polo grounds, both teams may come out equipped with tennis shoes.

Giants' Line Strong.

Against Detroit's spectacular ball carriers New York will use a line which is one of the best ever put together despite the loss of Red Badgro at one end. Paired with Tod Goodwin will be Walter Singer, from Syracuse university, another first year man, or Buster Mitchell, who played with Detroit until the middle of this season. Bill Morgan and Len Grant, a fine pair of tackles, are certain to start, and so is Mal Hein, the Giants' star center. Potsy Jones probably will be one guard, with either Bill Owen or Bernie Kaplan, a former teammate of Shepherd at Western Maryland, at the other guard.

This line may stop Detroit's runners. And on offense Danowski's passing is the Giants' No. 1 threat, Richards' running is number two, and the place kicking of the veteran Ken Strong is number three.

How They Compare.

Louis Pounds Uzcudun, Wins in 4th Round

get up with the aid of the ropes at the count of eight. He got up only to invite disaster which Referee Donovan forestalled.

Louis might have polished his rival off with one punch in the first round, in the first minute, if he had desired. If the Brown Bomber had gone out recklessly against a man from whom he knew he had nothing at all to fear, the fight would never have gone beyond the first round. That is how far Louis outclassed the Basque wood chopper.

But Louis proceeded wisely, cautiously. He was not risking injury to his precious hands or arms striking at random against a foe who presented a clamlike defense with his arms folded protectingly and his head bobbing in and out of this protection.

Waits for Opening.

Louis' task was to get a crack at Paulino's jaw in the fleeting second when it was exposed. A left to the jaw jarred Paulino in the second, but Louis was in no hurry because Paulino still affected the defense of protecting arms almost exclusively, and was helpless when he tried to land a blow. Two short right uppercuts promised to open Paulino up, and when he did for a flash, Louis sent him back on his heels with a high right for the jaw.

With the third round, Paulino became emboldened. He missed two lefts for the body and grazed the face with a right, but he was punching against Louis' stiff straight left. Paulino twice socked a left high on the head, but met a volley of short rights to the face and head. A right brought the blood from a cut over Paulino's left eye shortly before the round ended. It was the beginning of the end.

That Fourth Round.

Louis made his foe's injured eye the target starting the fourth, and snappy lefts thuddded against the optic. The Spaniard plunged in wildly with a left for the body, but the blow lost its effect when Louis' right uppercut landed first. Almost in the same motion, Louis dug a left to the body and brought the fist to the face.

In the retaliation, Paulino suddenly shot a right to the side of the head, but he only hurried his own finish. Louis, aroused, ripped several lefts to the body, forcing Paulino across the ring. Then suddenly the former Golden Gloves champion cracked his right to the jaw and the retreating Paulino stiffened and toppled backward. He arose at the count of eight and was weakly trying to continue when the referee called a halt.

The power in Louis' punch was so great as to drive one of Paulino's teeth clear through his upper lip. In his dressing room, the Basque exhibited a wound three-quarters of an inch long.

Louis Hits Too Hard.

On the verge of tears, the Basque bravely restrained his emotions and would offer no comment until after he had taken his shower. Then, in his limited English, he said, "Louis hits too hard."

Schmeling, Uzcudun went on to say, will be easy for Louis.

Louis, in his dressing room was his usual taciturn self. In reply to questions, he answered, "It was an easy fight. The only one that gave me less trouble was Levinsky."

"I knew after the first round that Paulino was in there to stay if he could. I waited for the opening, and it came in the fourth, when he dropped his left, dropped his chin, and I dropped my right."

Louis will leave for Chicago tomorrow and will return here in a week to prepare for his trip to Havana.

Schmeling Still Confident.

Schmeling admits Louis' punch is deadly, but he is confident he can beat the Bomber. The ex-champion, who has fought Paulino a total of 39 rounds in three fights without even flooring him, stated after tonight's fight that Paulino offered little opposition.

"Paulino was wide open for the right, and, of course, he had to fall," Schmeling said, "but I won't be that open, and, remember, I can hit pretty hard myself."

In the preliminary bouts of six rounds, Jack Gibbons, St. Paul, 167½, defeated Billy Ketchell, Philadelphia, 176, and Max Marek, Chicago, 181, beat Joe Lipps, Washington, 177.

Louis Receives $38,800 for Four Rounds of Work

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Here is how the gross gate of $128,394.75 for the Louis-Uzcudun fight tonight was divided:

Joe Louis received 40 per cent, or $38,800. [Louis contributed $6,800 to the Christmas fund.]

Christmas fund received approximately $24,000.

Paulino's share was 20 per cent or about $19,000.

Promoter Mike Jacobs wound up with $3,500—almost enough to pay his expenses.

BASKET STAR IS RULED INELIGIBLE; STUDENTS STRIKE

New Wilmington, Pa., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Because Paul Backus, star of the Westminster college basketball team was placed on probation for scholastic deficiencies, approximately 600 students today quit their classes and paraded on the campus protesting the action of school officials.

Backus, whose home is in Youngstown, O., is 6 feet 3 inches tall. A delegation of student leaders visited President Robert M. Galbreath, who said the strike was due to a misunderstanding. Speakers urged students to demand Backus' reinstatement at a massmeeting on the campus.

NORTH CENTRAL OPENS SEASON WITH ARMOUR

North Central meets the undefeated Armour Tech basketball team tonight at Naperville in the opening game of the season. Armour Tech has scored victories over Arkansas State and George Williams.

North Central expects to have a good scoring unit in Yuknis and Young at forwards and Thumley at center. These three are all over six feet and give North Central its first tall team in years. Spiegler and Burns will be at the guards.

Blackhawks to Play 2 Games on Road Trip

Tonight's Games

New York Rangers at Montreal Maroons.
Detroit at Toronto.

The Blackhawks, who lost the first game of the season on their home ice Thursday to the Detroit Red Wings, will leave for a two game trip this afternoon. Their first stop will be at New York, where they are booked to play the Americans tomorrow night. Thursday they will be in Montreal for their first away from home clash against the Canadiens.

The Blackhawks have played both teams in Chicago this season, defeating the New Yorkers in the season's opener, 3 to 1, and taking the other from the flying Frenchmen, 1 to 0.

Boys Must Continue to Win.

Although the Hawks still are leading the league, they must maintain a winning pace on the trip to hold their slender lead, as three teams—Toronto, Detroit, and New York Rangers—are but one game behind. The race is the closest the National Hocky league has known in years.

Paul Thompson and his two efficient line mates, Doc Romnes and Donnie McFayden, still are among the first five scorers. Big Charley Conacher and Harvey Jackson of the Maple Leafs' line are the other two.

That Line Can Connect.

The Hawks high flying line has made 14 goals and 21 assists for a total of 35 points. The Leafs' line has accounted for 14 goals and 14 assists for 28 points. Thompson leads individual scorers with 14 points, two more than Conacher has scored. Thompson, with eight points, is tied with Metz of Toronto in goals scored.

NEYLAND MAY SIGN FOR 5 YEARS AT TENNESSEE

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Maj. Robert Reese Neyland today accepted a five year contract as head coach at the University of Tennessee, two authoritative sources said tonight. It generally was conceded that Neyland will receive $10,000 yearly, plus $2,000 each season for traveling expenses.

The 43 year old army engineer, now stationed in the Panama Canal Zone, is expected to announce his retirement from the army tomorrow.

Neyland resigned as coach of the Volunteers in 1934 after establishing one of the best major college records in the country. Over a period of nine years his teams won 76 games, lost seven and tied five.

700 TO BOWL IN INTERSTATE TOURNAMENT

More than 700 bowlers from Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Indiana will compete in the 14th annual Interstate tournament which opens on the Sylvandell alleys in Aurora tonight. Most of the entries are from Chicago, including all eight fives in the Classic league.

Aurora Booster fives will occupy the alleys opening night, with the first Chicago entries taking the drives tomorrow. Prizes will total $3,500.

Award Western Open Tourney to Davenport

The open tournament of the Western Golf association will be held at the Davenport Country club of Davenport, Ia., on June 19-21, according to an announcement last night at the annual dinner and meeting of the organization at the University club. The western amateur was allotted to the Happy Hollow club of Omaha, Neb., with the dates July 13-19. Neither site nor date was set for the junior event, won by young Fred Haas in Detroit last year.

Henry C. Bartholomay of Lake Geneva was elected president of the association for the ensuing season, with Gorton Fauntleroy of Chicago Golf and Leslie L. Cooke of Edgewater, both named as vice presidents. J. Harvey Irwin of Hinsdale was elected secretary and T. C. Butz of Bob o' Link treasurer. Carleton Blunt of Glen View was named general counsel.

The directors included G. H. Raleigh, Country club of Peoria; Emerson Carey Jr. of Carey Lake, Eddie Babcock of Los Angeles, and W. F. Nicholson of Denver. The nominating committee for the 1936 ticket includes R. Arthur Wood of Exmoor, C. L. Tutt of Denver, R. A. Smith of South Bend, Denman Kountze of Omaha, and Dr. W. L. Crawford of Rockford.

Among the guests present last night were Joe Davis, secretary of the Chicago District Golf association, and Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge, and John Lehman of Olympia Fields, both former holders of the western amateur title.

THOMSON DRILLS FOR $10,000 OPEN WITH SUB-PAR 70

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13.—(AP)—One ace golfer after another, polishing strokes for tomorrow's start of the sixth annual $10,000 Miami Biltmore open here, strove unsuccessfully to beat par today.

Only Jimmy Thomson, the steady professional from Ridgewood, N. J., managed to better standard figures in the day's practice rounds over the wind swept course. He had 70, one under par.

Back of him came Ralph Hutchinson, Bethlehem, Pa.; Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee, and Craig Wood, New York, with 71s. Three top flight pros, Gene Sarazen, Brookfield Center, Conn., Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., and Denny Shute, Chicago, were bunched at 72. Paul Runyan, White Plaines, N. Y., had 73.

With 216 professionals and amateurs already entered for the sport's richest tournament, observers looking over the field missed only the familiar faces of Olin Dutra, last year's winner, and Walter Hagen in the ranks of the pros.

MICHIGAN STAR SETS RECORD IN 100 METER SWIM

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—A world record was broken in one event and both collegiate and American records lowered in another during a swimming program billed as an Olympic preparation meet here tonight.

Jack Kaseley of Michigan, Big Ten and national collegiate breast stroke champion, swam the 100 meter event in 1:10, to break the record of 1:12.4 set by J. Cartonnet, France, in Paris, in 1933. In setting it, he swam 100 yards in 1:03.5, a full second faster than the recently recognized American A. A. U. record set by Jack Higgins, Olneyville, R. I.

A Michigan freshman team splashed the 200 yard free style event in 1:33.7 cutting :01.8 off the national collegiate mark set by Yale in 1931, and :01.1 off the American record made by the New York A. C. in 1931. The four men, each averaging :23.4 for 50 yards, were Dave Holmes and Waldemar Tomski, Detroit boys; Bill Farnsworth, Buffalo, interscholastic record holder at 50 yards, and Ed Kirar, Wisconsin varsity sprinter last season.

SAGILIO BATTLES COSTA TONIGHT IN CICERO RING

Five Other Matches Also Scheduled.

Frank Sagilio, Cicero junior welterweight, tonight will return to the scene of early triumphs in a bout scheduled at ten rounds at Cicero stadium, 19th street and 52d avenue. His opponent will be Joey Costa, Jersey City, N. J., who will be making his first appearance here.

In Sagilio's last previous encounter at Cicero stadium he knocked out Lou Jallos, Cleveland, before a crowd of 1,495 who paid $1,469. Costa is one of the best fighters at his weight in the east, and so Promoter Billy Cepak is counting on playing host to as large a gathering tonight. The Jersey City lad possesses a good left hand which he uses at long range. In close he concentrates on a two fisted bombardment to the body.

Critics who have followed Costa's training at Trafton's gymnasium say he is easy to hit, however, and for that reason Sagilio likely will land hard swings to the head. If Costa is unable to absorb these wallops he may be counted out before the match is ended.

There will be five supporting contests.

Eight amateur fights between leading boxers of the Catholic Youth organization will comprise the Christmas charity card being presented by Committeeman John Touhy and the 27th Ward club tonight at the 132d Infantry armory, Rockwell and Madison streets. Contestants include Hiner Thomas, 160 pounds; Otto Fischl, 175; Chester Rutecki, 147, and Frank Kainrath, 118, recent title winners in class A, and Cornelius Young, 147, class B champion, and Johnny Brown, last year's C. Y. O. bantamweight king. The card:

Johnny Brown vs. M. Formentina, 118.
Joe Tanzioli vs. Cornelius Young, 147.
William Youngblodd vs. Al Erlick, 147.
Frank Kainrath vs. Lew Roberts, 118.
Chester Rutecki vs. Eddie Garvey, 147.
Hiner Thomas vs. Otto Fischl, 165.
Johnny Bittner vs. Al Scarlotta, 115.
Tony Carlonise vs. Ernie Wilson, 126.

Claude Varner, California featherweight, will head for New York next week to begin preparations for his 15 round bout with Mike Belloise at the Lenox club Jan. 8. . . . Five boxing matches and two wrestling bouts will be offered at the Illinois Athletic club next Thursday night in conjunction with the annual reception and stag given in honor of the club president. . . . Johnny Behr, Chicago Golden Gloves coach, is arranging the program. . . . Sam De Pasquale, Madison Square loop gymnasium featherweight, will resume drills Monday after being out of action for two weeks due to illness. . . . Freddy Caserio, former Chicago Golden Gloves middleweight titleholder, who defeated Jack Charvez at Cicero Jan. 4 to achieve his fourth triumph in as many professional appearances, has announced his retirement from the ring. . . . Hershie Wilson, Denver, Colo., boxer, who has whipped Willie Davies, Bus Breese, Al Pahl, Lou Vine, and Willie Ross here of late, is seeking matches with Geno Salvatore and Bob Tinsley. . . . Billy Celebron and Fritzie Zivic, welterweight challengers, are due in town today for their ten round encounter Monday.

The Card

Harvey Massey vs. Ed Duarry [6], welterweights.

Sailor Born vs. Jack Knight [4], lightweights.

Lou Vine vs. Art Brewer [4], lightweights.

Johnny Fitzpatrick vs. Sam Scoglio [4], featherweights.

VALUE OF TRAVEL

Few things can equal travel as a means of bringing life and work into true perspective. Somehow, worries which seem so gigantic at home dwindle in importance when viewed at a distance. If cares seem too burdensome, why not slip away for a while?

The Sunday Tribune Travel Directory tomorrow will be filled with news and photos of resorts and tours. Resort and travel advertisers will publish facts about costs, sailings, tour itineraries and other things vacationists want to know.

FACULTY BOARD ACTS ON SPEARS SQUABBLE TODAY

Wisconsin Students Ask Immediate Showdown.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Principals in the University of Wisconsin's latest athletic flareup, which broke out a week ago when John Golemgeske, captain-elect of the 1936 football team, claimed a petition he had circulated demanding the resignation of Dr. C. W. Spears as football coach was instigated by Athletic Director Walter E. Meanwell, kept their counsel today as the faculty athletic board prepared for its meeting tomorrow.

Meantime, a score of petitions demanding a thorough and immediate investigation of the athletic situation by Gov. Phil La Follette were being circulated on the campus. Warning that students are tired of "whitewash investigations," the petition calls attention to the long series of athletic troubles which have "damaged the university's efficiency and reputation and split students and alumni into warring factions."

Everybody Takes a Hand.

A half dozen campus organizations are coöperating in the student referendum.

The faculty athletic board's subcommittee, which will report its findings tomorrow to that body, met again this afternoon in President Glenn Frank's office. The other two committee members are Prof. Andrew T. Weaver, board chairman, and Walter Alexander, Milwaukee, one of the two alumni representatives on the board.

On the basis of the committee's findings the board will make its recommendation to the university regents, who will meet in a special session to act on the controversy Dec. 19.

Just the Facts, Says Frank.

"All we have done is to make a compact record of the facts at hand," President Frank said this afternoon. These "facts" were secured by the board Monday when it heard Dr. Meanwell's side of the controversy and the views of 19 members of the football squad.

A report that Coach Spears would be called before the athletic board tomorrow could not be confirmed.

In a formal statement this afternoon President Frank invited press representatives to attend tomorrow's session. "Since the press has dealt so extensively with the athletic situation, I shall be glad to have you designate, if you so choose, a representative of your paper to be available for conference with the athletic board Saturday," President Frank said in his statement to each of the newspapers.

This Is the Last.

"This will be a thorough investigation," the president promised. "I am determined, if possible, that this shall be the last of the so-called 'athletic department investigations.'"

While the regents officially have been silent to the demand for a thorough probe, one of the board members was heard to remark today that "we may have to go back a few years to get to the bottom of this situation, but we're going to make a thorough investigation, regardless of who is affected."

PURSUIT RACE IS CARDED FOR TOMORROW NIGHT

Another attraction has been added to the card of indoor auto races to be held tomorrow night at the 124th Field Artillery armory, world's largest indoor speedway, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. The new feature is an Australian pursuit race in which pilots must keep from being passed or be eliminated automatically.

There will be four preliminary events, a consolation heat, a handicap race, the forty lap feature, the Australian race, and a twenty lap special championship race on the program.

The first three drivers in preliminary events will qualify for the feature race. The twenty lap match race will determine the mid-season championship,

SOUTHEASTERN SCHOOLS VOTE ATHLETIC AID

night the conference is opposed to the principle of paying athletes.

"Several years ago, a committee from each member university, including the presidents, chairmen of the board of regents, faculty athletic representatives, alumni representatives, athletic directors, and football coaches, met here and defined legitimate and illegitimate recruiting.

"They agreed that an athlete should be entitled to the same assistance as the non-athlete. In all universities, scholarships are awarded students who can meet the academic qualifications. If an athlete qualifies, and in the judgment of the scholarship committee, he is entitled to help, he receives it. Under the agreement, however, athletes are not to be treated as a preferred class.

"Most western conference schools have loan funds, the incomes from which are available to students who need financial assistance. If an athlete is needy and deserving, he is eligible to borrow money from these funds. Each institution has established employment bureaus which serve non-athletes and athletes alike."

Maj. Griffith, as conference commissioner, annually revises a report from each school signed by the athletic director and the president, listing the athletes who have received scholarships. The list also designates athletes borrowing money from the loan funds, and a detailed account of the jobs held by athletes.

Approximately 70 per cent of the Big Ten athletes are working their way through school. Conference schools assist athletes, Griffith said, to the amount of between $60,000 and $70,000 a year. The percentage of athletes receiving help, however, is always lower than the percentage of non-athletes aided.

SOUTHWEST DIVIDED

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Snorts and cheers arose from the football fronts of the west and southwest tonight to greet the Southeastern conference decision to give its college athletes direct financial aid.

"Shame!" shouted Southern Methodist university, Rose Bowl nominee.

"Congratulations!" responded the University of Kansas, a Big Six school.

Dr. W. E. Metzenthin, athletic council chairman at the University of Texas, was inclined to approve the plan, and hinted it might be raised at tomorrow's meeting of the Southwestern conference. "I would rather see a slight lowering of our ideals and a clearing of our consciences than to wink outright at evils in endeavoring falsely to preserve ideals higher than we can expect to maintain."

S. M. U. Disagrees.

Neither S. M. U. nor Texas Christian would agree with him. "We ought to keep intercollegiate athletics on the basis of play, not work," said Prof. E. W. McDiarmid of T. C. U.

James H. Stewart, athletic director for the Methodists, Southwestern champions, attacked the plan because it "takes all the glory out of amateur athletics. I, for one, am against it."

Dr. F. C. Allen, athletic director at the University of Kansas, congratulated the Southeastern conference for being "fearless enough to do openly a thing that many schools have been doing for years."

M. F. Ahearn, athletic director at Kansas State, another Big Six member, said the action was "loaded with dynamite. I believe the Southeastern conference acted unwisely."

Joe Capron, Former Cue Star, Is Dead at 82

Joe Capron, a billiards star in the days of the senior Jake Schaefer, died yesterday at the home of his daughter at 4145 Sheridan road. Capron was born in Brantford, Can., on Sept. 15, 1853. He won the Canadian balk line championship several times before coming to Chicago in 1896 to accept a position in Charley Parker's room. Later he appeared in matches in New Orleans and Chicago, meeting all the stars of his day. The body is at 3154 North Clark street.

Maj. McLaughlin Joins in Laugh at Amateurism

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Good work. Don't retract one word of your statement. There isn't any one with any experience in both amateur and professional athletics who does not laugh heartily at amateur purity.

The above crackling lines are among the hundreds of telegrams and letters received by Prof. George Owen Sr. of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology since Tuesday night, when he made his subsequently explosive charge that college football is a major racket rather than a sport, one in which players should be hired on a day laborers' basis.

The author of the foregoing pointed communique is Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, wealthy Chicago sportsman, who is the owner of the Blackhawks, Chicago's National Hocky league representative. Yesterday Maj. McLaughlin was more than eager to expand at length upon the few words contained in his wire to Prof. Owen. He mentioned, among other items, that he did not know the Massachusetts professor, but was well acquainted with the latter's son, George Owen Jr., Harvard nine letter hero and once a member of the Boston Bruins' hocky team.

Qualified to Speak.

The major was guilty of no puck ragging, so to speak, when asked if he agreed with the stand taken by Prof. Owen, whose speech of Tuesday night is still reverberating throughout the country's campuses and athletic departments. Instead, he went straight for the goal cage, and within ten minutes had more than amplified his sentiments on the subject of open subsidization of college athletes.

The Blackhawk boss is well qualified to speak on the subject of amateurism and professionalism in sport, for he has been intimately connected with both. Aside from his ownership of the Hawks, he was for years an active figure in polo and until little more than a year ago was subchairman of the United States Polo association, a post which he resigned.

Definition of an Amateur.

Before the major had finished proving that he is in hearty accord with Prof. Owen, he summoned his secretary and dictated the following definition of an amateur:

"An amateur, in my opinion, is one who competes only for the sake of the sport. Any one, the result of whose efforts is to make money in sport, whether the money is received by him or by some one else, hardly has the right to be called an amateur."

"The making of money has never been considered reprehensible in this country," he said. "Most youths are encouraged to enter into gainful occupations, and I see no reason why the making of that money by honest exertion should be considered reprehensible.

"If a boy works his way through college by waiting on table or by any other such means, he is covered with medals, but if he makes his way on the athletic field, he is disgraced for life. If a poor boy should bo to Harvard, Yale, Princeton or any other school, and because of a talent in some particular sport, should, by the exercise of that talent, be able to make his way through, I can't understand why there should not be some specified remuneration for that boy, as is suggested by Prof. Owen.

Why Charge Athletes?

"Let's say that fifty men would compete in a tennis tournament for a medal donated by another person, with no admission fees. Those men would be true amateurs in every sense of the word. Take the same fifty men, have them play in a large hall or outdoor courts before a paying audience, and they cannot fairly be called amateurs. I would like to have any college president tell me why any group of young men, say a football team, making thousands of dollars a year for their schools by their athletic ability alone, should be charged for attending these schools.

"Another angle to the case is the matter of the odd jobs which many athletes hold during school in order to work their way through. These I consider an unjust hardship to the individual. He not only has to put in time at these as well as the hours spent on football, but he is bound to find the combination a detriment to his studies, which should be his prime purpose in attending college. Why should a football player, who gives up much of his time to the game itself have to wait on table, tend furnaces, or do other chores, and at the same time try to keep up in the classroom?

"I might add that if college athletics ever are placed on a standard whereby the individual would be rewarded in a monetary way, I would insist that he maintain his scholastic standing at all time."

Maj. McLaughlin also revealed that Prof. Owen had replied to his wire with another in which he thanked the major "for his kind words, which had offset much of the abuse heaped on me on this subject."

ST. JOHN FINDS NEW BASKETBALL RULES ARE O. K.

Columbus, O., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The new basketball rules are "entirely satisfactory," L. W. St. John, Ohio State university athletic director and chairman of the national basketball committee of the United States and Canada, said today.

St. John sat in the press box last night as Ohio State defeated George Washington university in the opening game of the season. He held a stop watch to determine how the new three second rule was functioning, and found no violations.

"The new rules will provide more action, and the spectators like that," St. John said.

"Elimination of the tip-off after a successful free throw cuts out a lot of lost time, speeding up the game more than any rule in years. The players and the crowd seem to be in favor of that innovation.

"The new game, with its faster action and elimination of many of the tip-offs, means that the premium will be taken off giant centers to some extent.

"It also means that the game will develop into a squad, rather than a team competition, for I doubt if many coaches will be able to find five men capable of going through an entire game at top speed, as is required. That will lead to more substitutions, and a chance for more boys really to play the game."

spurted to run up a 32 to 22 margin. Two baskets by Bender led this assault. Miles Zelesnick came through with a pair of goals to narrow the gap, but the rally was too late.

PURDUE MEETS DE PAUL

Eight Big Ten basketball teams will go into action tonight in the heaviest schedule of practice competition of the season so far. Three conference quintets will play in Chicago and only Northwestern and Illinois will be idle tonight.

Heading the list is the encounter between Purdue's Boilermakers and De Paul's Demons at Chicago Stadium, where one of the biggest crowds in Chicago basketball history is expected. Chicago's Maroons, twice beaten in practice games, will take on Wheaton at the Midway fieldhouse and Indiana's veteran team will play Loyola at the north side school's gymnasium.

Other Big Ten teams scheduled for games tonight are Minnesota, which will be host to Carleton; Wisconsin, which will clash with its ancient state rival, Marquette, in the first of a home and home series at Madison; Michigan, which also will meet a state foe in Michigan State at Ann Arbor; Ohio State, which plays Evansville, Ind., college at Columbus, and Iowa, which takes on the touring Pittsburgh five at Iowa City.

Old Feud at Stadium.

The Purdue-De Paul game at the Stadium will be a meeting of two of the best teams in the midwest. Last year Purdue handed the Demons a 48 to 37 defeat for the only beating De Paul has received in more than two years. In that game last year De Paul couldn't stop Bob Kessler, Purdue's high scoring forward, who crashed through for nine baskets.

This year Kessler again is the chief threat of the Boilermakers, although Young and Sines, sophomore forwards, are said to be tremendously fast and the possessors of accurate shooting eyes. Jim Seward, 6 foot 7 inch center, is another Purdue veteran of more than ordinary ability. At guards Purdue may start Downey and Smith, forwards last season.

De Paul has a veteran team which has swept through all opposition with the exception of Purdue, which shared the Big Ten title of 1934-'35 with Illinois and Wisconsin.

Capt. Ray Adams, forward, and Nick Yost, sensational center, are the Demons' scoring hopes, although Ed Campion, a dashing floor guard, is considered one of the best ball handlers in the country. Fred Knez, Bill Wendt, and Bill Phillips are others who will see action against the Boilermakers.

Task for Loyola.

Up on the north side, Loyola is faced with the task of halting a well knit Indiana quintet, and also stopping Fred Fechtman, huge Hoosier center, who has been hitting the basket with regularity this season. Lester Stout, Ken Gunning, Wendel Walker, and Vernon Huffman, other varsity men last season, also will open against Loyola.

Loyola, with Ed Calihan, Marv Colen, and Ed Murray, three experienced men, in the lineup, will depend on a tight defense to halt the Hoosiers. Gart Winkler and Bob Brennan are newcomers.

Chicago sees a chance to get in the victory column at the expense of Wheaton, but first must shake Bill Haarlow, the Big Ten's leading scorer last season, loose for some baskets. Bill Lange, now playing forward after being a guard in other years, has been the principal Maroon scorer to date. Haarlow, however, is a remarkable shot and Chicago followers believe he will demonstrate some of last year's form tonight. Wheaton will present a starting lineup of Tunis Romein, John Gray, Luke Rhoad, John Page, and Del Nelson.

Michigan, with three exceptionally tall men in Gee and the Townsend brothers, should get a battle from Michigan State, while Marquette-Wisconsin games always are bitter contests from start to finish.

Seaback Upsets Mosconi, 125-90, in Cue Tourney

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The first major upset in the world's pocket billiards championship tournament took place tonight when Willie Mosconi, Philadelphia, a favorite, went down to defeat before Charles Seaback, Syrian cueist of Astoria, N. Y. Mosconi, victor in two previous starts, was defeated, 125 to 90, in 22 innings.

It was the first victory for Seaback in four starts. Seaback amassed the high run of the match, 51, which came in the 19th inning, but it was evident that Mosconi was not in top form. The Italian repeatedly missed break shots.

In afternoon matches today, Jimmy Caras, Wilmington, Del., defeated Bennie Allen, Kansas City, 125 to 96, in 13 innings to account for his fourth straight victory and take the lead in the tournament. His victory followed that of Marcel Camp, Detroit, who broke a string of three straight losses by downing Pasquale Natalie, Chicago, 125 to 92, in a 19 inning match.

Joe Procita of Gloversville, N. Y., downed Frank Taberski of Schenectady, N. Y., in 23 innings, 125 to 56. It was Procita's first victory of the tournament.

West Selects 22 Stars to Battle East

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Twenty-two football stars, drawn from nine states, will represent the west in the annual East-West charity game here New Year's day.

The squad was completed today by Co-coaches Percy Locey of Denver and Babe Hollingberry of Washington State college. The players will assemble here Dec. 21. Practice sessions will be held at Stanford university.

The western squad:

ENDS—Bernie Scherer, Nebraska; Norman Iverson, Idaho; Ralph Churchill, Kansas State; John Sylvester, Rice.

TACKLES—J. W. Wheeler, Oklahoma; Harry Lutz, California; John Bley, Washington State; Russ Letlow, San Francisco; Sam Stawisky, University of California at Los Angeles.

CENTERS—Marcel Saunders, Loyola of Los Angeles; Wagner Jorgensen, St. Mary's.

ANTONINI JOINS EAST.

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Ettore Antonini, senior end on the Indiana university football team, today accepted an invitation to join the eastern squad in the East-West football game to be played in San Francisco New Year's day. Antonini received the invitation from Coach Dick Hanley, but talked it over with E. C. Hayes, Indiana university track coach, before accepting.

Antonini, a discus and shot put performer, will be ineligible to compete in track after playing in the All-Star contest.

SO. CALIFORNIA AND PITTSBURGH TO CLASH TODAY

Panthers Hope to Avenge Rose Bowl Beatings.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Pittsburgh will attempt to square an old football debt tomorrow when its eleven meets Southern California at Memorial coliseum. Twice beaten by the Trojans in Rose Bowl contests, but victorious over Coach Howard Jones' team in the east last fall, the invaders propose to balance their record books.

Even the most optimistic Southern California fans admitted tonight that the home guard has little chance against Jock Sutherland's vengeful band. Southern California, in the second year of its football slump, won only one major contest this season, while Pitt lost only to Notre Dame.

Trojans Were Trojans Then.

Southern California walloped Pittsburgh, 47 to 14, in 1930 and 35 to 0 in 1933. The Panthers scored a 20 to 6 triumph last fall.

Coach Jones made a final adjustment in his lineup today with the idea of throwing full strength on the field from the start in the hope of turning back the invaders. He promised to start Glenn Thompson, hard charging full back, in combination with elusive Davie Davis at quarter back. This should prove to be the best offensive combination Jones has put together all year.

Coach Sutherland has been reminding his players of those onesided Rose Bowl scores and it is thought Pitt will help itself to all touchdowns possible.

Will Passes Offset Plunges?

There is no secret that U. S. C. will pass with abandon in its quest for an upset triumph, while the Panthers are expected to depend upon rushing plays built around Frank Patrick, full back, and Hub Randour.

Probable starting lineups:

DERBY WINNER? BRADLEY LIKES OWN BIEN JOLI

Bow and Arrow Should Click at Hialeah.

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Col. E. R. Bradley has a hunch his famous green and white silks will be flying in front for the fifth time when the country's ranking 3 year olds thunder down the stretch at Churchill Downs next May in the Kentucky Derby.

"Of course it still is too early to tell," the Kentuckian, who celebrated his 76th birthday yesterday, said. "But I have a mighty good colt in Bien Joli. I am hopeful he will round into a top flight 3 year old. I've several others, which I probably will name for the Derby, but Bien Joli was my best 2 year old and appears the most likely prospect.

This Is in the Bag.

"You know, of course, I'm going to win the Florida Derby," the colonel said, suddenly switching the conversation to winter racing. Bradley won that race with Black Helen last year.

It was suggested that such good 2 year olds as Marshall Field's Tintagel, winner of the $100,000 Belmont Futurity; J. E. Widener's Brevity, and Warren Wright's Crossbow II. were being pointed for that same Hialeah Park fixture.

"Makes no difference," retorted the colonel, "I'm going to beat Mr. Widener's horse and all the others with Bow and Arrow."

Then he went into details:

"Bow and Arrow is a son of Whichone. He never got a chance to show much [the books record two victories in six starts] because he became ill while being shipped from Arlington Park to Saratoga. But he showed a lot of promise and in trials has plenty of speed."

You Pick the Best Colt.

Bradley, who declares he will not retire from thoroughbred racing until he is 100, refused to pick the outstanding juvenile of the year or even venture an opinion as to which one is likely to develop into the best 3 year old.

"They were a bum lot," declared the man who last won the Derby in 1933 with Broker's Tip. "There was no standout. I look for the Derby to be a wide open affair, with my horse just as likely to win as any other. But it's a long, hard grind to get a horse ready for the race.

"As for winter racing, I look for Florida to have the best year in its history."

Hunter Joins Artillery for Rambler Tilt

The undefeated 124th Field Artillery polo team will meet the Ramblers tonight in a Metropolitan Indoor Polo league game at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

The Cardinals and Olympia Fields Country club will make their first start in the junior division in a preliminary.

Charlie Roovaart, captain of Olympia Fields, has strengthened his team by the addition of Harvey Mosley at back. Eddie Hirsch will be at the No. 2 position, with Roovaart playing at No. 1.

The Olympia Fields-Cardinals game will start at 8:30 o'clock and the Ramblers-124th Field Artillery contest immediately after. The lineups:

OLYMPIA FIELDS.		CARDINALS.

Referee—Capt. G. L. Ferguson.

Two polo games and an exhibition between two girls' trios will be played tonight at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street.

The Riding club team will meet Culver Military academy at 8:30 o'clock. Making a change in the Culver lineup, Maj. B. F. Hoge will start Cadets Lane, Rubio, and Saylor, the latter taking the place of Cadet Holt.

The 122d Field Artillery will play the Black Horse Troop in the second game.

In the exhibition match, the Tiger Lilies, a team of girl poloists, will play the Northwestern university coeds. The lineups:

CULVER	vs.	RIDING CLUB.
Cadet Lane	No. 1	Bill Carney Jr.
Cadet Rubio	No. 2	Harry O. Owen
Cadet Saylor	Back	Jack Sturgeon

OFFER DE WITT PRESIDENCY OF COLUMBUS CLUB

Columbus, O., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—William De Witt, treasurer of the St. Louis Cardinals, today was offered the presidency of the Columbus club of the American association, a Cardinal farm. Branch Rickey, general manager of the Cardinals, said De Witt "may have the job if he wants it."

However, it is believed De Witt will not leave St. Louis because of financial tieups. He holds stock in the St. Louis hocky club and serves as business manager for Dizzy and Paul Dean and John [Pepper] Martin. The vacancy at Columbus was created when George Trautman was elected president of the association.

Lucky Turn Is Easy Victor at Fair Grounds

New Orleans, La., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Lucky Turn made her fifth start at the Fair Grounds track here today a winning one when she came on toward the end of the Maryland purse with a surprising burst of speed to win by five lengths at the handsome odds of $33 for $2. She had been out of the money in her previous starts here, bringing up last of twelve that ran over a good track Dec. 9.

The track was good again today, but this time the daughter of Bright Knight carried Mrs. T. Torriente's silks home first of the twelve which faced the starter. In second place at the end of the mile was Riff, leading Sir Michael by a length. The last named was coupled in the mutuel field

"PICTORIAL PARADE of American Airplanes"

How would you like to have a collection of photos and facts about all the important airplanes now being produced in America?

Tomorrow you can start making such a collection. Each Sunday, beginning tomorrow, the Picture Section of the Chicago Sunday Tribune will present a scrap-book size photo of one of the latest airplanes of American manufacture. Detailed facts about each plane will be presented underneath the photograph.

FIRST NATIONAL PUTS STOCK ON $4 ANNUAL BASIS

Retires $10,000,000 of RFC Stock.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

Directors of the First National bank yesterday voted to retire $10,000,000 of its $25,000,000 preferred stock on or before Dec. 31 and to resume dividends on the common stock Jan. 2 with the payment of $1 a share to place the stock on a $4 annual basis.

To comply with recent amendments of the banking laws which limit dividend action to twice a year the directors declared payments of $3 a share, to be made in three instalments. The initial disbursement, first to be made since 1932, will be made to stockholders of record Dec. 31. The second $1 a share will be paid April 1 to shareholders of record March 31, and the third $1 payment will be made July 1 to stock of record June 30.

Stock transfer records of the bank will be closed for four days before and on the day of each dividend payment. The board also voted to close transfer records from Jan. 8 to Jan. 14 for the annual meeting on the latter date.

Vote Dividends to RFC.

In connection with its voting retirement of $10,000,000 of preferred stock the board set aside funds to pay a dividend on this block Dec. 31, and also declared the dividend payable Feb. 1 on the $15,000,000 preferred which will remain outstanding with the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The directors also voted to transfer $5,000,000 to surplus Dec. 31 from a special reserve account. This will leave the bank with considerably more in capital and surplus account than the $50,000,000 required under its agreement with the RFC.

After giving effect to resumption of common stock dividends, charges for 1936 will be only 50 per cent more than in 1934 and about 70 per cent more than this year as a result of reducing the outstanding preferred and lower dividend rates now prevailing on the preferred.

RFC Stock Rate Cut.

When the $25,000,000 preferred issue was sold to the RFC Jan. 12, 1934, it carried a 5 per cent dividend rate. This was soon reduced to 4 per cent, and $1,026,826 was set aside for the dividends in 1934. On Feb. 1 last the rate was further cut to 3½ per cent, reducing annual charges to $875,000. Retirement of the $10,000,000 block Dec. 31 will leave dividend requirements at only $525,000 on the preferred next year. Requirements on the $25,000,000 common stock at the $4 a share basis adopted yesterday will be $1,000,000 annually.

In addition to the reduction of dividend requirements the partial retirement of the preferred stock will cut the potential power of the RFC in affairs of the bank. Up to the present time it has been able to exert absolute power, if it chose, through its 50 per cent voting strength and the impossibility of mustering a full vote of the several thousand common shareholders. With its voice cut to 37½ per cent of voting strength, the RFC still could be a powerful factor to be reckoned with, but it no longer holds absolute control.

Jones Approves Action.

The current action of the board was applauded in advance by Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman, who said the bank is in a position where it is well able to resume common dividends.

Last year's net income was reported at $5,388,062, compared with $4,840,909 in 1933 and $8,245,127 in 1932. More than $14,000,000 in losses was written off in those three years.

Prior to the suspension of common stock dividends at the end of 1932 the bank had paid 12 per cent on its $100 par shares in 1932, 18 per cent the preceding two years, 20 per cent cash and 33 1-3 per cent in stock in 1929, and 22 per cent from 1915 to 1928, inclusive.

CHICAGO BANK STOCKS EASE ON DIVIDEND NEWS

First National and Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company stocks eased slightly yesterday as the former announced its return to a $4 annual dividend basis after a lapse of three years.

Northern Trust shares were strong again, quoted at 560 bid, 575 asked, compared with 557 bid and 567 asked at the close Thursday. Central Republic company was up ¾ at 12¾ bid, 13¾ asked. Continental was down 1 at 116 bid, 119 asked. First National slipped from 215 bid, 219 asked on Thursday to 209 bid, 214 asked yesterday.

Chicago Title and Trust company stock continued its spurt which began Wednesday with declaration of a $1 dividend, the same as three months previously. Yesterday the bid closed up 11 at 155 and 160 was asked, a jump of 13 points. Thursday's rise was 9 points and Wednesday's, 6.

Minneapolis-St. Louis Ry. Sale Delayed; Bids Lacking

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 13.—(AP)—When no bids were offered today, Howard S. Abbott, special master in chancery, set Feb. 14 as the next date when the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad will be offered for sale. A proposal by eight large railroads to purchase and dismember the M. & St. L., which now is in receivership, is under consideration.

Pay Wieboldt Stock 25 Cents, Equal Extra

The leading dividend action announced by Chicago companies yesterday was that of Wieboldt Stores, Inc., which placed the common stock on an annual basis of $1 by voting a quarterly payment of 25 cents, declared a special of 25 cents on the same stock, and voted an initial payment of 75 cents on the new 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock, subject to consummation of the company's reorganization plan before Dec. 26.

Net sales of the company for the third quarter, ended Oct. 26, amounted to $4,674,061, compared with $4,688,025 in the corresponding quarter of last year, a decrease of 0.3 per cent. Total sales for the first nine months of the company's fiscal year at $13,791,690 were 1.9 per cent above a year ago.

Profits Exceed Last Year.

Although no definite figures on net profits for the above mentioned periods were given, E. F. Wieboldt, president, said indicated profits for the first nine months of this year were above a year ago.

Other important dividend announcements yesterday included the action of the Chicago River & Indiana railroad, wholly owned subsidiary of the New York Central, in declaring a distribution of $3,000,000 out of accumulated funds of the last four years. The last previous distribution was $2,500,000 in 1929.

The American I. G. Chemical corporation declared a dividend of $1 on the common "A" and 10 cents on the common "B" stock, payable Dec. 26. In April the company paid an annual dividend of $2 on the common "A" and 75 cents on the common "B," 55 cents being a special payment.

Lane Dividend Increased.

An increase was voted by the Lane company by declaring $2 on the no par common stock, compared with a payment of $1 on Oct. 1. Accumulation dividends included $1.75 on the $7 preferred and $1.50 on the $6 preferred of the Carolina Power & Light company, and $1.75 on the 7 per cent preferred stock of the National Grocers company.

Extras were voted by the Dominion Securities corporation, amounting to 50 cents on the common stock, and by the United Loan Industrial bank with an extra of $1.

The Cleveland Graphite Bronze company declared a special dividend of 25 cents.

ASK COURT QUASH UTILITIES' SUITS OUTSIDE CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The government tonight was preparing to ask the courts to quash all utility injunction suits filed outside the District of Columbia.

More than fifty suits have been filed throughout the country asking that the securities and exchange commission be restrained from enforcing the utility holding company law on the ground that it is unconstitutional. The commission and Attorney General Cummings have appealed to the utility companies to hold up their suits pending determination of a government-selected test suit now pending in New York.

Cummings yesterday asked the District of Columbia Supreme court to halt action on seven cases filed here. Justice Bailey suggested that both the government and the utilities try to consolidate the cases, but Cummings replied that he thought such negotiations "would be entirely futile."

The utilities have a week to file a brief answering the government's request that action be stayed until the New York suit involving the Electric Bond and Share company has been decided. In attempting to have all outside suits quashed, government lawyers would contend that the attorney general and members of the securities commission cannot be served with legal papers outside the District of Columbia.

Simpson, Chicago Utility Head, and Roosevelt Confer

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt talked today with James Simpson, chairman of the board of the Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. Simpson declined to say whether the utility holding company act was discussed or to comment in any way on his talk with the President.

ASSESSOR ANNOUNCES NEW TAX METHOD ON OUT-OF-STATE STOCKS

County Assessor John S. Clark said yesterday that a new method is being used this year to determine whether taxpayers who own large blocks of stock in corporations outside the state are listing the proper amount of their holdings in the 1935 personal property schedules which are now being mailed. The method consists of comparing the sworn schedules with the records of the federal security and exchange commission in Washington.

The new federal law requires that holders of 10 per cent or more of the stock in a corporation must list the full value of such holdings with the commission. Copies of the federal records have been sent to Clark and he said he expects to add millions of dollars' worth of stocks, that have previously escaped taxation, to the assessment rolls this year.

On March 1, 1936, the assessor will also have access to federal income tax schedules and can compare them with the 1935 personal property schedules turned in. In this way he expects to add another large amount of intangibles—stocks and bonds—to the rolls.

U. S. Finances Illinois Rural Electric Line

The first federal financed rural electrification project in Illinois was approved yesterday by the Illinois commerce commission when it granted authority to the Suburban Electric Utilities corporation of Dunlap to construct 98 miles of rural line in Peoria and Knox counties.

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the commission, in making the announcement, said approximately 300 farms in the two counties will be served by the new lines at one of the lowest rates yet established for rural service in the state.

The new lines will be built with funds loaned by the Rural Electrification administration. In accordance with the policy of the government agency, farmers will not be required to put up any money for line construction.

Loan to Cover Cost of Line.

The loan, for $81,500, is expected to meet the entire cost of the line and is payable in twenty annual instalments. It will carry 3 per cent interest.

It is expected work will be started immediately on the project, which will provide employment for more than 30 men to be taken from relief rolls. Approximately $50,000 will be expended for materials and $30,000 for direct labor. It is estimated farmers will spend at least $50,000 for wiring and home appliances, including at least 275 refrigerators, ranges, or other large equipment. The minimum bill for each household will be $3.75 for the first 40 kilowatt hours, the next 40 kilowatt hours to cost 5½ cents each and the balance of consumption at 2½ cents per kilowatt hour.

Plans Additional Rural Lines.

"The commission with the coöperation of Gov. Horner," Chairman Lindheimer said, "is now developing a comprehensive plan for furthering the extension of rural lines in areas where the service can be rendered economically.

"Only 13 per cent of the farms in Illinois now have electric service, compared with over 22 per cent in Wisconsin, 25 per cent in Michigan, and over 50 per cent in eight other states."

Under arrangements set up by the Electric Home and Farm authority, another New Deal agency, farmers may buy their appliances and pay for them over a period of three to four years.

COAL FIRMS WIN INJUNCTION SUIT ON GUFFEY LAW

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Judge C. B. Kennamer in United States District court granted temporary injunctions today to five coal companies restraining Harwell G. Davis, internal revenue collector, from collecting 13½ per cent of the 15 per cent drawback on coal operators not signing the code under the Guffey-Snider act.

Judge Kennamer directed the companies to pay the remaining 1½ per cent to the court pending final disposition of the case, which was set for hearing on a permanent injunction Jan. 21. The companies' petition attacked the constitutionality of the act.

Judge Kennamer overruled a motion of Jim C. Smith, United States district attorney, that the companies post bond for the amount they were relieved of paying under the injunction.

Bond House to Give Bonus of 15 Per Cent to Employes

Employés of Morris Mather & Co., municipal bond dealers, will receive a Christmas bonus of 15 per cent of their year's salaries, following action yesterday by officers of the firm in declaring the payment.

NATIONAL LEAD BONUS.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The National Lead company announced today that it will pay between $25,000 and $30,000 in Christmas bonuses to about 800 employés in St. Louis and Granite City, Ill. Employés of two years' service and over will receive two weeks' extra pay. Employés of from six months to two years' service will get a week's additional wages.

RAIL FREIGHT TRAFIC HIGHEST FOR SEASON IN LAST FIVE YEARS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—A larger than seasonal rise in freight trafic last week lifted the total to the highest level for the period since 1930, the second consecutive week in which this has occurred.

The total of 637,133 cars, announced by the Association of American Railroads here today, represented an increase of 11.5 per cent over the preceding week, more than wiping out the loss for the Thanksgiving week, and was 15.4 per cent higher than a year ago.

Comparative figures follow:

Miscellaneous	250,318	22,040	52,566

Nov. 30	570,427	488,185	499,596
Dec. 7	637,133	551,485	541,992

Cumulative trafic since the beginning of the year to Dec. 7 amounted to 29,836,922 cars, compared with 29,291,876 in the corresponding period of last year and 27,674,404 in the 1933 period.

GOLD CURRENCY RATES WEAKEN; STERLING RISES

New York, Dec. 13.—[Special.]—The gold bloc currencies weakened slightly today following their sharp rallies earlier in the week, while the pound sterling rose ⅛ cent, to $4.92⅞, and other foreign exchanges were quiet.

The engagement of $1,490,000 gold in England for shipment here was reported, and imports of $1,891,100 from France and $1,158,200 from Canada were received. Today's engagement of gold abroad brought the total of engagements since Sept. 9 to $818,400,000, of which $790,000,000 has been received to date.

The reaction in the franc today amounted to ⅝ of a point and left that exchange at 6.61⅛ cents. The guilder fell 6 points, to 67.72 cents; the Swiss franc, 3 points, to 32.45 cents, and the belga, 1 point, to 16.87 cents. At the closing rate for francs the dollar was valued at $1.0033, compared with $1.0024 yesterday.

The London gold price was fixed at 141 shillings 1 penny, down 1 penny, at which £266,000 in metal changed hands.

NEWSPAPER 'ADS' IN NOVEMBER RUN 10 PCT. ABOVE 1934

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Newspaper advertising lineage in November was larger than in October this year, Editor and Publisher, trade paper, reported today. The trend for the month was contrary to that in every other year since 1928.

The paper's lineage barometer rose from 97.7 for October to 105.0 for November, "the first time since recovery began that the barometer has gone above 100," the report said. Lineage was 10 per cent ahead of that for November, 1934, and for the first 11 months of the year the margin over 1934 was 5.5 per cent. Automotive advertising more than doubled that of November, 1934.

Broadcast advertising for the calendar year will amount to $87,000,000 to $88,000,000, about one-sixth of the estimated newspaper total, Editor and Publisher said. The figure includes time sales of individual stations as well as networks, but not talent costs.

Baldwin Locomotive Orders Best of Year in November

New York, Dec. 13.—Business booked by Baldwin Locomotive works in November reached a new high for the last year due to receipt of orders from the government for three hydro-electric turbines. Total orders for the month, including subsidiaries, were $2,311,739, against $1,305,655 in October and $2,783,109 a year ago. Bookings for the first eleven months of the year were $16,444,965, compared with $20,625,702 in the same period last year.

Silver Price Cut Again; U. S. Buys

New York, Dec. 13.—[Special.]—The world silver markets continued today to adjust themselves to the new policy of the United States treasury which, in practice, appears to involve the purchase at declining prices of a small part of the silver offered for sale in London together with small purchases in other markets.

In London the treasury again bought 18 per cent of the offerings. The price was fixed at 26 7-16d, off 7-16d from the previous day and down 2¾d from the pegged rate of 29 3-16d which had been maintained by the treasury prior to last Monday. Today's rate, with sterling at about $4.92¾ at the time of the fixing, was equal to 53⅝ cents an ounce.

Down Cent in New York.

In New York the quotation for silver was dropped 1 cent for the fourth successive day, bringing it to 60¾ cents an ounce. London's price was the lowest since March 1, and New York's the lowest since March 25. The Montreal futures market recovered further from its collapse of earlier in the week to close at gains of 25 to 200 points.

Despite the statement by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau on Thursday that the United States was still buying silver, the market was puzzled by what appeared to it an arbitrary and inconsistent course of action. That the treasury was engaged in "letting down" the price of silver, after having so vigorously driven it up earlier in the year, was apparent, but bankers and bullion brokers were in the dark as to how far the price was to be lowered and how extensive purchases at the declining levels might be.

Views of Dealers.

Some silver dealers leaned to the belief that the treasury is buying large quantities of silver through private negotiations in various parts of the world, and simultaneously withholding big bids from the London market to bring the price down sufficiently to stimulate a release of large stocks.

In some quarters it was believed the change was governed by recent efforts in China to abandon the silver standard and hitch Chinese currency to the British pound sterling. Financial circles wondered whether the treasury might be negotiating to take substantial amounts of Chinese metal at lower prices than those quoted on the open market in London, or whether the treasury may be seeking to discourage China from abandoning the silver standard.

Silver imports by the United States fell to $10,250,935 in the week ended Dec. 6 from $22,815,550 in the preceding week.

ILLINOIS LIFE RECEIVER GIVEN $35,000 MORE

A final payment of $35,000 to Abel Davis, as receiver for Illinois Life Insurance company, was authorized yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. This brought the total received by Davis, who is also chairman of the board of directors of Chicago Title and Trust company, to $85,000 since his appointment on Nov. 29, 1932, as received of Illinois Life.

The insurance company at one time had insurance in force of $150,000,000. Total allowances to date for receiver, actuaries, accountants, and an advisory board aggregate $288,895.

STOCKS SLUMP; 'FRIDAY, 13TH,' PROVES HOODOO

Silver and Politics Inspire Doubts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 13.—Stocks were under a Friday-the-13th hoodoo today and the close of the five hour trading session found prices anywhere from 1 to 4 points below their previous ratings. At one time in the afternoon, selling hit a brisk enough pace to distance the high speed ticker by some three minutes. Transactions totaled 1,902,134 shares against 2,142,960 on Thursday.

Much of the liquidation was ascribed to the evening-up activity prompted by lingering uncertainties in the silver and world political situations. Brokers said, however, that many traders have become convinced that the market is in need of further technical correction in view of the great improvement it made during the fall, which some felt to be not fully justified by the recovery in the fields of business and industry.

Real Bearishness Lacking.

No evidence of real bearishness was evident anywhere and the manner in which the main body of stocks absorbed such "nervous" selling as came their way was regarded as impressive. Attacks on a few pivotal issues were laid to attempts by professional speculators to bring about a break in prices. The news of the day was bullish.

Despite cheerful weekly car loading figures the rails had to take their fair share of the selling. Losses in the group ran to around 2 points with Atchison, Delaware and Hudson, and New York Central coming in for a plucking. Norfolk and Western contrasted its mates by advancing fractionally.

Oils showed a little spunk in the forenoon dealings, a few of them rising to new highs, but turned weak in the afternoon. Tobacco shares were again under fire and went lower for the third day in succession. The retreat was from 1 to 2 points, including Philip Morris.

Silver Stocks Resist Selling.

Silver issues bore up well in spite of the befuddlement over the outlook for the big corporations in that field. U. S. Smelting closed only a point lower, American Smelting lost only a fraction, and Cerro de Pasco gained a major fraction. The coppers also held firm.

Mail order and farm issues held higher most of the time on the strength in wheat. J. I. Case, however, gave way at the last and both Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward fell back to around their starting levels. Motor, rubber, and amusement issues drifted down with the tide.

American Can was an outstanding weak spot among the industrials, selling down 5 points and closing 4 below its final price of yesterday.

Today's decline carried THE TRIBUNE'S index of fifty stocks to a new low level for the month. It also canceled the last remaining fragment of November's gain. The action of the market thus far has been poorer than for any month since March. For eight consecutive months the market advanced in first half of each month and closed each month with a net gain.

U. S. AND CANADA BOOST OUTPUT OF NEWSPRINT

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Production of newsprint in the United States and Canada in November increased 25,981 tons over the like period last year.

Production in Canada at 262,852 tons was just slightly under the October production of 266,515 tons and was the second best month's output for the year. It also exceeded output for any month in 1934 by Canadian mills, according to figures reported by the News Print Service bureau.

United States mills turned out 78,929 tons in November against 74,933 in November last year, a gain of 3,996 tons. Mills in both countries produced 341,783 tons during the month compared with 315,802 tons a year ago, an increase of 25,981 tons.

Toy Industry Consumes Large Tonnage of Steel

The toy industry now consumes a large tonnage of steel. The current season's requirements for miniature automobiles, velocipedes, and scooters alone is estimated at approximately 20,000 tons, says the American Iron and Steel institute. An additional but incalculable tonnage, it says, was used to make toy trains, stoves, construction sets, and other like products.

Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Wage Scale Is Increased

Toledo, O., Dec. 13.—(AP)—New contracts eliminating regional differences of pay and amounting to about 5 cents per hour increase for more than 6,000 workmen of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company were signed today. The contracts are effective Dec. 16 for one year. The wage increase will be about $1,000,000 during the year.

Third of All HOLC Loans Delinquent

BY HOWARD WOOD.

By pointing to the "improvement" during the last few months the Home Owners' Loan corporation is disclosing incidentally its exceptionally poor record in collection of payments on the loan that it has made.

Despite the fact that it has been in operation only a little more than two years and had the advantage of beginning its loaning operations when real estate was at rock bottom, the HOLC's latest reports show that one-third of all payments due is not paid on time and that one-fifth is ninety days or more overdue.

This information is not played up in the official reports. It is placed well toward the close. Chief prominence is given to information showing how few foreclosures have been made and how much improvement has been shown in collections since last winter.

"Of the more than 945,000 loans to distressed homeowners made by the Home Owners' Loan corporation it had by Nov. 15, 1935, authorized foreclosure proceedings on 2,963," states the December issue of the Federal Home Loan Bank Review. "This is equivalent to one foreclosure proceeding to every 320 loans made."

These figures, however, are no indication of the quality of the loans made or the record of repayments. They merely measure the leniency of the lending agency. The same article goes on to explain that the HOLC has resorted to foreclosure against only three classes of delinquent borrowers, the willful defaulters, those who have abandoned the mortgaged property, and those who seek to profit from the use of the property as long as possible without maintaining it or attempting to make payments on their mortgages. It adds the percentage of foreclosures "is bound to grow larger."

The poor collection record is disclosed in the following paragraph:

"Preliminary analysis shows an improvement of 16 per cent between March and October in the monthly proportion of all Home Owners' Loan corporation payments which were made promptly by borrowers. As of October 31, over 66.6 per cent of all payments due the corporation had either been paid or were not more than 20 days past due."

Saying that two-thirds of the payments are made on time is another way of saying that one-third isn't. Previous reports had disclosed that one-fifth of all loans were ninety days or more overdue.

From the date of opening in 1933 until Nov. 15 the HOLC had made 945,739 loans, aggregating 2 billion 859 million dollars. The public's interest in the collection record of this agency lies in the fact that its bonds are guaranteed both as to principal and interest by the federal government, and to the extent that the loans made by the HOLC fail to pay out, the taxpayers will have to dig up the difference.

NOEL, LANSING BANKS TO REPAY 5% OF DEPOSITS

Applications of State Auditor Edward J. Barrett to authorize repayments of 5 per cent to depositors of the Noel State and Lansing State banks were approved yesterday by Circuit Judge Stanley Klarkowski.

Checks, however, are not expected to be in the mail for a week or ten days, it was said at the office of Receiver William L. O'Connell. This is particularly true at the Noel State bank, where the payment amounts to $176,404, and several thousand accounts must be checked. This bank previously paid 10 per cent and substantially more is expected eventually for depositors.

The Lansing State return will amount to $16,576. It already has repaid 25 per cent. A total return of 50 per cent is indicated.

ALL U. S. WHEAT MARKETS CLIMB 5 CENT LIMIT

Result of Argentine Price Fixing.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Wheat rose 5 cents a bushel, the maximum allowed under the trading rules, in all American markets yesterday. A three cent advance occurred in Winnipeg and prices in Liverpool climbed 5½ cents. Trading on the Chicago Board of Trade and other markets in the United States was the heaviest since the inflation boom of the summer of 1934.

Announcement by the government of Argentina of the establishment of a minimum price of 90 cents a bushel on 1935 wheat crop released the tremendous buying which swept the markets forward in all parts of the world. The action was taken by the Argentine government late Thursday after the close of the market in Buenos Aires and other trading centers. The fixing of such a high minimum price was entirely unexpected and well above the futures prices prevailing in Buenos Aires at the close of the business Thursday.

Exchange Rates Confusing.

The equivalents in foreign monies of Argentine prices are confusing because there are two rates for the peso, the official and the "free" rates. On the basis of the official rate the peso yesterday was worth 32.90 cents, while at the open market rate it was worth 27.45 cents. The Argentine exporter is paid on the basis of the official rate. If the world market price is below the official price the government exchange board would shoulder a loss. Over the long period, however, the government has shown a profit on its exchange operations and could absorb the difference without difficulty.

With its small exportable supply of wheat this year there appears to be little likelihood that the government will lose in guaranteeing 90 cents a bushel to farmers. The immediate effect of the move, it is believed, will be to eliminate the cut prices by which Argentina has undersold other countries in the world market.

38 Cents Above 1934.

The new minimum is 38 cents a bushel over that fixed by Argentina on its 1934 crop and is 2½ cents a bushel over the minimum recently established by the Canadian wheat board.

The significance of the step rests in the voluntary sacrifice by Argentina of the competitive price advantage it has enjoyed in the export market for the last several years. By setting price above that of Canada the dominion again is restored to the position of preëminent world wheat exporter. As a result of the new alignment and the virtual elimination of Argentina as an important exporter, it is believed that the Canadian government will have little difficulty in disposing of the 200 million bushels of wheat which it has accumulated in its efforts to maintain prices.

The three cent advance in Winnipeg yesterday was the limit allowed under the trading rules. Without such an arbitrary price ceiling brokers asserted the market might have advanced as much as 10 cents a bushel.

Crop Exceedingly Small.

The wheat crop now being harvest in Argentina is smallest in the last decade. It has been known for several weeks that the country would have only about 50 million bushels of wheat for export this season as compared with the 150 million actually sold during the last season. This gives Canada an opportunity to sell the wheat that has been accumulating

CHICAGO TRADES IN MEEHAN STOCK 'DEAL' DISCLOSED

SEC Endeavors to Prove Price Manipulation.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—The Securities and Exchange commission, in a further effort to build up evidence that will force Michael J. Meehan from trading on the exchange, today introduced a list of transactions in Bellanca Aircraft corporation stock and revealed the interest of Chicagoans in the shares. This was done in an effort to prove connivance between Meehan and his friends to boost the price of the stock.

Charles T. Adams, Chicago attorney, testified that he had heard from Fred H. Hebel, manager of the Good Humor company of Chicago which is controled by Meehan, that the latter had become interested in Bellanca shares; that purchase of some shares might prove profitable. He said that he bought 300 shares last May at $4.50 to $5 a share, but soon afterward sold the shares because he was "not very much impressed" with the company.

Recommended by Partner.

Jerome F. Flynn, treasurer of the Good Humor company, disclosed that on May 8, he had bought 500 shares on recommendation of James F. McConniche, Meehan's partner, who told him that Meehan was bullish and was buying the stock. Flynn admitted that 200 shares bought at the opening raised Bellanca from 4¼ to a new high level of $5.

Flynn explained that he paid $5, because he thought well of the Meehan management, including that of the Good Humor company.

Stuart M. Sperry, financier, told the commission he had recommended the stock to a friend and customer's man because he believed it a good buy. He is a partner of Raymond De Voe, who previously had denied being an "agent" of Meehan in the alleged stock manipulation.

Negotiated With Meehan.

"I knew that my partner had been negotiating with Meehan regarding a deal in Bellanca stock," Sperry said in response to questioning by government counsel. His name was brought into the hearings again when Marcus Munsell, New York manufacturer, said he bought 200 shares of the stock on May 17 on Sperry's advice.

Howard Eric, a member of Eric & Drevers, one of the oldest houses in Wall street, admitted that, upon solicitation by Meehan, he agreed "to carry" 2,000 shares for a period of two weeks if he were guaranteed against loss in the transaction. This, Eric later said, was not unusual among underwriters and distributors. He disclosed that Meehan repaid $470 loss incurred by "carrying" the Bellanca stock. Eric added that on Sept. 8 he bought an additional 100 shares without the advice of Meehan or others.

FHA TO COMBINE CHICAGO OFFICES AND SPEED WORK

Takes Additional Space at 134 N. La Salle.

BY AL CHASE.

JOHN R. O'CONNOR.
[Moffett Photo.]

Consolidation of the personnel of the regional offices of the Federal Housing administration with the North Illinois district offices of the FHA in Chicago will take place next week, John R. O'Connor, district director, announced yesterday. The merger is part of a program of economy and speeding up work in process so that applicants for insured mortgages may receive better and faster service, he said.

Workmen are now busy removing partitions and decorating part of the eighteenth floor at 134 North La Salle street. Early next week the regional offices, now on the second floor, will be moved to the eighteenth where they will adjoin the Northern Illinois district offices, the two forces occupying the entire floor.

Supervise Five States.

The regional offices, over which C. I McReynolds has been acting regional director since the resignation of Percy Wilson, supervise the states of Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, and Wisconsin, which comprise FHA region No. 7.

In commenting on the merging of the two offices yesterday, O'Connor said: "We have effected arrangement of personnel and an alignment of procedure so that a maximum time limit of only 12 days is now required for a complete appraisal of the property and the risk examination on applications for title 2 loans. As we acquire greater smoothness of organization we will undoubtedly be able to shorten this maximum."

Two Weeks' Business $588,050.

For the two weeks ended Dec. 10 the volume of business handled under the mutual mortgage insurance provisions of the national housing act for the northern Illinois district amounted to $588,050. This figure included mortgages accepted for appraisal, mortgages accepted for insurance and premium paying recorded mortgages.

Mortgages accepted for appraisal from approved mortgages numbered 45, totaling $213,650, of which 37 for $139,150 covered refinancing on existing property, and eight for $74,500 were for new home construction.

ALL U. S. WHEAT MARKETS CLIMB 5 CENT LIMIT

over the last few years and remove the pressure of this surplus from the world market.

Wheat opened on the Chicago Board of Trade at prices 4 to 5 cents a bushel over Thursday's last quotations. A tremendous volume of business was done in the first few minutes of trading. Speculators who had short commitments in the markets were forced to buy in at heavy sacrifices. The advance sent both December and May futures above the dollar market. When prices reached the 5 cent limit trading came to a standstill because nobody was willing to sell at the top prices.

Comparative Figures.

The December wheat future closed at $1.01⅝ a bushel, compared with Thursday's last price of 96⅝ cents. Other futures advanced correspondingly. The speculative fever in the wheat pit spread to other grains. Closing prices on corn, oats, and rye were 1 to 3½ cents a bushel above the preceding day. Closing quotations on the May contracts, with comparative prices, follow:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.00⅝	$ .95¼	$ .95¼
Corn	.61⅛	.59⅝	.59⅞
Oats	.28⅛	.26⅝	.26⅝
Rye	.54	.50⅝	.50⅛

The advance of 3 cents a bushel at Winnipeg at the opening of the market threatened to squeeze exporters who had put out offers on the preceding day. The wheat board, however, allowed the exporters to buy all wheat they had contracted to ship at a quarter cent above Thursday's price, or 2¾ cents under the prevailing market.

Export sales of Canadian wheat were estimated at 10 to 20 million bushels, one of the heaviest day's business on record. Actual figures were not available. It was recalled that on only one previous occasion did sales to Europe in one day reach the 20 million bushel figure. That was on the day of the declaration of the Spanish-American war.

Prices Throughout World.

The complete realignment of world prices that took place as a result of the Argentine government action is illustrated in the following table showing quotations in the principal markets in terms of American money:

	Thursday.	Friday.
Chicago, December	$ .96⅝	$1.01⅝
Winnipeg, December	.82¾	.85½
Liverpool, December	.83⅛	.83⅞
*Do Russian	.96⅛	1.00½
*Do Argentine	.93	.99¼
Rotterdam, January	.80¼	.83⅞
Buenos Aires, January	.74⅝	.91
Do February	.71⅝	.90⅝

*Cash price.

The absence of any previous intimation of the Argentine government action led to some speculation that the step may forecast a devaluation of the peso. Devaluation of the peso would mean a reduction in the price in terms of American funds. It was pointed out that if the government is contemplating such debasement of its currency it would be warranted in fixing a high price for wheat to protect the farmers. The official announcement, however, said that the action was taken because of the reduction in wheat acreage to the lowest in ten years and the heavy damage resulting from the long drouth and the locust plague.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was firmer today on covering in nearby positions and scattered commission house buying. Final prices were 1 to 7 points net higher. Sales were 51 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; Dec. closed 10.68c per lb; Jan., 10.61c; March, 10.65c; May, 10.68c; July, 10.68c.

MINNEAPOLIS FLOUR.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 13.—(AP)—FLOUR—Prices were 25 cents higher today. Carload lots of family patents were quoted at $8.40@8.60 a barrel in 98 pound cotton sacks. Shipments were 24,223 brls. Pure bran was quoted at $16.50@17.00 and standard middlings at $16.50@17.00 per ton.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Cotton gray goods were in light demand today, but prices held strong. Finished cottons were not very active. Rayon cloths were steady on fair sales. Raw silk was unchanged. Both weavers and knitters were buying more freely. Wool goods were quiet. Burlap was unchanged and trading was light.

MIDDLE WEST ROADS ADOPT FREE PICKUP AND DELIVERY SERVICE

Agreement was reached yesterday by major railroads operating west of Chicago to offer shippers complete pickup and delivery motor truck service at no increase over existing freight rates, the Chicago Association of Commerce announced.

The territory involved embraces Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, Missouri, and Wyoming. Immediate steps will be taken to effect the change through filing of tarifs with the interstate commerce commission. The change is expected to be effective Jan. 20.

It is planned that present less than carlot class and commodity rates will include the new service. On trafic moving to or from states other than those included in the agreement an added charge of 5 cents a hundred pounds will be made. Freight delivered to the carrier by the shipper within the territory will be given an allowance of 5 cents a hundred.

CATTLE PRICE DECLINE HALTED BY LIGHT RUN

The sharp decline of the cattle market was halted yesterday when only 2,000 head arrived, but buying orders were further restricted due to price cutting in the wholesale beef trade which has undergone severe reductions in the last few days. Only a fair clearance was effected.

Salesmen managed to dispose of the bulk of yesterday's cattle receipts at the week's $1 to $1.25 decline and some late sales showed $1.50 loss compared with the highest spot about ten days ago. Bids were lower in places, however, and most salesmen who were unable to get a steady price took their cattle off the market.

Nothing in yesterday's run was good enough to bring more than $9.90. The bulk of steers sold at $6.75 to $9.

The $2 to $4.50 decline in fresh pork loins since Dec. 1 and the $1 to $1.25 break in cash and leaf lard in this time has weakened the hog market, particularly heavy weights. Heavy "lard hogs" slumped 15 to mostly 25 cents yesterday and showed losses of 50 to 65 cents compared with the best levels of last week. The outlet was narrow at the decline. A scattering of selected 200 to 225 pound averages reached the $12 top.

Better demand held fat lambs fully steady to strong, the bulk of the best grade of both natives and fed westerns selling at $10.75 to $11.

STORES REPLACE HOLIDAY GOODS AS SALES MOUNT

Trade 10 to 30 Per Cent Above Year Ago.

New York, Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Retailers rushed into the wholesale markets in the last week to build up depleted inventories, Dun & Bradstreet declared today in its weekly review. As shortages developed many buyers made special trips to the leading markets to obtain items needed urgently for pre-holiday selling events, it was said.

To the rising orders for current needs was added the broader covering of futures in staple lines, as prices continued to stiffen, which placed wholesale volume for the week 10 to 18 per cent ahead of that for the comparable 1934 period.

Retail Buying Expands.

Demand spread to nearly all departments in the retail division, the agency reported, as the greatest willingness to spend of any holiday season in the last five years developed. Based on the results of the last two weeks, estimates for December retail volume range from 15 to 30 per cent in excess of 1934.

"Reflecting the rising rate of industrial activity," the study continued, "the money spent for merchandise in the middle west was 20 to 35 per cent more than a year ago. Below zero weather in many parts of the northwest boosted retail sales 18 to 30 per cent over last year's with staple goods leading."

No Slackening in Industry.

"Instead of the usual tapering-off at the year-end indusrial operaions generally not only held to recent gains but schedules were advanced in some divisions during the week. Automobile production rose sufficiently to pass the 90,000 mark, which compared with 19,347 units assembled a year ago.

"Higher schedules than a week earlier were reported by manufacturers of drugs, stoves, paints, and hardware, and there was no variation of consequence from the capacity output of producers of radios, toys, furniture, foodstuffs, typewriters and office appliances."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 13.—Despite a show of resistance by the utilities and industrials, bonds moved downward in the listed market today under persistent selling pressure. Final quotations represented declines of fractions to as much as a point. Low priced railroad liens and foreign obligations yielded rather easily.

Volume of trading was somewhat smaller than on Thursday, with $13,275,000, par value, changing hands. All corporate sections were active, but United States government obligations barely moved. The turnover of less than $400,000 in this group was the lightest in a week. Final prices were 4-32 lower to 4-32 higher.

Italian Bonds Slump.

Renewed selling struck Italian bonds, which fell to levels prevailing before peace proposals gave the group a boost several days ago. Italian government 7s lost 3½ points to 66 and recessions of 1 to 2½ points were chalked up against all others in the division.

Soft spots in the carrier list included Baltimore and Ohio 4½s and 6s, New York Central 5s, Southern Pacific 4½s, Nickel Plate 5½s and New Haven 6s. St. Louis-Southwestern issues retreated further.

Several Issues Advance.

Oils and bonds of companies undergoing reorganization featured the industrials. American Type Founders 6s soared 7 points to 98, a new high for the year. Pan-American Petroleum 6s gained 2½ and Richfield Oil 6s advanced a point. American Writing Paper 6s gained 2 points.

Utility Power and Light 5s, Warner Bros. 6s, Republic Steel 4½s, and Anaconda 4½s lost small amounts. Interborough Rapid Transit 6s yielded 3¼ points.

Warren Foundry and Pipe.

Investors' Guide: Please furnish me information on Warren Foundry and Pipe.—H. N.

Answer: Warren Foundry and Pipe corporation manufactures cast iron pipe. Capacity is 150,000 tons a year. The company's plants are well located to supply New England and middle Atlantic states. Proximity to market is an important factor because freight rates are high.

Output is sold mostly to gas and water companies.

Cast iron pipe is ordinarily classified as a quality product. It is more expensive than steel pipe, but its makers claim that it has a longer life.

With the exception of 1932 the company has operated profitably in each of the last eight years. Earnings during the last few years have been stimulated by Works Progress administration projects, but the delay by the federal body in executing many of the approved projects has been a disappointing factor.

During the first half of 1935 net sales were $736,000 and net income was $73,000. This compared with sales of $992,000 and net income of $165,000, or 92 cents a share, for the first half of 1934.

	Net sales.	Net income.	Income per sh.
1934	$2,023,000	$351,000	$2.01
1933	1,339,000	131,000	.73
1932	1,175,000	*50,000	*.28
1931	2,582,000	294,000	1.63

*Net loss.

Results for the third quarter of 1935 were not entirely satisfactory, but there is some indication that the final quarter will work out better.

On June 30, 1935, current assets, including $467,000 cash assets, were $1,745,000 and current liabilities were $200,000. Capitalization consists of 175,000 shares of no par stock. On Nov. 1, 1935, the stock was put on a 25 cent quarterly dividend basis, against the previously prevailing 50 cents. The stock is medium grade.

Lehigh Valley Harbor 5s.

Investors' Guide: Please give me your advice as to safety of Lehigh Valley Harbor Terminal 5s.—F. I. C.

Answer: Lehigh Valley Harbor Terminal Railway company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due Feb. 1, 1954, are considered sound. They are secured by a first lien on valuable terminal property and are guaranteed, principal and interest, by Lehigh Valley railroad. The bonds are not callable until Feb. 1, 1944, when the call price is 105, decreasing half a point each year to maturity.

CHICAGO STOCKS LOWER, BUT SOME MAKE NEW HIGHS

Chicago stocks sagged again yesterday but the few strong points in the market netted seven new highs for the year and several sharp gains of 1 to 8 points. Only 22 issues advanced, 60 declined, and 30 were unchanged for the day.

Swift spurted 1⅜ to a new top of 21⅜. Walgreen, reflecting the expected boost in dividend rate, was up another point to a new top of 33¼. Crane advanced a point to a new high. Kellogg Switchboard common rose a point to a new high and the preferred recovered recent losses by a jump of 8 points. Modine also reached a new ceiling but eased later. Ken-Rad Tube and Leath preferred made new highs but closed lower.

Losses of a point or more were charged against Rath Packing, Northwest Utilities prior lien, Nachman Spring, Keystone Steel, Godchaux "A," Dayton Rubber "A," Abbott Laboratories, and Borg-Warner.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for the transfer of a membership for $4,300, down $700 from the last previous sale.

PRICES OF COTTON FUTURES ADVANCE 11 TO 18 POINTS

Buyers of cotton futures showed more confidence in their position yesterday and at no time were prices as low as Thursday's finish. Commission house and trade buying more than offset profit taking and hedging pressure. The close was at net gains of 11 to 17 points in Chicago and 11 to 18 points in other markets. Liverpool cables were higher than expected.

Spot cotton closed 10 to 15 points higher with New Orleans at 11.80 cents and New York at 12 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

LARD STEADY TO HIGHER; GRAIN INFLUENCES MARKET

Strength in grain brought in fair commission house buying of lard futures yesterday and offset the effect of increasing production. Brokers who frequently act for packing interests and carriers were sellers of January and May deliveries on the advance. Closing trades were unchanged to 7½ cents higher.

Cash lard closed at $12.37; loose, $11.75; leaf, $12.00, and clear bellies [salt pork] at $18.75 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

BUTTER REPORT INSPIRES PRICE BOOST; EGGS VARY

Record withdrawals of butter and eggs from cold storage during November, as shown by the bureau of agricultural economics report, brought in active buying of butter futures yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. The close was at the top, with net gains of ¾ to ⅞ cent with December and January at 31⅝ cents per pound.

Egg futures were irregular, ⅛ cent higher to ⅜ cent lower, with December at 21⅜ cents per dozen. Withdrawals from cold storage during November and since that date have been running below the corresponding period in 1934.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today with a sale confirmed of 10,500 bags of Porto Rican of this year's quota for prompt shipment at 3.10c per lb. Futures were firmer on increased covering and buying by trade and commission houses. Final prices were at about the best with December 1 point lower and later deliveries all 3 points net higher. Sales, 5,500 tons. A European authority estimated the world's sugar production for the 1935-'36 season at 25,612,000 metric tons, against 24,904,000 tons in the previous season and consumption in the 1934-'35 season at 25,667,000 tons, against 25,037,000 in the 1933-'34 season.
